INTRODUCTION.

It was a fit remark of Daniel Webster, who was born within the broad evening shadow of Kearsarge Mountain, and breathed in his youth the pure air blowing over and from our Andover hills, that: "It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who do not look upon themselves as a link connecting the past with the future do not perform their duty to the world."

It may well be added that, for those who do not hark back to a long ancestral list of those who "did and dared," there is no better time than the present to begin an accounting for their civic responsibility in the present time as well as in the future.

The statesman worthy of the name, must be a diligent student of history, both recent and remote.

An enlightened and useful citizenship is largely attained through a knowledge of history of a local character, closely related to the land in which we live and to the town of our birth or our home.

Only a small fraction of the world's history is ever written; it exists as the stream of flowing events in the current age; as individual knowledge; to some extent in architecture, sculpture, manuscripts and printed books, but in much larger proportion, in tradition.

In this volume will be found some of the results of much study of the printed page and of manuscripts relating to Andover, its people and its principal historical events. Here are gathered facts from the memories of many men and women of Andover stock. There are also many items of great interest that have been discovered through clues furnished by tradition and checked by contemporaneous events; and by fugitive letters and manuscripts.

The preparation of this history should have been undertaken at least sixty-five years ago and that portion relating to the early history pushed to a conclusion. Then scores of men and women were living in town who had the historical facts and traditions in full and clear possession; but they have passed over to the ranks of the great majority, and in that way much pertaining to the early life of the town has been lost.

Concerning the pictures in this volume it should be said that, by vote of the town, all illustrations made at the expense of the town were to be confined to landscapes. Accordingly it has been the intention to exhibit, as far as possible with the limited number of pictures, the typical scenery of the town.

It was found that satisfactory half-tone portraits could only be made from first class photographs. Only pictures from such photographs have been used, which accounts for the small number of portraits found in the volume.

It would be almost impossible to commend too highly the zeal and diligence of Mr. George E. Emery who first undertook the task of preparing a history of his native town. He was a direct descendent of Dr. Anthony Emery, one of the best known and most active of the original Proprietors to whom the town was granted, and he brought to his task the stimulus not only of his love and respect for his ancestor, but an ardent and appreciative love for his native town. He began to accumulate material for his work nearly thirty-five years ago and continued this labor until his health failed and he was obliged to seek recuperation in complete rest. Unfortunately all efforts for that end were unavailing and after continued suffering for fifteen years he died in London, England, January 6, 1900.

Ever mindful of the absorbing interest which sustained Mr. Emery in his work, and in full sympathy with his strong wish that a history of his native town should be prepared, his family, without any stipulation of terms or any mention whatever of compensation, transferred, through the kindly offices of Mr. W. A. Bachelder, all of Mr. Emery's collected data to the committee having charge of the town history.

With this mass of matter as a basis the committee began anew the preparation of the history.

At the earnest solicitation of a number of citizens deeply interested in the plan for a history, the writer consented to take up a small portion of the work which came within his personal knowledge, with the understanding that the main portion of the labor would be undertaken by some other person. Unfortunately, the "other person" has not yet appeared; and gradually, step by step, the work has increased, expanded in various ways, and the entire preparation has finally fallen to the lot of one who had no intention of assuming any rôle but that of a temporary helper.

No work of this character is ever complete; additional facts, new sources of information and fresh opportunities for investigation, continually appear, and it is never ending. Approximate success, even, is only possible with the hearty coöperation of others whose zeal and interest never flag. In all this labor great assistance has been rendered by many loyal sons and daughters of Andover but special recognition should be given to the constant and tireless assistance of Mr. William Adams Bachelder, continuing to within a few weeks of his lamented death; and to the active and enthusiastic assistance of Mrs. Marcia F. Hilton in finding "signs" of many genealogical trails that had been lost for years; and in rediscovering long forgotten but important facts in many family histories.

In the following pages may be found the chronicles of a quiet beautiful town in the hill country of picturesque New Hampshire; written and compiled in a spirit of loving appreciation of those who have gone before, of those who really lived the simple but important life of the independent, thoughtful citizen.

No credit can be claimed but for the honest endeavor to record the facts for the sake of the truth and its preservation.

Errors are inevitable and original authorities sometimes differ widely.

It is earnestly hoped that the mantle of charity may be broad enough to cover all mistakes.

THE EARLY HISTORY.

In 1635 Capt. John Mason obtained a grant of the province of New Hampshire. At his death he gave to his grandson, Robert Tufton, Mason Hall and the lands in that vicinity, and to his grandson, John Tufton, on condition that he assume the name John Tufton Mason, the remainder of the entire New Hampshire grant or province. Finally, John Tufton Mason sold his entire claim to the following persons for the sum of £15,000:

THEODORE ATKINSON,	NATHANIEL MESERVE,
MARK HUNKING WENTWORTH,	THOMAS WALLINGFORD,
RICHARD WIBIRD,	JOTHAM ODIORNE,
JOHN WENTWORTH,	JOSHUA PIERCE,
GEORGE JAFFREY,	JOHN MOFFATT,
SAMUEL MOORE,	THOMAS PACKER.

Eleven of the above purchasers of Mason's grant were residents of Portsmouth. Thomas Wallingford resided in Somersworth.

Theodore Atkinson, the son of Hon. Theodore Atkinson, was born at Newcastle, December 20, 1697; graduated at Harvard College in 1718, was a counsellor in 1734, subsequently a judge of the Superior Court and was secretary of the province when Benning Wentworth was governor. He died September 22, 1779.

Mark Hunking Wentworth was the son of Lieut.-Gov. John Wentworth and the father of Sir John Wentworth. He was a merchant of ample means, good reputation and as favorably known in commercial circles in London as in the new country. He died in Portsmouth, December 19, 1785.

Richard Wibird came to this country in one of the king's ships as purveyor, or poulterer, to the ship's officers. He married a Mrs. Due of Hampton, of approved business ability. He engaged in commerce and was successful. He and his wife accumulated a large estate and built the first brick house ever erected in Portsmouth.

John Wentworth was the only son of Gov. Benning Wentworth. He was wealthy, charitable and a man of much influence in Portsmouth, where he died November 8, 1759.

George Jaffrey, Jotham Odiorne and John Moffatt were men of wealth and good reputation in Portsmouth.

Samuel Moore commanded a New Hampshire regiment in the Louisburg campaign.

Nathaniel Meserve was a lieutenant-colonel at the siege of Louisburg, in 1745, and constructed the sledges on which the cannon were drawn through the morass. In 1756 the Earl of Loudoun, commander-in-chief of his majesty's forces in North America, presented him with an elegant silver bowl in testimony of his good services at Fort Edward, where he was in command of the regiment in charge of the fort. He afterwards went to Louisburg again and died there.

Thomas Wallingford was a native of Somersworth. In early life he was dependent on manual labor for support, but by industry and economy he acquired considerable property and became a merchant and a respected citizen. He was a colonel in the militia and a judge of the Superior Court. He died in Portsmouth, August 4, 1771, and was buried at Somersworth.

Joshua Pierce was a son of Hon. Daniel Pierce of Portsmouth, who, in 1766, was one of his majesty's council. The son was principally known as an extensive landowner.

Thomas Packer was sheriff of the province of New Hampshire for 30 years, and was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. He died June 22, 1771. His father was a surgeon, born in London, and came to Portsmouth as a physician. He held several important offices previous to 1695, and in 1719 was a councillor.

In 1748 a number of Louisburg soldiers and others petitioned the above-named Masonian proprietors for the grant of a township of land next north from Stevenstown (now Salisbury), and presented a rough draft of a survey of the territory.

The proprietors, at a meeting held at Portsmouth, December 7, 1748, "Voted That Mr. Edmund Brown and associates have a township equal to six miles square joining upon the north side of Stevens' and associates' above said tract, upon the west side of Pemigewasset river, upon such reservations and Limitations hereafter to be agreed upon."

No further action was taken under the above grant, but Edmund Brown and his associates again appeared in 1751 as petitioners for a larger territory and were successful.

THE ENABLING ACT.

An act to enable the proprietors of New Breton to sell lands, etc., passed the House in the Provincial Legislature of New Hampshire on May 31, 1765. The governor and council consented to the act, ——— 22, 1766. The month of the latter date is not definitely given in the records, nor are the details of the act given. It is evident, however, that the proprietors acted under such authority.

THE SETTLEMENT.

Although the proprietors of New Breton were quite ready to begin the settlement of their grant, nothing was accomplished in that direction during the next seven years. On May 11, 1754, only ten days after the transfer of the grant had been completed, Nathaniel Meloon, who had settled in Stevenstown, west of the Blackwater, was captured by the St. Francis Indians and, with his family of six persons, carried to Canada and sold to the French settlers. On August 15, 1754, in the eastern part of Salisbury, near the Webster place, the Indians killed Timothy Cook and Mrs. Philip Call. On the same day, Robert Barber and Samuel Scribner of Stevenstown, who were haying near "Flaghole," were captured by a part of the same band who had killed Cook and Mrs. Call at the Webster place, and were taken to Canada and sold to the French. All these prisoners, save a young daughter of Meloon, finally returned to their homes. These Indian raids immediately stopped all preparations for settling the grant until the close of the French and Indian War, by the English conquest of Canada in 1760.

When the incursions of the Canadian Indians ceased, the plans for settlement were taken up anew.

The first settler was Joseph Fellows, who occupied his log cabin, in what has since been called the "Flaghole" district, in the spring of 1761. He was followed by Elias Rano, William Morey, Edward Ladd and Simeon Connor. They were soon followed by John Rowe, William Emery and others, all hardy, trained and fearless men, well skilled in the use of the axe and the gun; and most of them afterwards saw service in the war for American independence.

Soon after the settlement of New Breton began, there were many discouraging circumstances, due mainly to the small annual additions made to the colony and to the misunderstandings between the settlers and the proprietors. This dissatisfaction finally culminated in the following letter, which will explain itself:

A letter of Complaint from the Settlers of the township of Newbritton to the genteel men granters of Said township Whereas your honers Ware pleased to grant this township to a Sertain number of men and they having givn Som Small incourigment for Settling We a few of us have under taken to Settle in Said town we would inform you genteelmen that we undergo a great deel of Difekelty on the a count of the proprietrs being backward in premoting the Settlement of this town they are not carefull to perform what they promised us neithe can we learn as they give any incourigment at all for any more to Com into the town they Clear us no rodes build us no bridges indeed they have built us a saw mill but that not being Completed as it ought to be that we git our bords with a great deel of Difkelty but this is not all we Suffer more abundently for want of a grist mill we have been forced to go twenty mils to mill this year with a teem and men upon

The early history of the town, known at various times as "Brownstown," "Emerystown," "New Breton" and, finally, as "Andover," was developed under three distinct forms of government.

From the date of the original grant, in 1751, to 1773, the government was conducted solely by the proprietors. From June 21, 1773, to July 13, 1779, the territory was an unincorporated township. After its incorporation as Andover and its first town meeting on July 13, 1779, the citizens of the town had the entire control of its municipal affairs. At first the grant was sometimes called "Brownstown," out of respect to the first named grantee, Edmund Brown. Afterwards it was sometimes called "Emerystown," after Anthony Emery, who was interested in the settlement of the grant.

On May 28, 1773, the General Court of the British Province of New Hampshire passed an act, requiring each unincorporated township to organize a local government, to facilitate the due apportionment or assessment and collection of taxes for the support of the provincial government.

By virtue of the authority vested in him, John Goffe of Derryfield called a meeting of the settlers of New Breton for the purpose of organizing their township under the provincial law. The meeting was held June 21, 1773, in the house of the first settler, Joseph Fellows. At this meeting the required local township government was organized and the necessary officers were elected. It was voted that the assessors should invoice the property of the inhabitants. This arrangement did not supersede the organization of the proprietors or change their methods of proprietary control.

The first town meeting after the incorporation of the town as Andover was called by Samuel Blake. The call was dated June 29, 1779. At this meeting, held at the meeting-house, July 13, 1779, the following town officers were chosen:

Moderator, Samuel Blake.

Town Clerk, Jonathan Weare.

Assessors, Peter Weare, Joseph Chandler.

Surveyors of Highways, Robert Wise, John Rowe, Joseph Philbrick, Joseph Fellows.

Tithing Men, William Morey, John Rowe.

Constable, Thomas Blake.

Fence Viewers, Joseph Philbrick, John Rowe.

Deerkeepers, Robert Wise, Moses Clough.

Surveyor of Lumber, Moses Clough.

At this meeting the record shows: "Lastly, voted to give five hundred dollars for a man to go into the Continental Service during the war."

Diligent search has, thus far, found no record of any reason assigned for changing the name of this town from New Breton to Andover. It is generally supposed that the war with Great Britain made the former name, generally pronounced like the name of the mother country, very objectionable to the residents of the township; but why the name Andover was selected has not yet appeared.

TOWN MEETINGS.

After the organization of the township, the meetings of the citizens were held at private houses until the first church was built. After the first minister was settled, all the business of the town and the church was transacted at meetings generally held in the meeting-house. There is a record that the town meeting on April 16, 1798, and also the following meeting, were held at the tavern of Elisha Cilley at the Centre. In 1840 the town voted to relinquish all claim to the meeting-house (the North Church) to any society that would repair it and maintain it in good condition. The offer was accepted by the Christian denomination and the town meetings were afterwards held in halls, taverns or the church at the Centre, until the erection of the town house at the Centre in 1879. During this period most of the meetings were held in the hall in the tavern at the Centre.

The assessments were made on each proprietor's "right," to raise money to defray the cost of building and maintenance of roads and bridges, the building of a sawmill, a gristmill and a meeting-house, providing for the "preaching of the Gospel," and for sundry minor matters.

First meeting of the Proprietors of New Breton was called by the June 11 } Masonian Grantors at the house of Benjamin Swett Inn-

CLEARING OF FARMS BY THE EARLY SETTLERS.

Thomas Blake from Epping cleared the farm long occupied by Paine R. Robie and afterwards owned by Friend Bailey.

John Rowell cleared much of the farm on which his son, John, the father of Warren Rowell, passed most of his life.

name, cleared up the farm where he lived most of his life. This farm was long owned by his son-in-law, Watson Dickerson, and afterwards by Augustus Shaw.

John Saunders cleared considerable land between the Mill Brook and the Emery Road, and easterly from the cross road connecting these highways. His house stood near the northeast corner of the orchard formerly known as the Fellows orchard on the first road from the Pemigewasset River to the mills.

Nathaniel Danford cleared the first farm on the River Road. The farm was afterwards owned by John Simonds and by his son, John Wesley Simonds. Danford came to Andover about 1770. At that time his nearest neighbor to the north was in New Chester and five miles away.

Nathan Bartlett cleared the Green Greely farm near Elbow Pond.

Aaron Cilley cleared the first farm and built the first sawmill at Cilleyville. He settled there about 1785.

Ephraim Eastman cleared the farm afterwards owned by his son, Royal F. Eastman, on the west side of Beech Hill.

Isaiah Langley cleared most of the farm where he lived and died and where his son, Dudley F. Langley, lived for many years. Henry M. Thompson now owns the farm.

Samuel Elkins cleared the farm afterwards owned by his grandson, Hervey, and his great-grandson, Wendell P. Elkins.

About the time the town was incorporated as Andover, in 1779, the business of farming was not very far advanced. The fields and pastures were small, stony and thickly studded with tree stumps. The fences were temporary and mainly made of half-burned logs from the clearings, and of brush. Bridges were floored with logs hewn on one side only, while those over small streams were made wholly of unhewn poles, spruce, hemlock or balsam. Hay was taken to the barns on poles, called "haypoles," by two men or was drawn on sleds by oxen. Roads were crooked, narrow and uneven, and often plentifully supplied with mud holes.

The building of stone walls did not begin till about 1800. Probably more than three quarters of the stone walls have been built since 1820. Walls were not built until after the stumps and roots had decayed or had been dug out and burned. The second stage of land clearing and wall building was inaugurated when the loose stone that cumbered the surfaces of field and pasture were gathered into the "double walls" that are scattered throughout the town. The building of these walls began about 1830. A good example of this kind of wall may be seen beside the road on the Ezekiel Knowles farm on the hill south of East Andover village.

When the inventory of taxable property was made April 1, 1777, there were 47 voters or "polls" returned by the committee. The total assessed value of real estate was £71 6s. 6d. and the assessment made on that valuation was £5. The inventory committee fixed upon the following relative values:

- 4 acres of pasture were necessary for one cow;
- 1 acre of orchard was supposed to produce 10 barrels of cider;
- 1 acre of field would yield one ton of hay;
- 1 acre of tillage would yield 25 bushels of corn.

HOUSES OF THE EARLY SETTLERS.

All the houses of those who settled in Andover before 1770 are believed to have been constructed of pine, hemlock or spruce logs. The first cabin of Joseph Fellows was built chiefly of hemlock logs and the roof was made of spruce poles and large sheets of hemlock bark. The ground floor of the earliest houses was made of logs hewn on three sides. The best and widest side was laid uppermost and the other two sides were hewn straight to make the floor as tight as possible. The floors of the small attics or garrets of those houses were made of small straight spruce poles laid close together.

The first windows were sometimes made of four small pieces of "bull's eye" glass, but more frequently the light came into the primitive cabin through a woodehuck skin, from which the hair had been removed, rubbed down thin, well-greased and stretched over a small frame fitted into an opening cut in the log walls.

Edward Ladd built his first house on a spot about eight rods south of the barn owned in 1902 by Napoleon B. Bryant. In one respect this house was more pretentious than any other building in town. While the walls were made of logs, the roof was covered with sawed boards which Mr. Ladd hauled on a hand sled, three at a load, from the sawmill of Col. Ebenezer Webster on Salisbury "North Road."

"Clove," or "riven," boards, that is, boards split from the log and hewn with axe or adze, or shaved with drawknife, were used for many years to cover the roofs of log houses; and to a period considerably later than 1800 they were used for the roofs of sheds and barns. The last construction of this character in Andover, so far as now known, was on a barn built by Elijah Hilton on the farm now owned by Henry W. Kilburn. In 1850 this roof was as sound and substantial as it was rare and interesting.

The very last of the old series of log houses in Andover was built by Moses Brown at the south side of Chance Pond before that part of the town was made a part of Franklin. Some persons now living may remember the picturesque appearance of the cabin by the brook near Aiken's beach.

The "Stevens house," next west of the Capt. Caleb Marston farm, is the oldest house standing on the Emery Road, and is of the average size of the earliest "frame" houses built in Andover.

Willard Emery, son of William, the early settler, built the first framed house in the Emery district. This house was taken down, moved to Cilley's Hill and was long occupied there as a dwelling by Samuel Page and family. Mrs. Page was noted for her strenuous, stentorian voice, and when, after each sermon in the old meeting-house, she rose to exhort the impenitent, it was said that she made the sounding board shake, if not the knees of sinners.

The chimneys of some of the log houses were ingeniously constructed without bricks or stone, except about the fireplaces. Four tall, straight poles formed the corners of the great flues. Across these poles, as the flues grew in height, were fastened short and smaller sticks, like the rungs of a ladder but close together, to serve the same purpose as modern laths. This frame was plastered thickly on both sides with a mixture of clay and blue-joint grass, until sufficient thickness was attained to make a strong smoke-and-spark-proof chimney. Above the roof the chimney was finished with a low structure of stone or brick as a protection against rain and frost.

The last house in town to exhibit this peculiar kind of chimney was the one occupied for several years by the Revolutionary War veteran, Samuel McGowan. The house was standing as late as 1845, on the road a little west of the present schoolhouse at Cilleyville.

NOTES ON THE WEATHER, STORMS, FRESHETS, DROUGHTS AND FROSTS IN ANDOVER.

As the indications of the ordinary thermometer of the present day are generally far from trustworthy, it is more than probable that the readings of such thermometers 100 or 150 years ago are not entitled to much weight. The recorded results, from changes of temperature, in sudden or excessive heat or cold, are more valuable for our purpose. The following items are compiled from private diaries, letters, newspapers and other publications and probably represent a very small portion of the phenomena which if thoroughly and systematically observed and recorded would be of great interest today.

1762—No considerable amount of rain fell in New Breton during 123 days preceding September 1. This great drought extended over a large portion of New England.

1771—Little or no snow until the last of January.

1780—The coldest winter known, up to this date, in New Hampshire. No rain or thaw during the winter; the spring very backward. A great freshet, in 1780, swept down sand, gravel and loam and formed the bank or levee now existing between Blackwater River and Horseshoe Pond. Previous to this date the space between the pond and the river was occupied by a low sandy marsh. On May 19 occurred the so-called "dark day," which extended over all New England.

1784—May was a very cold month; the apple trees were not in blossom until May 30.

1785—Very deep snow. After April 17 William, father of Anthony Emery, with a team of six oxen, hauled logs from a timber lot across fences and stone walls without breaking through the "crust."

1794—The spring was very early, but on May 17 there came a "freeze that destroyed a large part of the apples that were already as large as small bullets."

1798—A very cold autumn, with a great snow storm.

1799—A drought in August. A great plague of grasshoppers.

1800—A very dry spring, lasting until July. August also dry. Corn crop very light. Great fire on Ragged Mountain in August.

1801—A very early spring. On April 1 farmers were preparing the fields for sowing grain and the roads were dry. On June 7 a heavy frost killed the corn, but a subsequent planting finally ripened.

1802—A great snow storm in February. The snow was very fine and so densely packed that ox-teams could move anywhere over the surface without breaking through. Heavy rains and a notable freshet in September.

1804—"A remarkable storm of snow, rain and hail, accompanied with thunder and lightning," occurred early in October. "A short crop of hay."

1806—A total solar eclipse was observed in Andover on June 16. The total phase occurred about noon. "The air was perfectly still, the stars shone with great brilliancy and the fowls went to their accustomed roosts."

1809—A very cold winter.

1810—January 18, "warm and thawing." January 19, the "cold Friday"; "terribly cold and windy."

1815—September 23. A very heavy gale, destructive to trees and crops. Many valuable pine trees were either uprooted or broken down.

1816—Early in June there were very heavy frosts; in some places the ground was frozen. On July 9 a heavy frost killed much of the corn. A light crop of grass. Heavy drought in September. The corn, hay and apple crops almost a complete failure. Frost in every month in the year.

The hay crop was so short that many farmers sold nearly all their stock. Anthony Emery bought and slaughtered 1,000 sheep and sold the mutton in Massachusetts.

1817—In the spring of this year hay sold for from $20 to $30 per ton, wheat was $2.50, and corn $2 per bushel. Excellent crops this year.

1818—Three feet of snow fell early in April. Quite a notable freshet. A late spring.

1819—Little snow after January. An early spring and much plowing was done before May 1.

1820—April 25. The snow was over two feet deep in the woods. A severe drought in July, August and September. "About 1820 a great fire swept the summit of Ragged Mountain."

1821—September 3 a very heavy northeast rain storm lasted about seven hours. The wind was very high and blew down wooden fences and demolished many light buildings.

On September 9 a severe tornado swept over Wendell (now Sunapee), New London, Sutton, Wilmot, Kearsarge Mountain and the southwest corner of Andover. Much damage to property was done along its track and great quantities of debris from shattered houses and other buildings were carried over the northern shoulder of Kearsarge and scattered over the southwest corner of Andover. A feather bed fell near the house of Gershom Durgin in Andover and a lady's muff, blown from a house in Sutton, was found in a tree on the land of Ephraim Eastman on Beech Hill.

1823—Thirty-one snow storms during the winter of 1822-'23. Sleighing lasted till first of April. Drought in autumn, many streams very low and wells dry.

1824—On February 10 and 11 a great quantity of rain fell, breaking up the ice in the ponds and streams, flooding the lowlands and carrying away many bridges, especially on the Pemigewasset and Merrimack rivers.

1826—April 11. Up to this date the coldest day ever known in this state at this season. A notably dry season until August. The grasshoppers swept some fields almost bare of vegetation. A heavy rain, from August 26 to August 28, caused an unprecedented freshet. A clothing mill near Bonney's Mill at West Andover was carried away at night and Moses Frazier and another man started down the valley to alarm the citizens. The water rose to within two feet of the doorstep of Col. T. J. Cilley's house, where Jesse Baker lived in 1900. The bed of the brook east of Colonel Cilley's house was changed to its present location. It was formerly several rods nearer the old Thompson tavern, where John Sanborn lives. The water from the river backed up into the barnyard and surrounded the elm tree in front of the Shirley house. This tree is about one hundred years old.

1827—On May 30 there was snow on Kearsarge that had fallen two days before.

1829—Farm produce cheap.

1830—A heavy frost in May, cutting down all farm crops above the surface of the ground.

1831—An unusual crop of corn.

1832—Seventeen weeks of good sleighing.

1833—A frosty summer; frost in June, July and August. The great meteor shower of November 13 was well seen by many Andover people.

1834—About 12.30 p. m. August 30, Andover and vicinity was considerably shaken by an earthquake. There was one shock followed by a slight tremor. Plates on edge on the antique kitchen "dressers" and shelves were thrown down, loose windows rattled and open doors swung on their hinges.

1835—A sharp drought in June. December 16 a heavy snow storm and severe cold. In December a succession of snow storms covered the ground to a depth of more than three and a half feet. A high wind prevailed for nearly a week. The hill roads were impassable for several days.

1836—"About twenty weeks of good sleighing." A grand display of a red borealis was seen in 1836.

1839—January 27. A severe freshet. The bridges at Dyer's Crossing and below the "Hog-back" were destroyed and the road at the "Gulf" was completely washed out.

1843—A cold and backward spring. On April 1 the snow was over four feet deep on a level in the woods, and on April 12 it was three feet deep. On April 12 the ice on the ponds was strong enough to bear teams. Heavy frost on May 31 and June 1 killed the early vegetation, but a second planting secured a fair harvest. A heavy snow storm on October 31. This snow remained till the next April.

1852—May 6, a snowfall sufficient for sleighing for one day.

1854—March was a notably cold month. An unusual display of colored aurora borealis on April 23. The color varied from light pink to rose red and at times the streamers reached from the zenith to the northern, western and eastern horizons. The phenomena continued until after midnight.

May 26. A partial eclipse of the sun. A severe drought in August.

August 9. Frost in the low lands. December was a very cold month. On several days the thermometer read 20 degrees below zero.

1855—January 16. What was supposed to be an earthquake occurred at about 7 p. m. Several jars or tremors were felt; no damage.

1857—The warmest December ever known in this town up to this date.

1859—The last week of November was as warm as is usual in June.

1860—In February a tornado swept through the eastern part of the town, doing much damage to wood and timber lots.

1861—On July 20 a very severe wind and rain storm did much damage in the central part of the town. The zone in which the damage to trees, etc., occurred was not more than two miles long and half a mile wide. The wind was from the southwest and uprooted or broke down trees of all sizes on land of Samuel Morrill, Dr. H. A. Weymouth, Rev. Reuben Dearborn, Dea. Josiah Bachelder and others, and the air seemed full of leaves, limbs of trees and debris from fences and small outbuildings. At the residence of Doctor Weymouth a board, blown from a shed, was driven with such force against the side of the house that the end projected beyond the interior wall of the room.

1862—March 14-16. The hardest snow storm of the season. Snow four feet deep in roads on Taunton Hill. In one case a person walked along a snow drift on to the roof of the one-story ell of Deacon Bachelder's house.

1866—A very severe drought, continuing from the middle of July to the middle of October.

1867—A very heavy snowstorm on January 17, roads badly blocked by drifts.

1869—A great freshet in October did much damage. The Keniston bridge was seriously damaged by the undermining of the abutments. Nearly thirty rods of the Northern Railroad embankment below the Andover Center station were washed away and many of the highways were badly damaged. More than seven feet of snow fell during the winter 1868-'69.

1870—A very heavy thunder shower on February 19.

1871-'72—This winter was noted for frequent snows and excellent sleighing. Very favorable for lumbering. For some unknown reason the season was unfavorable to bees. More than sixty swarms were lost.

1872—A heavy freshet in June. "Everything afloat in the valley of the Blackwater."

May 8. Heavy banks of snow visible on the slopes of Ragged and Kearsarge mountains.

1873—Recorded low temperatures: January 29, 10° below zero; January 30, 22° below zero; January 31, 18° below zero; February 1, 15° below zero; February 2, 15° below zero; February 3, 17° below zero. On February 18 the ice in Highland Lake was twenty-two inches thick.

1874—January 9, Silas C. Fifield tapped several trees in his maple orchard and made considerable maple syrup. On February 2 the thermometer indicated a temperature of 30° below zero. Sleighbells ringing on May 1. Good hay worth $20 per ton. Only ten inches of snow in December.

1875—February 14, the thermometer registered 36° below zero. The snow was four feet deep in the woods and the ice on the ponds was three feet thick. On June 1 the remains of a snow-drift were lying in the yard of Shepard and Messer's hosiery mill at East Andover.

1876—February 6, the thermometer read 21° below zero; on February 7 it read 41° above zero; a rise of 62° in less than twenty-four hours. A heavy snow storm on March 26, followed by rain, produced a notable freshet. Four feet of snow fell in December.

1877—About four inches of snow fell in December; on twenty-six days in December the ground was bare. From 1857 to 1877 the average fall of snow in December in Andover was twenty inches. On July 25 the temperature reached 95° .

1878—May 13, a heavy frost; June 7, a sharp frost in the low lands; July 3, the thermometer registered 102° in the shade; July 4, the hottest day known for many years, 108° in the shade. In December a heavy snowstorm, followed by a rain, caused a freshet in the Blackwater; several roads were impassable for a few days.

1879—November 2, first snow storm of the season.

1880—May 14, Kearsarge white with fresh fallen snow. May 15, a frost. Apple trees in bloom, corn up, but no damage done. A heavy crop of apples throughout the town. First snow of the season November 20.

1881—The so-called "yellow day" occurred on September 6. It was quite dark in Andover, but in Massachusetts in many places it was necessary to light lamps to see to work in houses. The darkest period occurred about 3 p. m. The darkness was evidently caused by smoke and haze.

ICE IN HIGHLAND LAKE.

For nineteen years Mr. W. A. Bachelder noted the following dates of the "breaking up" of the ice in Highland Lake:

1851	April 9	1861	April 25
1852	May 5	1862	May 2
1853	April 23	1863	April 30
1854	May 2	1864	April 28
1855	May 2	1865	April 13
1856	April 21	1866	April 18
1857	April 24	1867	April 24
1858	April 12	1868	April 24
1859	April 29	1869	April 28
1860	April 15

From the above dates it appears that for the above-mentioned years the average or mean date for the breaking of the ice was April 24.

DIVISION OF THE TOWN.

The proposition to take the eastern part of the town of Andover to form a portion of the projected town of Franklin was at first opposed by the citizens of Andover. After much discussion, assent was finally given on the condition that the dividing line should extend, parallel to the longer sides of the lots, from the northern line of Salisbury to the southern line of New Chester, now Hill.

Mr. J. C. Thompson was appointed agent to represent the town in all matters pertaining to the division, and active negotiations soon resulted in the following legislation:

Extract from an act incorporating the town of Franklin, approved December 24, 1828. John Bell, governor.

Section one of said act describes the boundaries of said town. After defining the line between Salisbury and Franklin as it approaches the line between Salisbury and Andover, the section reads:

. . . thence North 14 Deg. East on the Westerly line of said lot (lot No. 61 in the third range of lots in Salisbury) 474 rods to a stone marked C. B. at the South side of the road, thence North about 73 Deg. East following the course of the Range way to the Southwest corner of lot No. 52 in the 4th range of lots in said Salisbury, thence North following the westerly line of said lot to a Stake and Stones on the line between Salisbury and Andover, thence South about 73 Deg. West following said line 55 rods to a stake and stones at the Southwest corner of lot No. 19 in the first range of lots in Andover, thence North about 17 Deg. West to the Northwest corner of said lot No. 19, and at the Southwest corner of lot No. 20 in the second range of lots in Andover, thence following the westerly line of lot No. 20, aforesaid 320 rods to a Birch tree spotted, thence North 73 Degrees East nineteen rods; thence North four rods across the road to the Southwest corner of lot No. 61 in the third range of lots in said Andover, thence North about 17 Degrees West on the Westerly line of said lot until you strike the fourth range way in Andover aforesaid, thence across said range way to the Southwest corner of lot No. 62 in the fourth range of lots in said Andover thence Northerly on the West line of said lot to the line of New Chester thence Easterly on the South line of said New Chester to Pemi-gewasset River.

An act to locate and establish the town line between the towns of Andover and Franklin:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court Convened.

SECTION 1. That the line between the towns of Franklin and Andover in the County of Merrimack shall be located and established as follows:

Commencing at the Northeast corner of Salisbury at a stone Monument marked C. B. thence due North on the West line of lot No. 19 in the first range of lots as originally laid out in the town of Andover, to a stake and stones near a large stone in the brook marked 20, at the Northwest corner of said lot No. 19, and the Southwest corner of the lot No. 20, in the second range of lots, as originally laid out in the town of Andover; thence North five degrees West, following the West line of said lot No. 20, to a stone in the wall marked 20, on the South side of the Ela Hill Road, so called; thence across said road two rods and eleven links to a stone monument, marked A. F.; thence South seventy-four degrees West thirty four rods to a stone in the wall marked A. F.; thence North thirteen degrees West, on the West line of lot No. 61, in the third range of lots as originally laid out in the town of Andover, to a ledge marked A. F. near the Northwest corner of said lot, No. 61, thence Northerly across the rangeway to the Southwest corner of lot No. 62 in the fourth range of lots as originally laid out in the town of Andover, thence North thirty three degrees West, following the West line of said lot to Hill line.

SECTION 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

DIVIDING THE TOWN INTO SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

The division of the town into school districts was probably considered at an early period of its corporate existence, but the exact date of the first movement to define the boundaries of the districts is not definitely known. The following paper, purporting to be the record of the first division of the town, has been offered as a true report of the work of the selectmen, but the general form of the report and the wording of the first sentence tend to throw some doubt on the genuineness of the document.

No trace of this report is found in the town records, which at about that period, however, are notably incomplete and sometimes wanting.

DIVISION OF THE TOWN INTO SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

We, the subscribers, agree to divide off the inhabitants of Andover into districts, for the use, benefit and order of schooling, so that they may know where to build the school houses and proportion of school money and govern themselves accordingly. Each district to extend to the bounds or limits here after mentioned.

1ly. From Ebenezer Tilton's to Lieut. Abba Brown's, also to John Rowell's, including the said Tilton, Brown, Rowell and Josiah Pettingil and those on the road between them.

2ly. From Lieut. Ezekiel Fellows' to Josiah Brown's, and to Stephen Green's, including the said Fellows, Brown and Green and all on the road between them.

3ly. From Lieut. John Rowe's to Joshua Page's, and to James Fuller's, including the said Rowe, Page and Fuller and Capt. Emery and Jona. Stevens and all on the road between them.

4ly. Ebenezer Scribner's to Joseph Fellows', Jr. and to Ens. Moses Clough's, including the said Scribner, Fellows and Clough, and all on the road between them.

5ly. From Joseph Philbrick's to Jona. Robbard's to Capt. Bachelder's and to Mr. Colbey's, including the said Philbrick, Robbards, Bachelder and Colbey, and all on the road between them.

6ly. David Fuller, Saml. Blake, Jr. and David Sanborn and all on the road between them.

7ly. Benjamin Cilley, Jr., Daniel Cilley, and Jona. Barber and all on the roads between them including Phillip Cilley and Benjamin the 3rd.

8ly. The inhabitants of Beech Hill, so called, to be one district.

9ly. All the inhabitants at the lower end of said town below the Lower Pond, so called, to be in one district.

10ly. From Benjamin Hoit's to John D. Swett's and all on the road between them.

Each district shall have the privileges of the schools within their limits in proportion to the money they pay in town taxes, yet in all schools supported by a town tax every person in said town hath a right to go or send to school in any part of the town as he shall see fit.

Dated at Andover, July 7th., 1792.

Jabez Morrill

RESIDENCES OF TAXPAYERS.

Taxpayers resident in the various school districts in Andover in 1825.—After 1818 several propositions to divide school districts were referred, by vote in town meeting, to the selectmen for determination. No record has been found of such action before 1825. It is supposed that District No. 16 was created by the selectmen, but no record of its boundaries has been found.

In examining the following list it must be remembered that it contains only the names of landholders, or of sons living away from their parents. The poll taxes of sons residing with their parents were assessed and recorded against the father. The names of such sons do not appear on the tax lists.

In 1863 the boundaries of the school districts in the town were re-established by a committee consisting of Aaron Cilley, Jr., Royal F. Eastman and William B. Emery. Their report was adopted March 10, 1863.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND CHURCHES.

A meeting of the proprietors of the township of New Breton was called on May 9, 1768, to see "if they would hire preaching for any part of this year."

On April 13, 1772, a meeting of the proprietors was called for May 4, to see if they "would agree to build a meeting house in said township."

At a meeting on May 18, 1772: "Voted that a meeting house be Built in said Township of New Britain for the Publick worship of God,—said house to be 20 feet wide and 30 feet in length and nine feet stud one story high to be well Boarded on the Sides and Ends with feather Edged Boards the Roof well Boarded and Shingled Proper Doors made and Double floor Laid over the whole frame below, Plank Laid for People to Sit on and a Decent Desk for the minister: and where as Mr. Benjamin Tilton and Mr. Benjamin Eaton have agreed to Build said house for the use of the Proprietors for the sum of sixty four dollars and to find all meterils for the same: to be compleated in workmanlike manner within on year: to be set as near the mills which are now built in said Township as they shall think most convenient they Procuring Land whereon to set said house: Therefore voted that said Tilton & Eaton be a Committee to Build said meeting house on the terms above mentioned and that they be Paid by the Treasurer of the Proprietors the above mentioned sum of sixty four Dollars one half to be Paid within six months the other half when said house shall be compleated as above mentioned."

"Voted:—that one dollar and half be Raised on each original Right in said Township of New Brittain for Building a meeting house and Repairing Roads."

The meeting house was completed and ready for occupation in the spring of 1773 and served for a church, town house and hall for twenty-three years. It was situated on the opposite side of the road from the district schoolhouse at East Andover, as it existed in 1900, and was within twenty rods of the first sawmill and gristmill in town.

At a meeting on June 1, 1773, the proprietors voted "that three Shillings Lawfull money be Raised on each original Right of the Proprietors of New Brittain for hireing Preaching for the Present year."

Voted, "Joseph Fellows and William Emery be chosen a committee to hire sum suitable Person to Preach in the Township of New Brittain."

The above committee hired the first minister in town, a Mr. Brown, who boarded with Joseph Fellows.

On May 2, 1774, voted, "that Thirty Dollars be paid out of the Proprietors money which they have for the Mill; and that William Emery and Nathan Rowe be a Committee to hier some Sutable Parson to Preach in the Township of New Brittain the Insuing year and the Committee to Draw the Thirty Dollars out of the Proprietor's Treasurer's hands for Preaching in said Township."

On April 11, 1775, the proprietors voted "that half a dollar be raised on each original Right of the Proprietors of New Brittain for hiring Preaching in the Township the present year."

This was the last meeting called by the proprietors.

The inhabitants of New Breton established a town government in 1773. On March 14, 1775, they voted "to pay Capt. William Emery for boarding the minister last year out of the surplus money that was left in the year 1774."

It will be seen that while the proprietors exercised no authority in the government of the town, they employed the minister and appropriated the money to pay him. Soon after the organization of the town government, and for many years afterwards, the affairs of the church were managed in the "town meeting." The whole town was the church parish and each citizen paid a "minister's tax." The records show that in some years several town meetings were held for church and for business purposes jointly.

On October 19, 1775, William Blake was chosen "to take care of the meeting house." This was the first meeting-house, built by Tilton and Eaton for $64, and stood a few feet southwest of the entrance to the present North Church at East Andover.

September 1, 1779, voted "to raise money to hire four days preaching and Joseph Philbrick was chose to hire the preacher."

April 6, 1780, voted "not to hire any preaching."

August 31, 1780, "Voted to raise 1200 Dollars to hire Preaching & voted that the Selectmen hire a Preacher."

A national Thanksgiving, appointed for December 7, 1780, is the first reference to any Thanksgiving Day in the town records.

July 16, 1781, voted, "to clear up the trees fell down on the Minister's land the present year." Voted, "to raise 30 dollars old way to hire Preaching the Present year and Chose Samuel Blake, Nathan Row and Jona. Weare a Committee to hire the man."

August 31, 1781, voted "to Raise 1200 Dollars to hire Preaching"; voted "that the Selectmen hire a preacher."

October 1, 1781, voted "to chuse a Committee to look out a place to build a meeting house and Samuel Blake, Jonathan Weare and Simeon Rollings chosen a Committee."

The passing of the above vote was the beginning of a controversy that lasted for fifteen years. In 1781, the first meeting-house, costing originally $64, had become inadequate, unattractive and offensive to the taste of many of the people of the town. What was tolerable under the primitive conditions of 1773 had become, with more prosperous surroundings, an uncomfortable and unsightly house of worship. Where shall the new building be located? was the apparent question for discussion, but many conflicting interests soon made the question a very complex one.

What occurred during the intervals between the frequent town meetings that took cognizance of the matter is now only a matter of conjecture, but the records of the meetings show no lack of lively interest in the subject.

Each man had great faith in his own opinions, was jealous of his privileges and was zealous to do his duty, as he saw it, as a payer of taxes for the support of the church. From fragments of tradition and from the internal evidence of the records, it is plain that there were two well-defined parties in the struggle: the one progressive and openly active; the other conservative but persistent, relying mainly on its weight for success. There still remained, however, an unattached contingent, acknowledging allegiance with neither side, but holding the balance of power in many cases and making and unmaking town meeting verdicts with a facility that was unhampered by consistency.

While the first meeting-house was standing there seemed to be little prospect for agreement on a site for a new one. For fourteen years the conflict waxed and waned until patience was exhausted. Finally, in 1795, the Anglo-Saxon disposition to do something triumphed and, under the protection of dim moonlight, Paul Smith Marston, for many years a trusted official of the town, assisted by his two sons, Caleb and Israel, and by John Fellows, Ebenezer Fellows and others, sawed off the corner braces and corner post tenons of the meeting-house frame and so weakened it generally that it was easily thrown down and destroyed. Mr. Charles Hilton, who kept a tavern on the present Charles A. Durgin place, gave a generous supper to Mr. Marston and his associates on the night the meeting-house was destroyed.

Similar action outside of legal limitations was not unknown in church circles in some of the neighboring towns. During a church controversy in Boscawen over the payment of the minister's tax, the meeting-house at the eastern part of the town was burned on February 22, 1798.

When the house was torn down by Paul S. Marston and his friends, the neighborhood poet added the following to his list of literary gems:

Few and short were the prayers they said
Before going their tools to borrow;
They chopped, they split, they sawed, they cut,
And no church was there on the morrow.

As Andover was now without a meeting-house, a decision about the location of the site for the new building became imperative and an agreement was soon reached. The struggle over the location of the new meeting-house was probably the most unfortunate event in the history of the town, for its effects have been far-reaching, not only in the religious but in the social and political life of the community.

At first the contest was between those who wanted a new meeting-house and those who were satisfied with the old one. At that time the settlers were grouped mainly at three points in the town: first, in the eastern section on the river road and about Chance Pond; second, at East Andover, including the districts not far from the old meeting-house, and third, those at the then west end of the town, principally about the village now known as the "Centre." Each group would have been pleased to see the new meeting-house in its own section. Any two of the sections could combine to defeat the third. As the discussion continued, it was proposed to build two meeting-houses, one at each end of the town, but that scheme lacked the necessary votes. At many of the town meetings it was not a difficult task to settle upon some location for the new building, but it was equally easy at the next meeting, held perhaps in a few days or weeks, to undo all the work of the previous meeting. For fourteen years this struggle continued, growing more bitter as the years went by.

Upon the destruction of the first meeting-house, in 1795, a cessation of active hostilities occurred for a short time, but the poison of factious opposition was still working in the church and in the town. Unwillingness to pay the minister's tax, impatience with the monotony of didactic and doctrinal sermons, an ill-defined preference for the emotional, fervid preaching of "exhorters," "evangelists," and the self-trained ministers of the new Freewill Baptist denomination, all tended to the disorganization of the first church, which practically disappeared after the resignation of Mr. Badcock in 1809.

During the contest over the location of the new meeting-house the citizen began to lose confidence in the character and authority of the church and in the unselfishness of his neighbors. In the absence of the conservative influence of the "settled minister," religious preaching, practice and experience ran wild for a whole generation. Fear of Satan, and a frantic attempt to destroy his influence by new religious organizations took the place of a trustful love of God and a dedication of individual strength and spirit to a reasonable service to God and humanity.

The rapid multiplication of religious societies and the frequent reconversion of many people at the constantly recurring revivals lead, now, to the conclusion that jealousy among the societies and the struggle among ambitious, untrained, sometimes ignorant preachers for notoriety, as well as for a long list of quickened converts, tended not only to weaken the churches and the cause of true religion, but to materially lower the standard of individual character in the community at large. Traditions fortified by the few available records leave an unpleasant impression of the religious experiences of that epoch, when sound and emotion in the pulpit and apparent hysteria in the pews counted for more than logical argument or a vigorous presentation of religious or moral truth.

The effect of the struggle over the location of the new meeting-house has continually appeared, even down to the present time, in many phases of social, civil and political life. Since the division of the town to form a part of the town of Franklin there have been two instead of three sections of the town to be considered; and the mustering of the east end against the west, or the west end against the east, in many matters that involve the welfare of the whole town is probably a thoughtless but nevertheless a certainly positive damage to the whole community. A little Christian charity and a due consideration of the value of neighborly love and respect has already materially modified the former jealousy and asperity, and it seems reasonably certain that an honest study and application of the precepts of the Golden Rule will completely eradicate the taint of the meeting-house war of more than a century ago.

The brief records of the town meetings concerning the selection of a site for the new meeting-house and other church matters are given below:

October 15, 1781: Voted, "to build a meeting house upon the Centre Square."

March 18, 1782: Voted, "to raise 60 dollars to hire Preaching the ensuing year." Voted, "to raise 75 dollars to hire work on the minister's lot." Voted, "to remove the meeting house out to the Highway and repair it."

April 15, 1782: Voted, "to remove the Meeting house out to the Rode to the corner of Mr. Hilton's land."

June 10, 1782: Voted, "to settle a Minister as soon as conveniently may be." Voted, "that Samuel Blake, Capt. William Emery and Jonathan Weare be a Committee to hire Preaching the present year." Voted, "to set a meeting house on the Plain between the Pond and Mr. Clough's."

The following is a copy of Mr. Josiah Badcock's credentials as a minister:

EPPING, Oct. 5, 1776.

This certifies whom it may concern that Mr. Josiah Badcock a Gentleman of a Liberal Education and unexceptionable character as far as we know (and we have had acquaintance with him for divers years) has offered himself to our inquiry as a Candidate for preaching the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ and exhibited to us a specimen of his Gifts with which we are well satisfied & think it Duty to encourage him in his Design nothing Doubting of his sincere Desire to serve the interest of the Redeemer's Kingdom.

On September 16, 1782, the town elected a committee to invite the churches in Danvers, Mass., and Brentwood, Epping, Pembroke, Sanbornton and Salisbury, N. H., to send their ministers and delegates to assist in the ordination of Mr. J. Badcock on October 30, 1782.

The ordaining council was entertained at the house of Samuel Blake, the site of the present W. S. Marston house, and the ordination exercises were held at the same place. The ordination sermon was preached by Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth of Danvers, Mass., from the text Isaiah 52 : 7: "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!"

In the course of his charge to the pastor Mr. Wadsworth said,

“as occasion calls prove yourself both a son of thunder and a son of consolation.”

On the day of the ordination the First Congregational Church was organized. At first it consisted of six members. This number slowly increased to thirty; then gradually diminished until 1809, when Mr. Badcock's connection with the church ceased.

In 1828 only one member of this first church was living.

Unfortunately the records of this church have been lost or destroyed.

The following notes in Mr. Badcock's diary are characteristic of the man and his time:

July 8, 1782, “The people in Andover gave me a call to settle with them in the Gospel ministry.”

October 30, “Was ordained in Andover.”

November 19, “Went to board at Mr. Nathaniel Emery's.”

July 11, 1783, “Preached a lecture at the river.” This is the first notice of a religious meeting at the river road.

August 9, “A hard frost.”

September 14, “Eben Scribner's wife died and on 20th child.”

November 8, 1783, “My house was raised.”

December 11, “Thanksgiving. Remarkably pleasant.”

November 18, 1784, “Was married.”

January 19, 1785, “Moved into Andover.”

April 14, “Fast day.

BILLS PAID FOR ORDINATION EXPENSES.

1782. The town paid Mr. Samuel Blake cost of ordination (in part) £1 0s. 0d.

1782. The town paid Capt. William Emery for certain expenses, £2 10s. 0d.

1782. The town paid Joseph Chandler for expenses of ordination, £7 10s. 0d.

At that time the ordination of a minister was an impressive and notable event. As far as possible all the people stopped work on that day, joining in the religious services and afterwards partaking freely of the rum and roast beef generously provided for all the people. So far, no itemized account of the food and beverages consumed on October 30, 1782, has been found, but numerous traditions indicate that the quantity was sufficient to satisfy not only the clergy, but the congregation.

May 29, 1783, chose Nathan Rowe, Moses Clough and Thomas Blake a "committee to see that the Rev. Mr. Badcock's house is done according to vote of s'd town."

November 8, 1783, "The frame for the parsonage was raised today." This building was built where Hale Flanders now lives, on Taunton Hill, formerly the Horace Clay place.

In 1783, the town paid Captain Weare for rum used at the raising the frame for the parsonage, £1 4s. 0d.; also for meat on the same occasion, £9 0s. 0d.

The timber for the parsonage was bought at "vendue" by the town. Nathan Rowe, Simeon Rollins, Simeon Connor, Theophilus Blake, Paul Smith Marston, Edward Ladd, Joseph Philbrick, Josiah Scribner, Joseph Chandler, William Morey, Ebenezer Tilton, Thomas Blake and Joseph Fellows "bid off" and furnished the lumber. Jonathan Cilley bid off the framing for £4 1s. The frame was 30 x 25 and fifteen feet high below the eaves. The house was finished in 1784.

March 15, 1784, "Voted to have the meeting 13 Sabbaths the south side of the Pond." (Now Webster Lake.)

September 15, 1788, "Voted to build a meeting house on the plains near the pond."

May 10, 1790, "Voted to reconsider the vote passed at the last annual meeting to build the meeting house on the Plains near the Pond. Voted to build a meeting house on the Hill in Mr. Hilton's lot."

November 14, 1791, "Voted to build the meeting house on the hill by Capt. Bachelders. Voted to put up the frame by a tax."

"William Blake, Joseph Philbrick, Peter Weare, Lieut. John Rowe and Jonathan Cilley chosen a Committee to build s'd meeting house and settle with Capt. Bachelder for the land." When the deed was made out for the land, Mrs. Bachelder refused to sign it because she understood that there would have to be a "bar" in her house to furnish liquors for the accommodation of the ministers and church goers and she could not approve such customs.

November 22, 1791, "Voted to choose a Committee out of town to fix a place to build a meeting house. Col. Gerrish, Capt.

Wilder and Ens. Moses Garland chosen for the Committee. Jonathan Fifield chosen, provided one of the other should fail."

At a meeting of the town on December 1, 1791, the report of the above committee was read, recommending that the meeting house be "located near Mr. Nathan Rowe's." Whereupon the town voted "not to build said meeting house at the place fixed by said Committee."

"Voted to abate Benj. Celley's Jr. Minister Rate in the year 1789."

August 27, 1792, the town "voted to clear Sam^l. Rano from paying Minister Rate."

On March 18, 1793, voted to build two meeting-houses, one in the east and one in the west part of the town. On April 1 this vote was reconsidered and it was voted that the people in the west part of the town should have "their proportion of the preaching at the house of John Tirrill the present year."

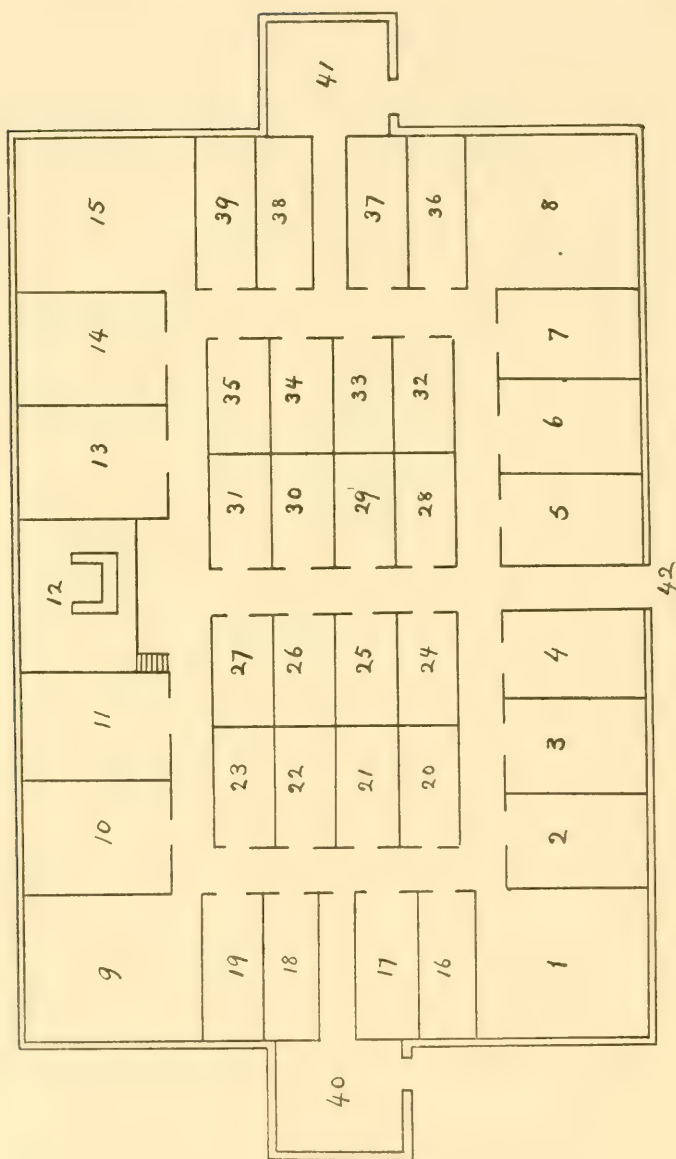

Also, "Voted that the River people (so-called shall have their proportion of the Preaching at the East end of the Town."

The excitement over the location of the new meeting-house resulted in a call for a town meeting on October 10, 1796, to see if the town would vote "to divide the town crosswise in the middle." The record shows that "the article was passed in the negative."

When the frame of the new church was all ready for raising, on May 3, 1796, the pastor, Mr. Badecock, suggested the propriety of introducing a prayer at that stage of the proceedings. The foreman reminded him that there was little time to spare, that the prayer should be short.

It was arranged that the foreman should give the signal for the close of the prayer, which he did by a crashing blow on a stick of timber near the parson, causing him to jump and abruptly close the service in the middle of one of his most ornate periods.

The new building was raised on the site of the present North Church and was dedicated January 5, 1797. It was constructed on the general plan of country meeting-houses of that period (see page 74) and all the work was well done. The members of the building committee were: William Blake, Joseph Philbrick, Peter Weare, John Rowe and Jonathan Cilley. The building cost $2,200 and it is presumed that the pews were sold to help pay the bills, but no record of the sale has been found.

The granite underpinning of the new building came from a large boulder on the farm of Capt. Josiah Bachelder, now the home of ex-Gov. N. J. Bachelder.

About 1795 great opposition to the payment of the "minister tax" arose and so great was the influence of the independent citizens that payment was not rigorously enforced. In most cases where vigorous protest was made the town voted to remit the tax. An article in the warrant for the town meeting of October 21, 1796, was as follows: "To see if the Congregational Society will vote for the collector to make distress for the minister tax on all or any of those who refuse to pay it or to give in any part of it." It does not appear that this general article was acted upon. It is probable that the town preferred to deal with each case separately.

Grave dissensions, from various causes, many of them growing out of the unpleasant discussions regarding the location of the new meeting-house, had weakened the strength of the church and made the church life and the relations between the pastor and the people very unsatisfactory, and in 1809 Mr. Badeock proposed to resign his position as preacher.

In that year the town chose Lieut. William Blake, Capt. Willard Emery and Ensign Samuel Graves a committee to arrange for the dissolution of the official connection of Mr. Badeock with the town as its minister.

At the mutual request of pastor and people an ecclesiastical council, composed of ministers and delegates from the church in Salisbury, the second church in Boscawen, the church in Sanbornton and delegates from the first church in Boscawen, convened at the house of Charles Hilton on July 13, 1809, and dissolved the connection of Mr. Badeock with the society and with the town as a pastor, leaving the inhabitants, as the council expressed it, "as sheep without a shepherd."

Regarding Mr. Badeock, the council declared:

We trust that his useful labors will not be suspended as we view him in good standing to be employed as a minister of the gospel wherever he may have opportunity to labor in the vineyard of our Lord.

Thomas Worcester, Moderator
Ebenezer Price, Scribe

With the resignation of Mr. Badcock was concluded the rigid theological and dogmatic preaching so prevalent in the eighteenth century. Intimate acquaintance with that kind of teaching had destroyed most of the enthusiasm essential to healthy aspirations, and the membership of this church decreased as the years hurried on. The benumbing effect of such influences was soon banished by the rousing, fiery appeals, and even eloquence, of the young, enthusiastic evangelists and exhorters who at the beginning of the century thronged in the eastern and central sections of the town, preaching with a zeal and fervor that swept old and young alike into the excitement of "revivals" where, sometimes, sound reason lost control.

The pendulum swung to the other extreme.

That Mr. Badcock was not a zealous propagandist may be inferred from the fact that he remained in town at his home, busy with his farm, looking closely after his financial interests. Intellectually, he undoubtedly stood among the first citizens of the town; and in his civic and social rectitude was a model for his fellow-townsmen.

From the following paper it is shown that the minister on an annual salary, according to the original agreement, of $200 paid a good price for a pew in his own church:

This may certify whom it may concern that we the undersigned a committee to build a meeting house in this town, For and in consideration of Fifty five dollars paid by Rev. Josiah Badcock have given granted & sold a pew in the meeting house in s^d Town being the front floor pew at the right hand of the pulpit stairs to have and to hold s^d pew with its privileges forever and we the undersigned will warrant and defend the same against the claim of any person or persons whomsoever.

MINISTER AND PARSONAGE LOTS.

In the original grant of the town provision was made for the support of the minister, in the following terms:

That one of the said shares be for the first minister of the Gospel who shall be settled on the said Land & Continue there during his life or until he shall be Regularly Dismissed. To hold to him his heirs & assigns. and one other of the said shares to be for & towards the support of the Gospel Ministry there forever,—and the first hundred acre lots belonging to these two shares shall be laid out as near the place where the Meeting house shall be built as may Conveniently be done, and not be drawn for as the other lots, that there be ten acres of land left and Reserved forever in some Convenient Place within said Boundaries for Building a Meeting house & School House upon & for a Training Field.

Lots numbered 19 W in first range, 19 E in first range and 19 in third range, were selected for the minister, and were afterwards known as the minister lots.

Two lots in the fourth range, Nos. 62 W and 62 E, and one lot, No. 62, in the second range, were known as the parsonage lots.

On June 14, 1810, the town voted to sell the parsonage lots. The sale of these lots and of one school lot, No. 17, was effected on June 19, 1810, as shown by the following entry in the town records, Volume II, page 141.

Vendue held at the meeting house in Andover on the 19th of June 1810.

- 1st. Set up School Lot No. 17 E, in 1st. Range, 100 Acres.—
Struck off to Joseph Fellows 3^d. at $190.00
Capt. Caleb Marston & Capt. William Emery his Bonds men.
- 2^d. Set up Parsonage Lot No. 62 in 4th. Range, 80 Acres,—
Struck off to Philip Cilley at $190.00.
Jonathan Keniston his Bondsman.
- 3^d. Set up Parsonage Lot No. 62 in the 4th. Range.
Struck off to Moses Fuller at $500.00.
Stephen Fellows his Bondsman.
- 4th. Set up Parsonage Lot No. 62 in 2^d. Range Struck off to Elijah Hilton at $917.00.
Charles Hilton, Capt. Willard Emery & Anthony Emery his Bonds men.

The above sums derived from the sale of the parsonage lots constituted the parsonage fund of $1,607. This principal was kept intact and only the income used until the town voted to absorb it.

At first an attempt was made to divide the income from this fund among the various religious societies according to their relative membership, but, as at some periods, societies were hurriedly formed and almost as quickly disbanded, the problem of distribution became very complex and unsatisfactory.

On March 10, 1829, "Voted that the town collect the parsonage money as soon as practicable and pay the debts of the town and hold themselves accountable to the several Religious societies in Andover for the same."

March 8, 1831, "Voted to appropriate the parsonage fund both principal and interest for the use and benefit of the town."

And the "parsonage fund" disappeared.

For a few years after the resignation of Mr. Badcock there was occasional preaching and the form of a Congregational Society was feebly maintained. On May 5, 1809, "Lt. Moses Clough, Joseph Brown Jr. and Ephraim Eastman chosen a Committee to see what there is due from the town to Mr. Badcock." On May 12, 1815, the town paid Mr. Badcock $170.58, the balance due him at the time of his resignation, in 1809.

For several years prior to 1829 the very few Congregationalists joined with representatives of other denominations under the name of the "Union Religious Society," to secure preaching a part of the time.

A so-called "First Congregational Society" in Andover was organized April 14, 1820. Dr. Silas Merrill was moderator and Capt. Josiah Evans, David Buswell, Dr. Silas Merrill, Lieut. Moses Brown and Capt. John Mayo, were the first directors. Benjamin M. Tyler was chosen treasurer and Enoch Merrill, clerk.

This organization continued until 1825, having provided some Congregational preaching during its existence. The last recorded meeting occurred March 7, 1825.

The second association, called the "First Congregational Society in Andover," was formed October 13, 1828, and a constitution was adopted. The object of the society was declared to be "for the furtherance of good order, the diffusion of useful knowledge and the promotion of morality and religion."

Mr. Samuel Kingsbury came to Andover September 24, 1828. In 1828 a committee from the above society, consisting of Dr. Silas Merrill, Josiah Badcock, Esq., and Capt. Enoch Merrill, invited Mr. Kingsbury, then a licensed preacher, to become the pastor of the new church. He accepted, and on January 14, 1829, he was ordained and the church was organized the same day.

Mr. Kingsbury married, December 16, 1829, Mary, daughter of Rev. Josiah Badcock.

At the ordination of Mr. Kingsbury in the meeting-house at East Andover, the following ministers were present:

Rev. John H. Church of Pelham.
 Rev. Phineas Cook of Acworth.
 Rev. Abraham Burnham of Pembroke.
 Rev. Nathaniel Bouton of Concord.

 Rev. Ebenezer Price of Boscawen.
 Rev. Abijah Cross of Salisbury.
 Rev. Benjamin Sargent of New Chester.
 Rev. John S. Winter of Danbury.
 Rev. Joseph Lane of Sanbornton.
 Rev. Job Cushman of Bristol.

Besides the ministers, several delegates from other churches were present, among them Dea. James Kilburn of Boscawen, who afterwards came to Andover to live.

Mr. Kingsbury was engaged as a pastor for five years, but in February, 1831, the society asked for release from its obligation in the contract. This was granted without reluctance, as he had not been supported according to agreement and expectation. One hundred and twenty dollars was due him at that time. On closing his relations with the church he expressed the hope "that ere long a Kind Providence will send you a minister who shall have prudence and wisdom through Divine grace to unite your hearts in the faith and hope of the gospel."

In 1829 Mr. Kingsbury reported to the New Hampshire Missionary Society that "in 1828 only 5 religious papers were taken in Town." "Four of these were Methodist and one was Christian." "At present we are wrapped in the broad mantle of stupidity." And this was only about seven months after his church was organized. He further wrote, "A weekly church prayer meeting has been established but I can hardly say that it has been attended."

After the retirement of Mr. Kingsbury very little Congregational preaching was heard in East Andover: it occurred, however, occasionally, in the Free Baptist Church, from 1839 to 1868.

In 1869 Rev. Howard Moody became the pastor of the East Andover Congregational Church, remaining there until his death, April 20, 1885. The pastors since that time have been:

Rev. Frederick G. Chester, from January 1, 1885, to January 1, 1887.

Rev. Elisha Ayers Keep, during 1887.

Rev. George F. Kenngott, from January, 1888, to January 6, 1889.

Various students from Andover, Mass., preached until April 1, 1890.

Rev. N. F. Carter, from December, 1890, to May 1, 1891.

Rev. Thomas J. Lewis, from March, 1899, to November 28, 1903.

Rev. Ralza E. Andrews, from December, 1903.

The Congregational Society at Andover Centre was first organized at the meeting-house in that village, June 25, 1841.

The ministers present composing the council were:

Rev. Benjamin Foster, Salisbury.

Rev. Isaac Knight, Franklin.

Rev. Nathaniel Sumner, Hill.

Rev. B. P. Stone, secretary New Hampshire Missionary Society.

This society occupied the meeting-house jointly with other denominations.

The original members of this church were:

Brown, Elizabeth	Keniston, Asenath
Buck, Ammi	Keniston, Philip
Buck, Jane A.	Mitchell, Betsey
Cilley, Susan G.	Moulton, Susan
Eastman, Isaac R.	Sargent, Moses
Eastman, Jemima	Sargent, Sarah
Elkins, Lydia
Philip Keniston was chosen clerk.

In 1843 Rev. Nathan Howard was ordained pastor of the churches at Andover Centre and Wilmot, and preached half of the time in each town until 1849, when he devoted his whole time to the church at the Centre for one year. In 1850 the Congregational Society at the Centre united with other denominations and employed Rev. Reuben Kimball as pastor for two years. In 1853 Mr. Howard returned to the Centre Church and served as pastor until the close of 1854.

The second Congregational Church to be formed at Andover Centre was organized November 16, 1880, and took the name of "The Orthodox Congregational Church of Andover Centre." The services were conducted as follows:

Reading of the Scriptures	Rev. W. A. Hadley
Sermon	Rev. C. E. Harrington
Reading of articles of Faith and Covenant	Rev. H. P. Lamprey
Prayer of recognition and Consecration	Rev. E. H. Greeley
Right hand of Fellowship	Rev. Howard Moody
Address to the Church	Rev. J. M. Dutton
Ordaining of Deacons	Rev. F. D. Ayer

The other ministers of the council were Rev. S. H. Barnum, Rev. Caleb B. Tracy and Rev. Edward Buxton.

Rev. Howard Moody served as acting pastor.

In giving reasons for the formation of this church Rev. Howard Moody wrote on December 2, 1880:

The Congregational Church of 1841 by force of circumstances had become limited to East Andover and affords church accommodations to about one third of the town only.

Andover Centre being the Centre of two thirds of the town would afford Church accommodations for that portion of the town.

There was no organized Evangelical Church of any denomination at the Centre or any other part except at E. Andover

The Evangelical Christians at the Centre, though of four different denominations, found upon examination of the Principles, Doctrines and Usages of Congregational Churches that they could cheerfully and harmoniously unite in the formation of a Congregational Church.

Being a small Church they felt unable to sustain a minister and were therefore willing to unite with the Church at East Andover in the support of one man whose labors will be divided between them.

The service of one minister for the two churches still continues. The original members of the church were as below :

William A. Woodbury.

Mrs. Lucy P. Martin Woodbury.

Leonard Palmer.

Mrs. Lois H. Elliott Palmer.

Mrs. Elizabeth Conant Proctor.

Mrs. Charlotte A. S. W. Thompson.

John S. Tucker.

Mrs. Eliza J. Roberts Tucker.

George J. White.

Mrs. Jennie P. Thompson White.

John R. Bates.

Mrs. Nancy J. Morrill Bates.

Mrs. Lucy M. Smith Currier.

Martha J. Clark.

George H. Chase.

Mrs. Nellie M. Martin Chase.

Willis D. Thompson.

William D. Woodbury and Leonard Palmer were chosen deacons.

Rev. Howard Moody resigned his pastorate September 14, 1884. Died April 20, 1885.

Rev. F. D. Chester was the pastor from June 1, 1885, to January 9, 1887.

Rev. Elisha Ayers Keep preached during 1887.

Rev. George F. Kenngott preached during 1888.

Rev. Frederick Brooks Noyes was the pastor from January 13, 1889, to October 6, 1889.

Rev Harvey C. Sawyer preached from June 19, 1892, to April 8, 1894.

Rev. John Thorpe was installed as pastor October 30, 1894, and continued until March 1, 1899.

Rev. T. J. Lewis succeeded Mr. Thorpe, and continued until November 28, 1903.

Rev. Ralza E. Andrews assumed the duties of pastor in 1903.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Soon after the formation of the Congregational society in October, 1828, a "Sabbath" school, the first in town, was formed by Miss Mary Badcock, assisted by two young friends whose names are not now known. The school consisted of forty pupils, arranged in two classes. In 1829, "Sabbath" schools were established in six districts, with between seventy and eighty scholars in all.

In 1829, it was reported to the New Hampshire Missionary Society that "Library books are furnished to most of the scholars. There is still much indifference and much prejudice and opposition to the Sabbath School interest." Bible classes were formed in several neighborhoods by Rev. Mr. Kingsbury in 1829.

THE FREEWILL BAPTIST CHURCH.

The first Freewill Baptist Church in New Hampshire was organized in New Durham, June 30, 1780. This was the first church ever organized under that name, and consisted of seven members, four men and three women. In 1800 there were about fifteen churches of that denomination in New Hampshire.

In 1801 or 1802 a "Monthly Meeting" connected with the church in Gilford, was established in Andover. The meeting for organization was held at the house of Joseph Brown, Sr., on the first fourth day of the sixth month (June 1) in 1803. John Bailey was chosen clerk.

Voted that it was "expedient to have a record book and that brother William True procure the same." The next meeting was "at brother Elijah Watson's and several offered themselves for baptism and went forward." Elder Elijah Watson was ordained as pastor of this church, or society, June 23, 1803.

The meetings were generally held on the first fourth day (Wednesday) of each month.

In the record of the meeting of the eighth month we read: "find union, harmony and determination. Glory, glory, glory to God, there has been eight added by baptism since our last meeting and our number is forty and one."

At a meeting in March, 1804: "took up a labor with brother Joseph Woodbury. Chose Rev. Elijah Watson to write the letter of admonition." Another letter was written in April. In May it was voted to reject Woodbury: but finally the Quarterly Meeting was requested to send a letter of admonition. In compliance with this request a letter signed by William Dana, Jr., and Benjamin Randel was sent to Woodbury and he found himself "disowned and rejected as a disorderly walker."

In 1804 the meeting was divided into classes, and "leaders" were appointed.

In August "set off a class at New Chester."

In September "chose Bro. Pevere class leader at Beech hill; Bro. Brown at the river and Bro. True at New Chester."

In October "chose Bros. Brown and Sawyer class leaders at Beech hill; Bros. Sawyer and Pevere at the river and Bros. Hunkins and True at New Chester."

In October, 1804, the incorporation of the meeting or society was proposed and favored by Elijah Watson and James Tucker, but a considerable number of members opposed it and the plan was abandoned.

November, 1804, "Found difficulties between the meeting and brother Watson and agreed to send for elders Richard Martin and Joseph Young to adjust it."

December, 1804, "Brother Watson manifested that he felt to be out one side."

March, 1805, "After a tedious labor the Council being present approved the proceedings of the church with brother Watson and he made confession and we hope all difficulties are at an end."
"A dark time with us and the ways of Sion mourn."

April, 1806, "A letter of admonition was written to sister Abigail Hilliard for neglecting to meet with the brethren and sisters when she had opportunity."

May, 1808, "Concluded it fit to request liberty for the Quarterly Meeting to sit in the Meeting house"

Voted: "to provide half a load of hay at the meeting house for horses."

It was expected that Elder Benjamin Randel, the founder of these meetings, would be present at the quarterly meeting, but ill health preventing, he sent a letter in which he denounced the doctrine of the "annihilation of the wicked," and declared that believers in that idea should not be fellowshiped. (Elder Benjamin Randel died October 22, 1808, aged fifty-nine years, seven months and twenty-six days.)

January 4, 1809, "Met at Brother James Tucker's and a powerful time such as we have not had for some time and all trials fled."

May 3, 1809, "the power of God came down and a wonderful travail for backsliders,—two came forward and confessed, and three or four fell on the floor and lay more than half an hour in travail."

November 7, 1810, "Met and found Frances Brown and Lucy Tucker still obstinate.—voted to reject them from our faith and fellowship and note them as brawlers and contentious persons.

In January, 1811, it was proposed to dissolve the quarterly meeting, but the Andover monthly meeting voted unanimously for its continuation.

On several occasions in the history of this organization various persons were publicly voted to be "disorderly walkers."

The names of those who, at the time of the organization in 1803, or soon after, became members of the Andover "Monthly Meeting," are given below:

The first meeting in the meeting-house at East Andover, after the resignation of Mr. Badcock, was appointed in March, 1811. Rev. Hezekiah Buzzell was expected to preach, but was unable to come. Knight Smart, William True, Nehemiah D. Sleeper, William D. Cass and Edward B. Rollins, all young men recently "converted," begun the meeting as a prayer meeting and continued it without intermission "until sundown." All of these men afterwards became prominent ministers of the gospel.

On July 1, 1811, the Andover monthly meeting met at the meeting-house and voted that "for the future the monthly meetings shall be wholly for worship and no other business." Previous to this time the meetings had been religious, social and business gatherings.

In the spring of 1813 the society or church voted to "request Elder Peter Clark to labor with the people of Andover half the time the season coming."

Of the meeting of September 18, 1813, it is recorded: "had a wonderful heavenly, powerful, refreshing time, and the Lord owned us by filling our Souls with Joy and gladness. Amen."

On September 20, 1814, James Tucker was chosen "Ruling Elder." In September, 1815, "the church is satisfied that it is the lot of brother Tucker to stand as Ruling Elder."

The following extract from the town records relates to a notable incident in the religious history of the town:

This may certify to whom it may concern that this day William True Jr. and Nehemiah D. Sleeper both of Andover in the County of Hillsborough and State of New Hampshire were ordained and set apart to the work of the Ministry at the meeting house in this town with fasting, prayer and the laying on of the hands of the undersigned:—

William Blasdell	Elijah Shaw Jr.	} Elders
Peter Clark	Benjamin Calley
John Knowles	John Sweet
Noah Piper

Andover June 19, 1817

The above is recorded by the request of the aforesaid Elders.

Attest, Rob't Barber, Town Clerk.

On July 23, 1817, the monthly meeting convened again in the meeting-house.

Troubles in the society or church became frequent, and the interest so waned that no more meetings are recorded until September 4, 1819.

A lack of unity and various other disorders had already destroyed the vitality and the organization of the "meeting" or church.

THE CHRISTIAN BAPTIST CHURCH.

On September 4, 1819, the Christian Baptist Church was organized. John Colby, Stephen Sleeper, Isaac Heath, Person Howe, Peter Young, Nehemiah D. Sleeper and several others, who afterwards withdrew or whose names are not now known, were the original members.

The record reads: "these names are all that started at first except some that with drew, and some Sisters."

THEIR DECLARATION OF FAITH.

We, whose names are underwritten, taking into consideration the situation of the people of God in this place do believe that it is for the glory of God that they should be united; therefore, we do agree to unite together as a Church of God and take his word as the only rule of faith and practice, and to watch over each other for good and deal with each other as the word of God directs:—May God give us grace to live to his glory and at last to be found in his kingdom.

Stephen Sleeper, Joseph Fellows, Nathan Woodbury and Caleb Robie were the first deacons.

On February 9, 1820, Stephen Sleeper was elected the first clerk of the church. During April and May, in 1820, the meetings were held in the meeting-house and called "conference meetings." Soon after the church was formed Elder Peter Young settled in town and preached for this church several years.

In 1820 large additions to the membership of the church followed a notable revival of religious interest in the town. This was generally known as the "great revival." The list of church members in 1820 is as given below:

In April, 1821, the record reads, "the brethren and sisters came together like clouds full of rane."

Subsequently the following persons became members of this church:

Green, Sarah	Sanborn, Sally
Hilton, Elijah	Sanborn, Sophia
Hilton, Nancy, 1st	Scribner, Jonathan
Jackman, Daniel	Stevens, George
Marston, Polly, 2d	Stevens, John
Rollins, Simeon, Jr.	Tilton, Mary
Rowe, Betsey

In addition to the above lists there were fourteen members residing in Boscawen and one in New Chester.

At a meeting on February 9, 1820, Stephen Sleeper was chosen clerk. At the meeting of December, 1821, the society recognized its "duty to give brother Asa C. Morrison a Recommend or Credential to preach the gospel of peas to a dying world."

May 22, 1822, "Chose Jonathan Cilley, Clerk and Joseph Fellows, Deacon."

A portion of the record for May, 1826, reads, the members "met in conference, had a good time and parted in peace."

"In 1822 the membership was 107."

The religious interest was strongly stimulated at this time by frequent meetings at private houses. The houses generally offered for such gatherings were those of

Dea. Joseph Fellows, Willard Emery, Sr., Benjamin Scribner and Ichabod Robie, at East Andover.

Jonathan Cilley, at Boston Hill.

Jonathan Brown, at Beech Hill.

Moses Tucker, at Little Plain.

Simeon Rollins, at Flag Hole.

These meetings were generally appointed for "early candle light, the Lord willing."

At a meeting on May 9, 1827, at the house of Moses Tucker, the church "manifested a desire that things should be set in order."

James Tucker, Elijah Hilton, Jonathan Cilley, Nehemiah D.

Sleeper and Joseph E. Fellows were appointed a committee for that purpose.

At a meeting on May 22, 1827, the above committee reported that their revision of the church list showed 117 members in good standing. Chose Jonathan Cilley, clerk; James Tucker, elder; and Joseph Fellows, deacon.

The following list exhibits the names of the members of the Christian Baptist Church, as reported by the committee on May 22, 1827:

The last record in the church book is of a "conference at brother Moses Tucker's," December 12, 1827.

On account of various internal dissensions, the Christian Baptist Church suffered a gradual disintegration and from the remains there arose two new organizations, known as the Freewill Baptist Church and the Christian Church.

THE FREEWILL BAPTIST CHURCH.

This church was organized at a meeting held at the house of Moses Tucker on January 7, 1830. Elder Elijah Watson and Elder Samuel Robbins attended. James Tucker, James Severance and Joseph Fellows were chosen deacons, and James Bailey was elected clerk.

The original members of this church were:

Bailey, James	Fuller, Moses
Cilley, Betsey	Hilton, Deborah
Cilley, Dearborn	Hilton, Hannah
Cilley, Jonathan	Robie, Paine R.
Cilley, Sally	Rollins, Betsey
Cilley, Susanna	Severance, James

Emery, Joseph	Tucker, James
Emery, Ruth	Tucker, Mary
Emery, Sarah	Tucker, Moses
Emery, William	Weare, John G.
Fellows, Huldah	Weare, Polly
Fellows, Joseph

During the year 1830 the following persons became members of the church:

Bachelder, Josiah	Fuller, Susanna
Bailey, Sarah	Robie, Susan
Buzzell, Ruth	Rollins, Simeon
Emery, Dolly	Severance, Abigail
Emery, H. Gates	Severance, Judith
Emery, Nancy	True, Ruth
Emery, William	Weare, Abigail

Until 1839 the Freewill Baptists and the Christians jointly occupied the meeting-house, now North Church, but in 1839 the Baptists built a church of their own, occupying it with varying prosperity until May 23, 1871, when the building was burned.

The committee for building the church in 1839 consisted of seven members: Dea. James Severens, Jonathan Cilley, Henry Dearborn Cilley, Dea. Josiah Bachelder, James Bailey, Simeon Rollins and Andrew Jackson Tucker.

The land for the house was bought of Elder Elijah Watson for $50, the deed providing that it was to be "occupied by the Freewill Baptist people of Andover for a meeting-house, and for that alone."

The Freewill Baptist Church organization was incorporated March 1, 1839, under the provisions of the statute passed June 3, 1827. Through the efforts of Dea. Josiah Bachelder a fine toned bell, the first in town, weighing 1,027 pounds, was mounted in the tower of the Freewill Baptist Church February 20, 1841, at an expense of $299.15. This bell was first tolled on the death of Mesheck Weare, April 29, 1841.

It has been claimed by members of the Freewill Baptist Church that the modern custom of hand shaking was unusual in this town at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and that the habit, now so prevalent, was introduced, mainly, by the members of that church as an indication of their warm, brotherly fellowship. At first the custom was not fully understood by most of the citizens. It is related by a member of that church, that an ardent lover, in the eastern part of the town, having seen a pious brother cordially shaking the hand of the jealous swain's sweetheart in public, soon sought an opportunity to assure his fair Ruth that, upon the repetition of such familiarity, he "should consider her no longer his friend or affianced." Probably the offense was not repeated, for the happy pair were the ancestors of many descendants.

In 1854 the members of the Freewill Baptist society decided to perfect a new organization.

At a meeting on March 10, they adopted the following constitution:

We whose names are hereunto annexed agree to form ourselves into a religious society to be known as the Free Will Baptist Society at East Andover N. H. assuming all the responsibilities rights and privileges of the Laws of the State made and provided; and subjecting ourselves to the following Constitution.

Article 1. This society shall hold its annual meeting the first Saturday in February, except the first, which shall be the third Saturday in March, at such time and place as shall be stated in the notice for the same. The first, however, to be regulated by agreement.

Article 2, At each annual meeting the society shall decide by vote what sum of money shall be raised for the support of preaching and other expenses for the current year.

Article 3. At each annual meeting the society shall choose a Moderator to preside, a Clerk who shall also act as Treasurer and a board of directors consisting of three.

Article 4. The duties of the Moderator and the Clerk and Treasurer shall be the same as is usual to such offices.

Article 5. The Directors shall superintend the raising and expending of all moneys voted by the society and shall see that all other votes of the society are properly and faithfully executed and that all liabilities are regulated and met agreeable to the statute made and provided,

Article 6. The Directors may call special meetings if they think proper and it shall be their duty this to do whenever a majority of the members shall request. Notices of all meetings shall be given by posting up two warrants, one at the place of worship and the other in some public place in the vicinity, at least eight days before the holding of said meeting, with the exception of the first meeting which shall be as before stated.

Article 7 Anyone may become a member of this society by having his name affixed to the Constitution; and any member removing from the vicinity of this society shall be considered free from all liabilities occurring after said removal.

Article 8. Any amendments or alterations may be made to this constitution by a vote of the society at any regular meeting provided that notice of the same be given in the warrant for calling said meeting.

Notice is hereby given that Henry D. Celley, Ziba Severance, Henry A. Weymouth, Thomas Haley, and their associates, have formed themselves into a Religious Society at East Andover N. H., assuming all the responsibilities, rights and privileges of the laws of the State made and provided.

At the first meeting in March, 1854, W. A. Bachelder was chosen clerk and William Emery, James Connor and Daniel Weymouth, directors.

The following is from the pen of W. A. Bachelder, the clerk of the society:

Free Will Baptist Meeting Houses at East Andover.

The first one was raised on June 25 1839 without any ardent spirits. It was dedicated Dec. 25, 1839; sermon by Elder Ebenezer Fisk of New Hampton; Elders Joseph Elliott of Franklin, Nahum Brooks, E. Watson and David Moody assisting in the service. James Monroe Bailey wrote an original hymn which was sung.

This house was burned May 23, 1871 from a fire originating from an engine on the railroad;—also burning Major N. Emerson's house. In due time the society by their agent H. A. Weymouth entered a suit against the railroad for damage and after much delay recovered from the Northern Railroad Co. $1500. which enabled the society to pay the debts contracted in building the new house, above the sale of pews and several contributions. The cost of the new house was about $2900. It was dedicated June 3, 1874: sermon by Rev. J. E. Dame of Lowell Mass., able and eloquent, more than an hour long. Rev. J. C. Osgood of Contoocook read the Scriptures and the prayers were by Rev. Mr. Martin, Rev. J. Monroe Bailey and Rev. C. B. Griffin. Fine music was furnished by the choir.

The records of this church, save for the business meetings, have not been found; but the following list of members in 1893, was discovered among the records of annual meetings:

April 4, 1820

The unwonted formality of this organization seems to have exhausted the vitality of the society, for no further record of progress or existence has been found.

On May 30, 1810, a Freewill Baptist Church was organized at the Centre. In 1810 Elder Ebenezer Chase was ordained as pastor. Jonathan Keniston was the ruling elder and Moses Sleeper was deacon.

This church was scattered in 1813 or 1814.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The "Monthly Meeting," 1801 to 1819, was practically a Freewill Baptist organization. A lack of thorough organization and discipline, however, permitted persons of divergent, sometimes fantastic, religious views and creeds, to become members of the society and it finally became a house divided against itself. Under these conditions, any voluntary organization would soon fall to pieces. To avoid such a catastrophe a new organization was devised which, by adopting two names in its title, one referring to the former affiliation of most of its members; and, by taking "the Word of God as the only rule of faith and practice," as their declaration of faith, they hoped to form a platform on which all the prevalent evangelical creeds could find room.

Out of this condition sprang, on September 14, 1819, the "Christian Baptist" Church which, with varying prosperity, existed until a real Freewill Baptist Church was formed in 1830. The first deacons of the Christian Baptist Church were Stephen Sleeper and Joseph E. Fellows, followed by Nathan Woodbury and Caleb Robie.

The withdrawal of the Baptist element, to form the new church, left the "Christian" portion of the Christian Baptist organization by themselves. From this time, January 7, 1830, dates the separate organization of the "Christian Church" in Andover.

From 1831 to 1839 the meeting-house, now the North Church, was used jointly by the Freewill Baptists and the Christians, generally on alternate Sundays. In 1839 the Freewill Baptists erected a house for themselves, leaving the old meeting-house in the hands of the Christian denomination.

At the town meeting on March 10, 1840, it was voted that "the town relinquish their claim to the East Meeting house provided that the proprietors or some religious society will repair the same."

The town meetings had been held, generally, in the meeting-house, but it was now felt that the frequent occupation of the building by a political gathering with the usual accessories and tumult, was not appropriate for a house of worship.

A meeting of the proprietors of the "East Meeting House" was held at the meeting-house on March 16, 1840.

Article 3 in the warrant read: "To see if the Proprietors will vote to repair said house."

Article 4. "To see how said house shall be repaired."

The owners of thirty and two-thirds pews voted for repairing the church and those representing eighteen and one-third pews voted against it.

Those voting for repairing were:

Friend Bailey,	Henry Emery,
Mrs. Bachelder,	Joseph Fellows,
Anna Brown,	Stephen Fellows,

Joseph B. Emery,	Timothy Weare.
William Emery,

A committee, consisting of William Parsons, John Rowell and Aaron A. Palmer, was appointed to appraise the pews in said house. On March 26, 1840, the committee reported that "the pews in the floor are worth $8.50 per pew and those in the gallery $1.00 per pew. In coming to this conclusion; 1st we find the land is worth $50.00; 2^d the underpinning is worth $100.00; 3^d the house is worth $252.50. Making in all $402.50."

A committee for repairing the meeting-house consisted of Capt. Caleb Marston, James Marston, Sr. and Capt. William Graves. Willard Emery was the financial agent.

The repairs of the house were finished at a cost of $2,146.42 and the house was rededicated December 3, 1840. The repairs and the dedication were under the direction of the Christian denomination and the house was used by that denomination until about 1862. At the dedication of the church Elder Mark Fernald of Kittery, Me., preached the sermon. He was known to be strongly opposed to any instrumental music in church and he had been promised that none should be used, but he felt it unlikely that the promise could be kept. Accordingly when it was time for him to "give out the hymn," he said: "Let us sing and fiddle to the praise of God" hymn No. —.

The bell now hanging in the belfry of the North Church was placed in position November 10, 1840. The money for the purchase of the bell was raised by subscription and forty-six names were on the subscription list. The bell was bought by Clark Durgin of John Baker of Boston, on October 25, 1840. It weighed 844 pounds and cost, delivered, $242.75. The bell was first used on the evening of November 10, 1840, to celebrate the election of William Henry Harrison, "Old Tippecanoe," as president of the United States. A small minority of the subscribers for the bell, representing $16, were adherents of General Harrison. The majority objected to the use of the bell for such partisan political purposes, and much bitter ill feeling was developed.

METHODIST CHURCH.

A Methodist society was organized at the Centre in 1827, Maj. William Proctor being the leading member of the organization. Meetings were held in the church at stated intervals and were well attended. The membership at its most prosperous period is believed to have been about thirty.

The first preachers in 1827 were Matthew and Richard Newhall. From 1827 to 1838 the full list of preachers is as follows:

- 1828, William Kimball and Sereno Fisk.
- 1829, John Adams and Caleb Bede.
- 1830, J. B. H. Norris and Sylvester Williams.
- 1831, J. B. H. Norris and S. Harket.
- 1832, Nathaniel Ladd and S. P. Williams.
- 1833, J. W. Morey and M. Quimby.
- 1834, Jonas Scott and H. Clark.
- 1835, E. H. Ladd.
- 1836, John L. Smith ("Hallelujah John").
- 1837, John L. Smith.
- 1838, A. Folsom and D. Jones.

After this date there was only occasional preaching and the organization gradually died out.

In 1832 the Andover circuit, embracing the Andover and Boscawen churches, was formed. A notable camp meeting was held in June, 1834, on the plains near the schoolhouse by the societies of this denomination. Many tents were pitched, the speakers were numerous and the meeting continued for four days. During its best days the Andover society was widely known for its zeal and enthusiasm.

THE SO-CALLED UNITARIAN SOCIETY.

The following account of the organization of a Unitarian society, with a list of members, was found among the papers of Mr. Elijah Hilton. This paper has doubtless been the foundation for the statement that a Unitarian Church was formed in Andover in 1830.

A careful examination of the names in the list of members will disclose the fact that if it was a Unitarian Church, as the religious world has always understood those terms, then those members were not aware of the fact.

Benaiah Bean was a well-known, enthusiastic, evangelical exhorter, as was also Peter E. Swett. Joseph E. Fellows, Stephen Fellows, Asa C. Morrison and Nehemiah D. Sleeper were at that time all well-known evangelical preachers, whose faith and practice were diametrically opposed to the doctrines and thought of Unitarians. The use of the word "Unitarian" arose, no doubt, from a misinterpretation of its meaning. The founders were evidently hoping for a "union" church. No further record of this organization has been found.

The following preamble and statement present in a somewhat ambiguous way, the aims and hopes of the society:

Whereas religion and morality grounded on Evangelical principals lay the firmest foundation for happiness here and hereafter and in order to cultivate and support this grand principle it becomes necessary that men associate together or form themselves into Societys for the mutual benefit and happiness of each other and such is the lot of human nature in this imperfect State that it becomes necessary for every Society to form and adopt certing rules or regulations for a ruling principle of government for the mutual happiness of the whole:—

Therefore we the undersigners have formed ourselves into a Society by the name of the first Unitarian Society in Andover and agree that our proportion of the interest-money be appropriated for the use of S'd Society:—

The following names marked "list of church members," but with no other words or dates, were found with the preceding declaration and list of members. It is highly probable that this is a later list of the same membership, containing additional names. The first list is obviously incomplete, since it contains no names of women. The following list contains the names of many of the wives of men named in the first list:

THE UNIVERSALIST SOCIETY.

The Universalist society was organized in 1819, as set forth in the following records:

At a meeting of a number of Brethren in Andover, believing in the restoration of all men through Jesus Christ, attended on Brother Peter Fifield while he read a statement of the faith once delivered to the saints, and after a few preliminary remarks on the same, voted unanimously that Brother Peter Fifield be Chairman of this Meeting and Jere E. Tirrill Clerk Voted, unanimously that the Brethren present form themselves into a society for the support of the Gospel, by the name of the First Universal Society in Andover.

Voted, that the annual meeting of this society be holden on the first Tuesday in March.

Voted, that it be the duty of the Clerk to notify the annual meeting.

Voted, that John Tirrill, Benj. Thompson and Samuel Elkins be a committee to transact all secular concerns of this society.

Voted, that this meeting be adjourned to the first Tuesday in March.

March 2 1819

Met according to adjournment.

Voted, that the Brethren petition the Legislature to be incorporated by the name of the First Universal Society of Andover N. H.

Voted, to choose a committee to form a petition and present the same to the Legislature for the above purpose

Meeting dismissed.

Jere E. Tirrill, Clerk

Peter Fifield, Chairman

On the petition of Robert Barber, Peter Fifield, Tilton Elkins and their associates, the society was incorporated by Act of the Legislature, in accordance with the terms of the petition, June 24, 1819.

In 1820 $16 was raised to defray the ordinary expenses for the year.

The meetings of this society were generally held at private houses. Those most frequently used were the homes of Robert Barber, Samuel Brown, John J. Bryant, Reuben Dearborn, Gershom Durgin and Peter Fifield. Meetings were held occasionally in the schoolhouse in District No. 10, in the Franklin House at the Centre and in the tavern of Dudley Dearborn.

No record has been found of the membership before 1827; nor has any record been found of the ministers during the existence of the society. It is known that Robert Bartlett preached occasionally soon after the formation of the society. Walter Harriman of Warner, afterwards governor of this state, preached frequently between 1843 and 1850. Rev. Nathan R. Wright of Washington, N. H., preached occasionally between 1847 and 1853.

In 1825 it is recorded that the following persons withdrew

Daniel Huntoon,	Tilton Elkins,
Isaiah Langley,	Daniel Mitchell,
Joseph S. Huntoon,	John Huntoon,
Richard Potter,	Jona. Sanborn,
Peter Fifield,	James Proctor.

As all of the above names, except those of Richard Potter and James Proctor, appear in a subsequent list, it is probable that the withdrawal was temporary.

The record of membership on March 6, 1827, is as given below :

Barber, Robert	Kimball, Joseph

THE UNION MEETING-HOUSE AT THE CENTRE.

The earliest record concerning this meeting-house is the following, found on a single sheet of paper:

At a meeting of a number of inhabitants of Andover, holden at the house of Peter Fifield Esq. on Saturday the tenth day of Nov. 1821, to consult on the propriety of building a meeting-house on the parad near Peter Fifield's Esqr's house the following votes were taken, viz.

1st. Chose William Proctor Esqr., Chairman:

2d. Chose Jere Tirrill, Clerk.

3d. Voted, to choose a committee to determine on the propriety of building a meeting-house.

4th. Chose Lieut. Daniel Huntoon, Lieut. Moses Brown, Peter Fifield Esqr. Jonathan Brown and W^m Proctor Esqr., Committee.

Said Committee report that, in their opinion, it is expedient to build a meeting-house.

5th. Voted, to choose a committee to superintend the building of said house and procure further subscriptions.

6th. Chose, Jonathan Brown, James Tucker Esqr., Peter Fifield Esqr. Lieut. Daniel Huntoon and Benjamin Gale, Committee.

7th Voted to build a two story house.

8th Voted, to refer the size and model of said house to the committee.

9th Voted, that it be the duty of the Clerk to make out a certificate to James Tucker Esqr. of his appointment, signed by the chairman and clerk.

10th Voted that this Meeting be adjourned to this place to be holden on Thursday Nov. 29 inst., ten o'clock A. M.

Jere E. Tirrill, Clerk.

A second adjournment was made and the meeting was finally held December 1, 1821, with the following action:

1st The committee to whom was referred the size and model of said house presented a model which was accepted.

2d. Voted to build a porch instead of a cubalow.

3d. Voted that the frame be vendued to the lowest bidder.

4th. Voted to choose a committee to survey the timber and inspect it, and sit the value on the same.

5th Chose Jere Tirrill and Aaron Cilley

6th. Voted to set it up to vendue.

7th. Chose William Proctor Esqr. auctioneer.

8th Struck off to William Cilley at one hundred and eighty dollars.

9th Voted to have the house raised by the fifteenth of May next.

The only record found of the date of raising the frame of the meeting-house is in a letter from Amos B. Proctor to his brother John, then in Rhode Island, and dated Sunday, June 23, 1822. He wrote: "Last Thursday the meeting-house was raised; the weather was very unfavorable, being rainy the most part of the day, but no person received any injury except Mr. Daniel Smith. A large joist fell from the beams, one end struck him on the head, knocked him down, split the jawbone in the centre of his chin and injured his shoulder." "He is fast recovering."

"This splendid edifice is 46 feet N. & S., 42 feet E. & W., 22 feet posts and there is to be a steeple with a 25 foot spire instead of a cupola."

This account fixes the date of "raising" as June 20, 1822. The following item, in the same letter, will be of interest in connection with the history of the schoolhouses. "There is nothing done to the schoolhouse frame yet but it will be finished before the winter school begins."

The Universalists, Methodists, Christians, and several persons not members of any church, united in a spirit of harmony to build the long-desired edifice, which cost $2,200, and was finished in 1824. It was located on the northeastern section of the "Common" or "parade ground," fronting south towards the turnpike. The dimensions were given in Mr. Proctor's letter. The entrance and the usual interior entrance hall were at the south end. A gallery was built on the east, north and west sides and reached by staircases in the southeast and southwest corners of the entrance hall. The pulpit was at the middle of the south end of the auditorium and was originally furnished with a "sounding-board," which was finally discarded. In each of the southeast and southwest corners of the lower floor was a box pew ten or twelve feet square. There were two ranges of pews in the central part of the house and one range on the east and west sides respectively. The side ranges were separated from those in the central part of the house by aisles running the whole length of the room. The floor of the side pews was six or eight inches higher than that of the central pews. The floor of two or three pews at the north end of the central rows of pews was raised like that of the side pews and the church choir occupied such of these pews as they needed. The backs of all the pews were high and perpendicular, with a molding on top and projecting about three eighths of an inch on each side of the top. This moulding was a source of acute discomfort to all occupants above the ordinary stature.

The original construction of the interior continued until 1849, when the space over the central pews and pulpit, and between the galleries, was floored over to construct a hall in the upper story for the Andover Academy. (See Academy.)

No alcoholic liquors were provided on the day of dedication in 1824 and all the exercises were conducted in perfect harmony by the several representatives of the different denominations.

As indicating the liberal and Christian spirit of the people, it may be said that so far as now known, no church quarrels ever arose from the joint occupation of the building by different denominations.

Of the dedication services, the Rev. Frederick Lyman Batchelder, born in Andover in 1815, wrote in 1906 as follows:

When the Andover Meeting house (at Mousam) was dedicated they got up a select choir. Dr. Tilton Elkins was the leader and the leading tenor singer; Mr. Odlin Batchelder was the leading bass and Mrs. Huldah Batchelder led the soprano singers. They scoured the country round for instruments and players and were quite successful. Of course they had no pipe organ, piano or melodeon nor had they a double bass viol:—but they had a violincello, violins and clarionettes. Also they had an instrument called an ancient Jewish Cymbal:—It might have been that,—but whatever it was it appears to have been the last of its race. I have never seen the like of it since. The choir met for rehearsal in Esquire Daniel Huntoon's hall, whose house stood east of the meeting house on the same side of the way, twenty rods, perhaps, distant. They marched to the Meeting house singing and all of the instruments, including the violincello, playing. That was the first choir I ever saw. It was born for that occasion and, true to its nature, had a little incipient quarrel. Mrs. Huldah was appointed to lead the treble singers; her place of course was at the head of the seat. Nabby the pretty young daughter of the "Squire" was chosen next. Nabby was much disgruntled at being superseded by a woman of 47 while she was 18 or 20. Nabby crowded and Mrs. Huldah had only a small portion of the seat and had to crowd pretty hard to hold even that. Of the dedicatory services I remember but little; there was a great crowd and ministers of all denominations were present and took part in the exercises as it was a Union Meeting house. But the anthem sung on that occasion was deeply impressed on my mind. The first line was:—

“Strike the Cymbal, roll the tymbal, let the trump of triumph sound;” and that was the spirit of the whole anthem. This was the only meeting of that choir that I ever heard of.

The anthem mentioned by Rev. Mr. Batchelder is found in the “Bridgewater Collection of Sacred Music,” 12th edition, 1823. The words were as below :

Strike the cymbal, roll the tymbal, let the trump of triumph sound.
Powerful slinging, headlong bringing proud Goliath to the ground.
From the river, rejecting quiver, Judah’s hero takes the stone.
Spread your banners, shout hosannas, Battle is the Lord’s alone.

See advances, with songs and dances,

All the bands of Israel’s daughters. Catch the sound ye hills and waters.

God of thunder, rend asunder all the power Philistia boasts.
What are nations? What their stations? Israel’s God is Lord of hosts.
What are haughty monarchs now? Low before Jehovah bow.
Pride of princes strength of kings. To the dust Jehovah brings.
Praise him, Praise him, exulting nations praise;
Praise him, Praise him, exulting nations praise.
Hosanna, Hosanna, Hosanna.

The following bills throw interesting light on prices at that time:

SUBSCRIPTION FOR PEWS.

The following is the only record of any choice of pews before the meeting-house was finished:

Know all men by these presents that we the Subscribers of Andover in the County of Merrimack and State of New Hampshire, hereby agree and bind ourselves our administrators, executors and assigns to pay to Joseph Brown Jr., one of the committee for building and finishing the meeting house, lately raised on the turnpike road in said Andover, the sum set against our names for the number of pew on the floor of said meeting house, whenever said house shall be handsomely finished in consideration of said Brown, or the committee of said meeting house, giving us a deed of the pew or pews set against our names, as aforesaid.

On October 16, 1824, the committee acknowledged the receipt of $45 from Jonathan Keniston and Jonathan Keniston, Jr., for pew No. 37.

It appears that the remaining pews were advertised for sale at a "vendue." A portion of a notice has been found indicating a postponement of the "vendue" to a later date, adding a provision that purchasers of pews may pay all, or a portion of the price, with a note payable at the end of one year.

The following is the only list found of the purchasers at the "vendue":

The Rev. Thomas Worcester, then preaching in Salisbury, was the first minister employed at this church on a fixed salary. He was engaged to preach one sermon per month for $80 per year. Soon after, and for many years, the meeting-house was used by the Universalists, Congregationalists, Methodists and the Christian or Freewill Baptists, each occupying the pulpit, in turn, for one Sunday, in the order named. In 1856 the full control of the house was transferred to the Christian denomination, who continued in charge until the entire building came under the control of Proctor Academy.

On January 14, 1833, a religious society called "The Andover Religious Union Society" was formed at Andover Centre. The names of the original members are given in the following list:

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AT ANDOVER CENTRE.

This church was organized August 19, 1843, at the Centre meeting-house, under the supervision of Elder Elijah Shaw, adopting "the New Testament as their rule of Faith and Practice."

Nathan Woodbury was chosen clerk and Stephen Cilley and Jonathan Keniston, deacons.

The church was admitted to the Merrimaek County Conference of Christians on September 5, 1843.

Rev. John Burden was the first minister.

W. S. Morrill became pastor on July 18, 1846, but left for another field of labor in October, 1847. In August, 1848, he returned to take charge of the church. At that time there were eighteen members of the church.

W. H. Nason was chosen pastor in 1854.

Two members were added in 1854 and ten in 1858.

S. W. Whitney was chosen pastor in March, 1859.

H. C. Dugan and Thomas Bartlett were pastors after Mr. Whitney.

Two members were added in 1864.

The records close on November 7, 1875, with an account of a "communion season" at which "Elder A. H. Martin presided."

THE UNITARIAN SOCIETY.

The Congregational Unitarian Society was organized in 1879. Its brief creed, "The object of this society shall be united effort in the study and practice of Christianity," is in harmony with the constitution of the National Conference of Unitarian Churches, which declares: "These churches accept the religion of Jesus, holding, in accordance with His teaching, that practical religion is summed up in love to God and love to man."

CHURCH AT WEST ANDOVER.

The fifth church in town was built at West Andover by the "Union Enterprise Society." It was located on the triangular lot at the junction of the Fourth New Hampshire and Grafton turnpikes, and was completed in March, 1882.

The society was formed as a non-sectarian organization and its members were disposed to waive the discussion of their various sectarian affiliations and unite cordially in the simple worship of God. In this spirit the building was dedicated August 31, 1882. The dedication sermon was preached by Rev. William Morrill. The pastors have been: William Morrill, Christian; William Love and James D. Legro, Methodist; with the following incomplete list of those who have occupied the pulpit at various times. This list is not from records, but from the recollection of members of the congregation, and they are not arranged in chronological order: Charles Trussell, Guy Richardson, D. E. Burns, George B. Goodrich, Dana Colton, C. W. Martin, H. J. Foote, Mark Roberts, Anthony Roberts, J. W. Bean, E. N. Larnour, T. A. Tuttle and W. Bacon.

REVIVALS.

The development of great excitement among the people of all ages by the fervid preaching of ministers and "exhorters" was called, in the early part of the nineteenth century, a "Revival," or "Reformation."

The success of many of these enthusiastic preachers in rousing the most careless or hardened sinners from their dangerous lethargy, was so great, that they went from town to town in this section of the state exhibiting remarkable power in exciting, persuading and controlling the more impressionable natures in their audiences. In many cases the excitement produced many of the phenomena of hysteria, several people, mostly young women, falling to the floor aimlessly struggling and often averring their inability to rise again until certain religious experiences were avowed by some friend in the congregation.

In many cases the newly-awakened interest in religious thought and action became a permanent and controlling factor in the life of the individual, but it should be as frankly stated that when the excitement ceased a large percentage of the "converts" suffered a relapse, were reckoned as "backsliders," but were often re-converted at each succeeding wave of religious enthusiasm.

1801.—The first "revival" in town occurred in 1801-'02, under the preaching of Freewill Baptist ministers, and resulted in the formation of the so-called "Monthly Meeting."

1810.—A revival occurred under the preaching of Elder Ebenezer Chase and many converts joined the Monthly Meeting.

1814-'15.—A revival occurred, but it was of short duration.

1816.—During the preaching of Elder John Crocket of Sanbornton, at East Andover, during a portion of 1816, a marked revival occurred, which continued several weeks.

1819.—The great revival or "Reformation" occurred in the winter of 1819-'20, under the preaching of Elder Peter Young, assisted by the local minister, Elder Nehemiah D. Sleeper. The "awakening" was widespread and converts were made in every section of the town. Nathan Woodbury was the first person baptized and seven others were immersed the same day by Elder Nehemiah D. Sleeper. As a result of this "reformation" a church was organized with 107 members. This was the first of the organizations that finally became the Christian Church.

1824.—Another revival occurred in 1824, but no definite record has been found.

1826.—In July Elder Asa C. Morrison, assisted by Jonathan Prescott, a noted "exhorter," held a series of meetings at various houses in the eastern part of the town, resulting in a revival of considerable magnitude. Several persons in the central section of the town experienced religion and many persons joined the "church," which, at that time, was "Freewill Baptist," "Christian Baptist" or "Christian," as the tentative theological opinions of each group of individuals found opportunity for expression.

1831.—There was a great increase of religious interest awakened and stimulated by a series of neighborhood meetings in private houses and in the district schoolhouses. In 1832 these meetings were held under the direction of Elder Elijah Watson and Elder Alvah Buzzell of the Freewill Baptist Church. During the months of July, August and September Elder Watson baptized thirty persons at the "white sands" at Loon Pond.

1839.—A noted revival, in 1839, in the western part of Andover and in Wilmot, was an incident of the preaching of Elder Watson, who, himself, "baptized 41 happy souls."

Referring to the above rite, he wrote: "ten times have I been down into the frozen stream to attend to this solemn and delightful command,—day and night have I travelled to attend meetings and never did I enjoy better health than at present." He was then sixty-two years old.

1839.—The Merrimack Christian Conference was held at the house of Reuel Long on the first Tuesday in September, 1839. Elders John Harriman, Benjamin Calley, Richard Davis, Nehemiah D. Sleeper, Robert Allen, Jacob B. Burnham, Joseph Emery Fellows, John Gillingham, Joseph Elliott, J. C. Blodgett, Timothy Cole and T. F. Barry were present. From the zealous preaching of these noted "Christian" orators there followed a great religious revival resulting in many conversions.

1840.—A revival was the result of the preaching of Elder Benjamin Calley.

1841.—In the winter of 1841-'42 an extensive revival followed the enthusiastic preaching of Elder J. C. Blodgett and Elder Benjamin Calley. Elder Blodgett wrote: "Great displays of Divine power are seen among the people. I think it exceeds all I ever witnessed before." Eighteen converts were baptized. Thirteen were baptized through the ice at the old fulling mill at East Andover, January 23, 1842.

1842.—In 1840 William Miller began to preach and to prophesy the second advent of Christ, and he and his followers claimed the ability to foretell the exact date of His coming. In 1842 Miller came to Andover, preaching with great unction: "Behold the Bridegroom Cometh go ye out to meet him." In some localities and in some households the excitement was intense. In cases of complete, or even partial belief, the effect on the family and individual life was anything but salutary. The farmer neglected his fields and the mechanic laid aside his tools, feeling that the things of this world were of no more value. The farmer gave away to all who came, all of his crops that had not been eaten by his visiting religious brethren and their horses. Some of the more zealous enthusiasts went so far as to make their white robes in which they were to ascend to meet the "bridegroom" as he came. As the predicted day of "doom" for the wicked passed without incident, bitter disappointment, with empty barns, cellars and bins, nearly crushed the spirit of many a former hopeful soul.

MINISTERS IN ANDOVER.

The lack of complete records of most of the religious societies in town makes it exceedingly difficult to determine what ministers have preached in the various churches. The list of preachers for the Unitarian society is given in the history of that society, that for the Congregational societies is easily ascertained, but for most of the other societies the recollections of the people are the only source of information.

The names of the preachers in the First Congregational Church, Badcock's; the second, Kingsbury's; the third at the Centre and the later Congregational Churches at East Andover and at the Centre, are all given in the accounts of these different churches, and are probably complete. For the first twenty years of the nineteenth century many ministers preached in the meeting-house at the East Village, but it was difficult then, and impossible now, in the absence of definite records, to learn the denominational affiliations of all those preachers. It is quite doubtful if they knew themselves; for many of them were Freewill Baptists and Christian Baptists or Christians by turns.

The following lists are, therefore, not only incomplete, but it is more than likely that some names are improperly classed, but they are given as a general guide. As no complete chronological order is possible now, they are arranged alphabetically:

BAPTIZING LOCALITIES.

The frequent and extensive "revivals" at East Andover, from 1803 to 1840, conducted under the management of "evangelists" and "exhorters," and by Christian-Baptist, Freewill Baptist and Christian ministers, all of whom believed in the efficacy and necessity of the ordinance of baptism, led to the selection of certain spots on the shore of Loon Pond, or on the grassy banks of the outlet of that body of water, for the celebration of the ordinance of baptism.

For many years a spot known as "White Sands," on the south shore of Loon Pond, was a favored locality for the immersion of converts. At this point the bottom of the pond was clear and firm, mostly of white sand, and sloped gradually toward deep water, an important element of safety, while the shore was in itself attractive and easily reached—an ideal spot for the religious ceremony. Another locality, perhaps more frequently used, was on the west bank of the mill-stream, just below the old fulling mill. Here, as at the "White Sands," was ample opportunity for several hundred people to witness the final act of the converts' consecration.

Of the use of this baptismal font in the winter, Mr. W. Adams Batchelder wrote as follows:

In the winter of 1841-2 an unusually large number of persons in the eastern part of the town became religious and thirty one were baptized in the mill-stream on a very cold and windy day. It was necessary to cut through ice five inches thick and open a space of sufficient size to admit the minister and the candidate to the water. So severely cold was the weather that ice formed on the open water in two minutes and the men and women who came up, one after the other from the chilly flood were immediately confined in their movements by the garments which froze solid around them. When the last hymn was sung and the ceremony was over the persons baptized were carried away to be thawed out and supplied with dry and comfortable clothing. I never heard of a case where one of the subjects of such an unattractive baptism took cold through the rite.

At the Centre village, the place usually selected for the baptismal ceremony was at the north bank of the river just below the Seavey Bridge. It was a pleasant, accessible spot in mild weather, but in the months of an ordinary New Hampshire winter nothing less than the supreme exaltation of fervid religious enthusiasm or the quiet, unswerving zeal of the ancient Puritan, could sustain the patient, cheerful air of those who went down into the icy water.

The writer has seen young men and delicate young women immersed in the river at this spot on a cold, blustering day in midwinter, when the water was only reached by cutting through fifteen inches of ice. Icicles four inches long hung from their hair and clothes before they could reach any shelter.

SERVICES BY CLERGYMEN OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The first Roman Catholic service in town was held in a small building near the residence of John Weare. It occurred while the railway was building through the eastern part of the town. The next meeting was held in the North Meetinghouse, which was crowded with people of all denominations assembled to see and hear the unfamiliar but impressive service. The meeting was conducted by a priest from Connecticut, who was zealously ministering to the spiritual needs of the Catholic laborers along the line of the Northern Railway, from Franklin to West Lebanon. Since that period services have been held frequently in town by Catholic priests from neighboring cities and towns.

SCHOOLS IN ANDOVER.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

On the "plan" of the township (then New Breton) made and approved in 1753, there were three divisions marked "School Lots," and numbered 17 W. and 17 E. in first range and 17 in third range. These lots, two of which contained about one hundred acres, and one about eighty acres, were drawn and set apart on July 4, 1753, for the future benefit of the schools in the township.

August 16, 1779, the town voted to sell school lot No. 17, and lay out the money for "schooling." But, apparently, the lot was not sold till June 19, 1810.

The first settlement in town was made in 1761 and for many years the population increased so slowly that no schools were provided until 1781.

1789. March 16. "Voted not to raise money for schooling."

In 1714 the following action of the Legislature provided for the support of churches and schools:

And it is hereby further enacted and Ordained that for building and repairing of meeting-houses schoolhouses and allowing a salary to a Schoolmaster of each Town within this Province The Selectmen in their respective Towns shall raise money by an equal Rate and assessment upon the Inhabitants in such manner and form as they doe for defraying of other Town charges. And every Town within this Province shall from and after the publication hereof Provide a schoolmaster for the supply of the Town.

In June, 1789, all the school laws of New Hampshire were repealed and a new code enacted. The support of schools was provided for in the following item:

In each town an assessment to be computed at the rate of five pounds for every twenty shillings of their proportion of public Taxes, for the time being, and so for a greater or Lesser sum.

The Andover schools were supported by the school tax provided by this statute: to which was added, from year to year, such extra appropriations as seemed desirable.

1791. "Voted to raise 150 dollars to Hire Schooling."

"This year the river people, so called, have received their proportion of the school money up to the year 1791." Two schools and two teachers this year.

A law passed in 1719 required each town with fifty or more householders to be constantly provided with a schoolmaster to teach reading and writing. Andover complied with the law as soon as the means of its inhabitants would permit.

Most of the earlier children born in Andover received their education at the fireside. They learned to write on birch bark, read the New England Primer, the Bible and the Psalter. It should be recorded here that an inspection of the letters and records of the day will show that the penmanship was quite as good as that of the present day. The writer has seen the work of Ephraim Eastman's pen, from 1800 to 1830, which probably cannot be equaled by any person in town today.

The spelling of that time was unique, but considering the means for acquiring a knowledge of orthography, the output was quite as good as most of it at the present time.

There were few or no arithmetics, and as late as 1815 or 1820, the arithmetic "rules" and the "sums" given for solution, were all in manuscript. Much of this work in neatness and character would put to shame the work of our much-praised schools of the present day. Dillworth's spelling book came into use about 1770. After the Revolutionary War English grammar was introduced into the schools as a standard study, and geography was taught in some schools. It is believed that Ash's grammar was the first text-book on that subject used in the town schools.

1793. "Voted to raise £30 for supporting a school the ensuing year exclusive of what the town is obliged to raise by order of the state."

1794. The town raised £15 for support of schools.

1795. The town raised £30 for support of schools.

1797. March 20, "Voted to raise 200 dollars for the support of schools in addition to what is raised by law."

"Voted the selectmen be a committee to set the town off into school districts."

"Voted that each district build their own schoolhouse."

1799. December 2, Voted to divide the town into school districts; and "Jonathan Cilley, John Tirrell and Willard Emery were chosen a committee to district off the town."

(See article on school districts.)

Voted to sell one of the school lots and devote the proceeds to the support of the schools.

“Voted that a school district be set off from the lower part of W^m Dyer’s land.”

“Voted to have a school district by Philip Cilley’s.”

Voted $800 for building schoolhouses in the several districts.

1800. The amount of school money raised was $175.31.

1802. March 15, Voted to raise $300 for the support of schools.

1803. “Voted to raise $100 in addition to what the state obliges us to raise for schools.”

1804. Raised $100 for the support of schools.

1804. The town appointed, in the various school districts school-tax collectors, whose duties were similar to those performed by prudential committees at a later date, except that the school-tax collectors collected the school taxes in their respective districts. These officers were:

James Pike in the “River” district.

Moses Brown in Lieutenant Blake’s district.

Charles Hilton in the “Mill” district.

Joseph Philbrick in Esquire Weare’s district.

Jacob Rowe in Southeast district.

Stephen Tucker in “Mountain” district.

Jonathan Cilley in “South Side of Pond” district.

Jonathan Brown in “Beech Hill” district.

Elisha Cilley in upper Cilley district.

Edmund Cilley in Aaron Cilley’s district.

The first schools in town were “kept” in dwelling houses and frequently in barns in the early summer. A summer school on the Emery Road was held in a large apple bin in a cider mill belonging to “Esquire Willard Emery.” This school, taught by Miss Fifield, was attended by eight pupils. The teacher was paid fifty cents per week and she “boarded round.” When the money available for each school was a fixed sum it was the custom for the teacher to “board round,” staying in each home a certain number of days for each pupil in the family. By this method all the money was used to pay the teacher. This custom, with its many advantages and some disadvantages prevailed until late in the nineteenth century. After the schoolhouses were built in the various districts, the parents of the pupils arranged among themselves at the "school meetings," to furnish the wood, all prepared for the fireplace or stove, without expense to the district. Sometimes the wood was drawn to the schoolhouse in "sled lengths," and the larger boys laid the foundations for the modern school athletics while reducing the woodpile to its "lowest terms" for fuel.

In the winter the names of the older boys were placed on a "fire list," each becoming responsible in turn for making the "schoolhouse" fire in the morning in season to have the house warm by "school time." By all this voluntary work, the money was used for paying the teacher and lengthening the term of school.

For a number of years a weaving room in the woodshed of Mr. Anthony Emery was used as a schoolroom, until the schoolhouse in that district was built, about 1833.

Before the schoolhouse was built in the Tucker Mountain District, the school was maintained for a time in a shop belonging to Cutting S. Greeley.

Sarah Cilley, born 1771, daughter of first Benjamin in town, often related the fact that, when she was of age to attend school, there were no schools west of Boston Hill, and she walked from her father's house at the Centre to the only available school at Mr. Rowe's, where Mrs. Jonathan Cilley now lives.

1806. Raised $300 for support of schools.

1809. Rev. Josiah Badcock, John Weare and Ephraim Eastman were chosen a "committee to examine schools in said town."

1810. The town sold school lot No. 17 for $190.

In 1812 there were two schoolhouses at East Andover village. One was on or near the site of the district school building in 1900. The other, called the "west side" schoolhouse, was situated nearly opposite the present residence of Miss Lizzie Marston. Afterwards these districts were united and the schoolhouse was built in 1816. This house was burned in the winter of 1822-'23.

1814. Raised $150 for support of schools.

1815. Raised $100 for support of schools.

1816. Raised $100 for support of schools.

In 1800 there were seven (7) school districts.

In 1808 there were eleven (11) school districts.

In 1818 there were fourteen (14) school districts.

In 1819 there were fifteen (15) school districts and twelve schoolhouses.

In 1825 there were sixteen (16) school districts.

(See article on school districts.)

The first Boston Hill schoolhouse stood on the east side of the cross-road from the Jonathan Cilley place to Otis R.'Connor's, and nearly opposite the cemetery.

The first schoolhouse at the Centre village stood in what is now the southwest corner of the old cemetery.

The second schoolhouse stood where Stephen Scales lived (on the site of house now owned by Mrs. Warren Quimby). It was moved by Samuel Butterfield into the village and occupied as a saddler's shop by Joseph Fowler, the father of Oscar F. Fowler of Bristol. Afterwards this building was moved down near Pettingill's Corner and used as a dwelling house.

The third schoolhouse at the Centre, built about 1822, was burned when the Proctor House was destroyed, March 23, 1882.

In 1810, when the town sold one of the school lots for $190, it was supposed by many citizens that the schools were to receive the income from that money. It was used, however, for the ordinary town expenses. At the annual town meeting in 1818 there was an article in the warrant, "To see if the Town will pass a vote to appropriate the interest of the 'school lots' for the support of schools."

During, or following, a heated discussion of this article, the meeting voted "not to raise any money for the support of schools," evidently the result of pique or political strategy. This income was not used for schools until 1829. In 1829, Col. Joseph Sweatt was chosen agent to take charge of the town's share of the "Literary Fund," the school money, and the money that might be received for the school land in the possession of the town.

Prudential and superintending school committees were first mentioned in the state laws in an act approved July 6, 1827.

On March 11, 1828, "Voted, that each school district choose their own prudential committees." These committees had been chosen formerly at the town meetings.

In 1829, the remaining "school lot " was sold, and the proceeds of that, and what was left from the sale of other lots, was added to the town's share of the literary fund and invested. In 1835, the sum amounted to $1,219.37, and the income has since been used for the support of schools.

THE TYLER SCHOOL.

About 1820 a private school of an advanced grade was maintained by Mr. Benjamin M. Tyler in Rev. Josiah Badcock's hall. The school was first located in the hall of Joseph Philbrick's house, but was soon moved to the house of Mr. Badcock. The pupils, averaging about fifty each term, were from Andover and the neighboring towns and the school was successful from the start. This was the first attempt to maintain a higher course of instruction than existed in the public schools of the town and evidently led to the establishment of the Noyes School and the later academies.

Mr. Tyler had been a student, and afterwards a teacher in the military school of Capt. Alden Partridge in Middletown, Conn. Soon after he came to Andover he engaged in mercantile business, but with indifferent success, and finally turned his attention to teaching, in which he was notably successful. In 1846 his health became impaired and he gave up teaching to accept a position as civil engineer on the Northern Railroad, then under construction from Concord to White River Junction. He died in Franklin, January 9, 1847, and was interred in the Franklin Cemetery.

SCHOOL TEACHERS.

It is a "far cry" from the well-equipped modern school building sheltering pupils, arranged according to a graded system and managed by competent teachers, back 120 years to a dingy room, or an "apple bin" in a cider mill, giving some protection from the weather to a group of eight children and a teacher. We may never know the exact dates, details and methods of all the trials, sacrifices and successes that give the pupil of today the rich fruitage of this development, but we must acknowledge that the result is due mainly to the earnest, unselfish and often unappreciated labors of those teachers who have looked forward and not backward, and have given their best that others might see the light of awakened aspirations.

James Randall, Sarah Eastman and Miss Fifield were the pioneer teachers. Randall married Margaret Fellows, the first white girl born in Andover. It has been said that he was well described in John G. Saxe's ballad of "Ye Pedagogue."

Right learnéd is ye Pedagogue,
Full apt to read and spelle,
And eke to teach ye parts of speeche,
And strap ye urchins welle.

For as 'tis meete to soak ye feete,
Ye ailinge heade to mende,
Ye younker's pate to stimulate,
He beats ye other ende.

Right lordlie is ye Pedagogue
As any turbaned Turke;
For welle to rule ye District Schoole.
It is no idle worke.

Daye after daye for little paye,
He teacheth what he can,
And bears ye yoke, to please ye folke
And ye Committee man.

It is impossible to give the names of all, or even a considerable fraction, of those who have wielded the rod in the Andover schools; or of the Andover boys and girls who have won high commendation as teachers elsewhere; but in the following list are given a few whose names are embalmed in fireside tradition and story, or in the hearts and experiences of many who still live to enjoy the reminiscences of early school days:

James Randall,	James Munroe Bailey,
Sarah Eastman,	Jacob Graves,
Franklin Pettingill,	Jonathan W. Buzzell,
John Emery,	Mary A. Brown,
Mary E. Marston,	Lizzie (Huntoon) Bennett.

THE NOYES SCHOOL.

Joseph Noyes was born in Hampstead, in 1764, and began business in early life in Haverhill.

On leaving Haverhill he came to Salisbury, settling on a farm in that portion of the town subsequently included in the town of Franklin. This farm was known as the Noyes farm and was afterwards occupied by L. D. Davenport. After the house on the farm was burned, Noyes moved to the village on the west side of the river, now Franklin, and opened a store in the basement of his house. His domestic life was very unhappy; his wife was extravagant and contracted debts without his knowledge, and a separation resulted. He became involved in quarrels with his neighbors and, declaring that his property should no longer contribute to the support of that community, he moved up the river into Andover, on a farm where he resided until his death on December 23, 1818. This farm was afterwards occupied by Simeon Brown.

Mr. Noyes was a shrewd, industrious, business man who, by economy and thrift accumulated what at that time was accounted a comfortable fortune. He left three children: Joseph, Thomas Jefferson and Lucy.

The people of Andover and vicinity were especially interested in the following clause in his will:

Item 4 I do hereby direct my executor to take $10000.00 out of my personal property and bank stock, and appropriate it for the support of a public school; said school to be under the direction of six directors, who shall at first be appointed by my executor, and after that they shall fill their own vacancies. The house for said school to be built on the farm on which I now live, which farm I also give and bequeath for the support of said school; said school to be denominated "Noyes School."

In accordance with this clause of the will the executor, Robert Barber, appointed the following directors: Josiah Badecock, William Proctor, Silas Merrill, John Simonds, John Joseph Bryant and Robert Barber.

An act to incorporate the directors of the Noyes School in the town of Andover, was passed by the Legislature, and approved June 21, 1822. A large, old-style, one-story schoolhouse was built in 1822, on the Noyes farm, nearly opposite the dwelling house, and the school was opened in 1823 under the management of Benjamin M. Tyler of Andover, as principal.

For five years the school was very successfully maintained, to the great credit of the principal and directors. The Noyes residence was converted into a boarding-house and was always filled with an excellent class of students. Considering all the conditions, this was probably the most successful school during its existence, ever maintained in the town.

When Joseph, the eldest son of Mr. Noyes, became of age, in 1826, he instituted a suit to break the will, on the ground that the testator was not sane. There was a long and bitter legal contest ending, in 1828, in the breaking of the will, the destruction of the school and the distribution of the property among the heirs.

The friends of a better education in the community were unwilling to lose the services of Mr. Tyler as a teacher, and plans were soon matured for building the two-story brick building in Franklin village now long known as "the academy." This building was finished and occupied in 1830. The institution was chartered in 1831, as "The Instructor's School," and Mr. Tyler was the principal until his resignation in 1846.

The name of this school clearly indicates its main idea, the training of teachers, and, so far as now known, it was the first of its kind in this part of the country. It was well supported by the community and its success had no small influence in the early history of Franklin.

THE ACADEMY AT ANDOVER CENTRE.

At a "sewing circle" held at the house of Samuel Butterfield, Esq., in the spring of 1848, Mrs. Butterfield made known to several of her friends her strong desire for the establishment of a school of much higher grade than at that time existed in the town. Her suggestions were favorably received and were earnestly discussed at that meeting. The scheme met with general approbation and plans were so rapidly matured that on June 23, 1848, the governor approved the following act of incorporation:

In the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight, an act to incorporate the Andover Academy.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened.

Section 1 That Samuel Butterfield, Samuel Robbins, Nathan Kilburn, Samuel Morrill, John Fellows, Jonathan Brown, Royal F. Eastman, Dudley F. Langley, John Woodbury Jr., Otis Jones, Simeon S. Moulton, James Proctor, William Huntoon, William Proctor, William Keniston, Jeremiah S. Durgin, Benjamin F. Scribner, Peter Fifield, Silas C. Fifield, Hiram Fifield, Samuel Swett, Aaron Cilley, James Gale, James B. Dudley, Aaron Cilley Jr., Aaron Cilley 2d, Jonathan Keniston, Elisha C. Keniston, Samuel Smith, John Hobbs Jr., Andrew J. Cilley, George Sleeper, Andrew Seavey, Benjamin Cilley and Francis Currier and their associates, successors and assigns be and hereby are incorporated and made a body politic by the name of the "Andover Academy," and by that name may sue and be sued, prosecute and defend to final judgment and execution, and shall have and enjoy all the powers and privileges and be subject to all the liabilities incident to corporations of a similar character.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted that said corporation may establish said Academy in the town of Andover in the county of Merrimack, for the education of youth and their instruction in useful knowledge. May erect and maintain suitable buildings therefor, and may hold real and personal estate to any amount not exceeding twenty thousand dollars, which together with all gifts, donations, bequests or legacies that have been or may hereafter be given or bequeathed to said Academy may be received, held and possessed, or be sold or disposed of by said corporation for the use and benefit of said Academy, and the interests, rents and profits of the same be applied by the corporation in such a manner as may best promote the interest of said Institution

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted that said corporation may at any meeting duly notified and holden make such regulations and by-laws not repugnant to the constitution and laws of this State for the encouragement of the interest and concerns of said corporation and may appoint such and so many officers and agents as they may think proper and prescribe their powers and duties.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted that it shall be lawful for said corporation at their annual meeting or at any special meeting called for that purpose to alter its corporate name and assume the name of some benefactor, or any other name, and shall still be entitled to all the favors and privileges granted by this act.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted that Samuel Robbins Nathan Kilburn, Jonathan Brown, John Fellows and Samuel Butterfield, or any two of them may call the first meeting of said corporation to be holden in some suitable place in said town of Andover, by posting up a notification in writing at least ten days previous to time of holding said meeting in two or more public places in said town stating the object of said meeting at which time any business relating to said corporation may be transacted.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted that any further legislature may alter, amend, or repeal this act at pleasure.

Approved June 23, 1848.

At the first meeting of the incorporators Samuel Butterfield was chosen president; Walcott Hamlin, secretary, and Samuel Butterfield, John Fellows and True Brown an executive committee.

The proprietors of the church at the Centre village transferred the second story of their building to the corporation for the use of the academy, and the necessary funds for fitting that portion of the building for school purposes were furnished by the citizens of that vicinity.

In August, 1848, the academy was opened, with Dyer H. Sanborn as principal and Miss Eliza Wingate of Great Falls, as preceptress.

Mrs. Butterfield presented to the school enough philosophical apparatus for use in elementary instruction.

The catalogue for the first term showed the attendance of 108 pupils, of whom forty-three were young ladies.

Provision was made for four terms annually, of twelve weeks each. The rates of tuition "per quarter" were, "three dollars for common branches; three dollars and fifty cents for higher English branches and languages; drawing and painting, one to three dollars; needlework, two dollars; music, eight dollars, and two cents per week for each pupil for incidental expenses."

Mr. Sanborn was a popular instructor and the school was well patronized. He resigned in the spring of 1849, and in July of that year Moses Leland Morse, a graduate of Bowdoin College, was chosen principal and remained in charge of the academy until August, 1851. Miss Louisa J. Clark of Franklin and Miss Hannah J. Sanborn of Sanbornton, were assistants during those two years.

Under the management of Mr. Morse the school prospered and the catalogue issued in April, 1851, showed an attendance of 252 pupils for the school year 1850-'51.

The courses of study were greatly enlarged under the direction of Mr. Morse and several young men, Woodbury F. Langdon, Plymouth; Luther Puffer, Sudbury, Mass., and John W. Simonds of Franklin, took up advanced studies and entered Bowdoin College. Mr. Simonds was an assistant to Mr. Morse for one year. About this time considerable chemical apparatus was obtained and the school was materially strengthened by the income of a guaranty fund of $3,000.

Mr. Morse resigned in 1851 and Thaddeus W. Bruce, a graduate of Dartmouth College, was chosen principal, with Miss Marcia E. Foster as assistant.

George Dustan, also a graduate of Dartmouth College, succeeded Mr. Bruce in August, 1853, with Miss Lucy Marsh as assistant. The school was well sustained under the direction of Mr. Dustan; the catalogue issued in April, 1854, showing the names of 205 students. Several young men finished the college preparatory course.

John W. Allard, a graduate of Dartmouth College, succeeded Mr. Dustan in August, 1854. The fall term was broken up by an outbreak of smallpox in the village. Luther Puffer, a former student, and at one time a temporary teacher in the academy, died of the disease. The school was scattered, discontinued for more than two years and ceased to exist as Andover Academy.

The catalogues for the fall term in 1848, the fall term in 1849 and for the years 1850-'51, 1852-'53 and 1853-'54, are all of the early catalogues that the writer has found, but these will give a fair idea of what the academy represented half a century ago.

The following boards of instruction are copied from those catalogues:

The following table exhibits the five catalogues of students for the fall of 1848, the fall of 1849 and for the years 1850-'51, 1852-'53 and 1853-'54, in condensed form. The name of every student found in those catalogues is given, with residence.

Five columns are added, one for each catalogue or year, and an asterisk opposite any student's name, in any column, indicates the attendance of such student in that year.

The division of the students into two classes, those studying ancient and modern languages, and those studying English branches, is maintained the same as in the original catalogues.

Several names will be found in both classes, since students began their studies in the English department and finally passed on to that of the ancient and modern languages. The change sometimes occurred in the same year.

At a meeting of the trustees on October 26, 1855, John M. Shirley was chosen secretary and Samuel Butterfield remained president of the board.

John Fellows suggested a plan for re-opening the academy under the auspices of the Christian conferences; and it was voted to "offer the corporate property of the Andover Academy to the Christian Conferences in New England for the purpose of opening a school there."

At a meeting held February 1, 1856, Rev. John Burden, Rev. Timothy Cole, Rev. Daniel P. Pike and Rev. William H. Nason, were chosen trustees. On July 27, 1856, by a vote of the trustees, the property and appurtenances of the Andover Academy were transferred to the members of the New England Christian Conferences. Hon. Samuel Butterfield continued as president and John M. Shirley as secretary of the board of trustees. Rev. Timothy Cole, Rev. John Burden and Rev. William H. Nason were chosen an executive committee.

In December, 1856, the trustees voted to repair the academy building, build two wings, giving four recitation rooms and open the school on the third Wednesday in February, 1857.

On the day appointed the school was opened, under the name of the "New England Christian Literary and Biblical Institute." O. D. Barrett, A. B., John Wesley Simonds, A. B., and Miss Delia E. Payne were the teachers. At the close of the first term Mr. Barrett and Miss Payne resigned and Mr. Simonds became the principal, with Dr. George O. Dalton, A. M., and Miss Mary J. Ambrose as assistants for one year.

Rev. A. H. Martin, Nathan S. Morrison and Rev. Seth Hinekley constituted the executive committee for the second year. A catalogue issued in October, 1857, contained the names of 196 students.

Mr. Simonds remained as principal until the end of the summer term of 1858. At this time the school was well organized, the instruction was thorough and four graduates entered college.

In September, 1858, John Proctor was chosen one of the executive committee. At this time the school had no fund, and a debt of $600 had been incurred for meeting current expenses. In consequence of this financial condition the school was suspended for about two terms, and an effort was made to raise a permanent fund.

For the three terms ending in November, 1859, Rev. S. W. Whitney was in charge of the school.

In August, 1860, Rev. John W. Haley was chosen principal and remained one year.

In October, 1860, the management of the school was restricted to the New Hampshire Christian Conference and its name was changed to "Andover Christian Institute." Rev. John Burden was chosen president of the trustees, John M. Shirley, secretary, Albert G. Morrison, treasurer, and John Proctor, Rev. John Burden and Joseph Smith, executive committee.

In 1861 John M. Shirley resigned the position of secretary and was succeeded by Joseph W. Fellows.

A bequest of $1,000 from Mrs. Susan Noyes of Franklin, with gifts from other friends of the school amounting to $500, was received about this time.

The act incorporating the Andover Academy was amended by an act of the Legislature, approved June 27, 1861, limiting the permanent fund to $50,000 and providing for the election of trustees and for the management of the funds.

In 1861, Rev. Thomas Bartlett was chosen principal and remained until November, 1865, when the school was closed.

At the annual meeting of the trustees, in 1865, it was decided to discontinue the school at Andover. At this time the corporation had a fund of about $2,500.

In June, 1866, the institute was transferred to Wolfeborough, and the name changed to the "Wolfeborough Christian Institute." The school opened in September, 1866, and, with varying success, continued till December, 1873, when it was formally discontinued by an almost unanimous vote of the trustees.

A committee consisting of John W. Simonds of Franklin, Person C. Shaw of Hill and O. J. Wait of Franklin, were appointed to receive proposals for locating the school. At that time the endowment fund amounted to $9,259.12, and the debt was $2,656.

On the 26th of June, 1874, the governor approved an act of the Legislature reviving the original charter of June 23, 1848, and authorizing John Proctor, John M. Shirley and Nathan Woodbury, Jr., or any two of them, to call a meeting of the corporation for the transaction of any business.

About that time a proposition was received from the citizens of Andover Centre for the location of the school once more in that village.

The proposal was accompanied by the offer of the academy building and other property, and the sum of $4,000 for enlarging and repairing the building. This offer was accepted and the school was re-located at Andover Centre in July, 1874, under the name of Proctor Academy, in honor of John Proctor, its most liberal benefactor. The school began, under the new management, in August, 1874, and during the fall term occupied the hall in the "Moulton" Hotel. The repairs were so far completed that the examinations at the end of the term were held in the academy building.

During the first year the school was under the supervision of John W. Simonds, who was the secretary of the board of trustees and one of the executive committee. The endowment fund then amounted to $8,000 above all indebtedness, exclusive of the bequest of $1,000 from Col. Joseph Sweatt of Franklin, formerly a citizen of Andover, and the sum of $500 from Watson Dickerson, late of East Andover.

Notwithstanding the favorable outlook, the school did not realize the hopes of its friends. Grave differences arose in the board of trustees and the vitality of the school steadily declined, after the first year, until the spring of 1879, when it was plain that it could not continue under the existing management. Nine thousand dollars of the fund had been lost by the failure of the treasurer.

In 1879 all interests in the academy property were transferred to an association representing the educational interests of the Unitarian denomination in New Hampshire, and still remains under the supervision of that denomination, retaining the name of Proctor Academy. With this change ended the efforts of the Christian denomination, for twenty-two years, to maintain an academic institution in New England.

For twenty-three years an academy had existed in Andover, under three different names, and while the citizens had contributed liberally, according to their means, to its support, they, with the people of the neighboring towns, had reaped a rich reward for their wise beneficence. A long and notable list of the sons and daughters of Andover and vicinity had there received, not only the training and culture that fitted them for teachers and the duties of good citizenship, but that stimulus which led them further into the wider fields of professional and active investigation.

During the fall term of 1874, Miss Annie P. Little of Concord was the teacher, with eighteen pupils.

In the following year Frank E. Adams of Hill and Miss Annie P. Little were the teachers, with about fifty pupils.

In 1876, Alvah H. Morrill and Miss Lucy A. Rowell were the teachers. Henry Melville taught for a part of 1878.

In 1878, Mr. B. A. Field became principal, with Mabel S. Emery as assistant, and remained until the school passed into the hands of the Unitarian Educational Society and became known as Proctor Academy.

In the fall term of 1878 there were twenty-two pupils. George W. Stone, assisted by Mary A. Putney, had charge of the academy in a part of 1879-'80.

In 1880, the school opened under the management of the Unitarian Educational Society, with Herbert B. Dow, a graduate of Harvard College, as principal, assisted by Miss Ednah D. Emerson. He was succeeded, in 1881, by W. J. Lloyd, with Mrs. Lloyd as assistant.

In 1883, Mr. Dow returned and remained in charge until the end of the spring term in 1887. Mr. Dow's assistants in 1883 were Andrew Nichols, Jr., Emily W. Tapley and Helen M. Perkins. In 1884, he was assisted by Misses Tapley and Perkins, and in 1884-'85 by the same ladies and Charles S. Paige. From the fall term in 1885 to the close of his work, he was assisted by Misses Lillie M. Packard, Luella H. Seales and Helen M. Perkins. Albert A. Beal was an assistant in 1886.

At the beginning of the fall term in 1887, Frank K. Gifford, A. B., became principal, with Misses E. Mabelle Farman, Edith S. Cushing, Luella H. Seales and Helen M. Perkins as assistants. From 1883 to 1888, the average number of pupils at each term was forty-six.

In 1888 the teachers were: Mr. Archie S. Hodges, Misses Florence Sampson, Luella H. Seales and Helen M. Perkins.

In 1889, Mr. and Mrs. True W. White, Misses Seales and Perkins.

THE HIGHLAND LAKE INSTITUTE.

Early in the year 1850, citizens of the East village and vicinity interested in education, and anxious to secure its benefits in their part of the town, raised by subscription a fund sufficient to erect a building to be used as an academy. The following subscription paper, dated March 23, 1850, received the signatures of about fifty people:

We, the subscribers, will pay the several sums set against our names respectively for the erection of a building at East Andover of suitable size, furnished for an Academy and other purposes, to be divided into shares of five dollars each, each shareholder to be entitled to vote, according to number of shares, in all matters in relation to the building and locating said house and all other matters touching the interest of the same. No subscription to be paid unless a sufficient amount be subscribed.

The land for the site was given by Joseph Osgood. The amounts subscribed were paid either in money, labor or material, for which certificates of stock were issued; 100 shares of $5 each. A deed of the land on which the building now stands was obtained May 28 and an organization was soon formed, known as the East Andover High School Association, with the following officers: President, Rev. D. Sydney Frost; secretary, George E. Emery; treasurer, Joseph Osgood; executive committee, Jeremy Y. Bryant, Joseph A. Rowe, Caleb Cross, Thomas Haley, William A. Bachelder, Joseph Osgood and George E. Emery.

The building was immediately erected and the first term of the Highland Lake Institute was held in the autumn of 1850, with the following instructors: Lyman Marshall, A. B., principal; Miss Eliza Wingate, preceptress; Rev. D. Sydney Frost, teacher of chirography. The examining committee consisted of: N. B. Bryant, Bristol; Rev. D. Sydney Frost, Rev. Reuben Dearborn, Andover; David Cross, Manchester; and George E. Emery, Danvers, Mass. Eighty-six pupils had been enrolled at the close of the first term, November 5, 1850.

At the next election, Willard Emery was chosen president and Rev. Reuben Dearborn and Watson Dickerson were chosen vice-presidents.

At the next term Thomas Marshall and Milon Graves were employed as assistants. George W. Murray was the teacher of music. D. P. Putnam lectured on anatomy and physiology. William P. Hammond was the teacher of penmanship. A normal class was formed for instruction in the science of teaching.

In 1851, the institute had 143 students, representing thirty towns in New Hampshire and four New England states.

In 1852, Rev. C. M. Dinsmore became principal; Miss Letitia J. Shaw, preceptress; George S. Rawson, M. D., lecturer on anatomy and physiology; Samuel G. Haley, teacher of penmanship. In November, W. A. Bachelder succeeded George E. Emery as secretary.

In 1853, Rev. Nathan F. Carter became principal; Miss Shaw remained as preceptress; Miss Mary J. Cross was assistant in fall term; Miss Marilla J. Butler was teacher of music.

Soon after 1853 the interest of many of the former friends of the institute began to abate, financial support by the citizens in the immediate vicinity failed in a marked manner and, after languishing for several months, the school was abandoned in 1855.

HIGHLAND LAKE AND EAST ANDOVER VILLAGE, FROM BACHELDER FARM

STOREKEEPERS.

According to the custom of this section of the country, one hundred years ago, the merchants of this town were generally known as "storekeepers," and the name, in spite of the great changes in the management of such business, has continued to this day.

In the early history of the town, and down to the advent of the railroad, the business of the storekeeper combined that of the dry goods merchant, the grocer and the dealer in "country produce." Sugar, molasses, West India and New England rum and spices were the principal groceries. The beef, pork, lard, butter and cheese from the farms, and the products from the many linen and woolen spinning wheels, and from the domestic looms in the skillful hands of the housewives or their daughters amply supplied the full stream of commerce that flowed into the markets of Boston, Salem, Newburyport and Portsmouth.

In the first half of the nineteenth century the country storekeeper enjoyed some advantages which, in these days of the commercial traveller, the modern merchant does not improve. The country trader usually made two journeys annually to the wholesale markets to make his purchases for the next six months. The leisurely trip to the city afforded ample opportunity for seeing the country, meeting his fellow-travellers, studying the people and the towns along the route and finally meeting the wholesale merchant with whom he had already established business relations on the broad plane of mutual interest and respect. Such meetings were beneficial to both parties. The merchant studied the temper and quality of his country purchasers and learned of new sources of trade that might strengthen the prosperity of his own business, while the country storekeeper of intelligence and probity got his news and impressions at first hand from the man whose business put him in touch with the commercial world. By that much was the country dealer and the country community the gainer.

It is not easy at the present day to give the names of the owners or the agents of all, or even a large part, of the stores in the early years of the town's history. The first stores were in or about the locality now known as the village of East Andover and were generally on or near the road which now runs from the railroad station towards "Barnard's" corner. Peletiah Corliss had a store near the site of the Pevear block. Theophilus Blake and Jedediah Judkins, and Harvey and Stickney were among the early storekeepers, but the dates of their activities are not known. The David Chase store was about where the house of Mrs. James E. Kilburn now stands. The store occupied by Theophilus Blake and Jedediah Judkins was near the Caleb Cross place. Harvey and Stickney were near Charles Yeaton's place. Many of the early stores were doubtless primitive affairs, but they fairly satisfied the needs of their patrons and did not attempt to cater to the tastes of the twentieth century. It is not possible now to give the names of all the storekeepers in the early days, but the following lists probably give the more important names in the different localities, though there are probably some errors in all of the lists. It is intended to give the names of the owners or agents, sometimes both, with the years of active business and the section of the town where the store was located.

BLACKSMITHS.

The first blacksmith in town is supposed to have been Josiah Haines, a soldier of the Revolutionary Army. His shop was on the road from the Jonathan Cilley place to Otis R. Connor's, and about fifty rods south of the Cilley house. It is believed that Elijah Hilton learned his trade in the shop of Mr. Haines. About 1780 Mr. Hilton moved to the place now owned by Henry W. Kilburn and built his shop on the west side of the road leading towards Salisbury, and nearly opposite his house. He owned the first machine in town for making nails for the carpenters and probably made the most of those used in town about 1800.

Col. Jonathan Weare had a shop on Taunton Hill, on the opposite side of the road from his house which is now known as the W. H. Edmund's place. At his shop were made, by hand, great quantities of farming tools, plows, shovels, forks, hoes as well as many edged tools, like chopping and broad axes, "shaves" or drawknives, scythes, etc. He had five forges and employed from eight to twelve journeymen and apprentices most of the time. Many of the best smiths of that and a later period in this vicinity learned their trade at the shop of Colonel Weare.

William Proctor was one of the noted blacksmiths in town. He worked at his trade first at East Andover and afterward at the Centre. He was an industrious, skillful mechanic and much of his aptitude has been seen in most of his descendants. Mr. Proctor's shop was near the site of the house now occupied by George H. Scribner.

It is practically impossible now to give the names of all the men who worked at the forge in this town before the middle of the last century, and it is also impossible to give the dates of their active service. In the following lists appear such names of the sons of Vulcan as have been gathered from records, from memory and from tradition; arranged, as far as possible, according to the sections of the town in which they lived. The lists are necessarily incomplete.

STAGE COACHES.

In 1800 two stages of the line between Boston and Hanover ran as far north as Andover, and one of them ran through to Hanover. Upon the completion of the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike, both stages ran through to Hanover.

The number of vehicles was increased and the passing of the stagecoach became a matter of important daily interest to those who lived along the turnpike. The continued, unusual speed, the well-groomed horses, the ever-changing group of passengers, were all attractive features of the coaching days. To the boy who was fortunate enough to live near the taverns where the horses were changed, the arrival of the stage was an occasion of great moment. The dashing style of the driver as he brought his coach up to the tavern door, the rapid work of the hostlers in changing horses, the bustle among the passengers as they alighted for meals or hurried to the bar-room for "something," either hot or cold, the wonderful crack of the driver's whip and the spirited action of the fresh horses as they swung out on the turnpike for the next stage of the trip, all filled the boy's mind with admiration, perhaps with a secret determination to follow that trail out into the wide world sometime and make a place for himself. And, if he were so blest as to have a speaking acquaintance with that driver, a word or even a friendly nod from that worthy as he deftly gathered that seeming tangle of reins into his hands was enough to give the boy sufficient pride and thought for the next twenty-four hours.

Another event which interested old and young alike was the occasional passage of the British mail, on this line of coaches, on its route from Boston to Canada. At those times the presence of a guard in uniform, dignified and reticent, gave the rare opportunity to see a representative of the British government among the New Hampshire Hills. The principal stage drivers were generally a trustworthy, energetic class of men and when the Northern Railroad left no field for the stage coach, the passenger conductors were often taken from the ranks of the "stage drivers." Many citizens will remember conductors Shattuck and Corning, perhaps others, who were transferred from the stage to the passenger coach.

PRICES OF FOOD, LABOR, ETC., IN 1777.

The following extracts from the records of the Legislature are cited in order to give an approximate list of the prices, as well as some hints of the conditions prevailing in Andover and other towns in New Hampshire in the second year of our national independence.

On January 18, 1777, an act to regulate the prices of labor, food, etc., was passed by the General Assembly of New Hampshire.

The preamble and the act were as follows:

"WHEREAS the exorbitant Prices of the Necessary and convenient Articles of Life, and also of Labour, within this State at this time of distress (unless speedily and effectually remedied) will be attended with the most fatal and pernicious consequences.

"Be it therefore enacted by the Council and house of Representatives in General Court assembled that the rates and prices of the several articles hereinafter enumerated be and hereby are limited within this State as follows:"

Omitting much of the somewhat diffuse phraseology of the document, the maximum prices allowed for the various articles named in the act are given below:

And all other goods, wares and merchandizes imported from thence or brought into the State by any prize vessel (warlike and military stores excepted) shall be sold by wholesail at an advance not exceeding two hundred and fifty pounds for what cost one hundred pounds of like money in Europe.

The provisions of the above act were not wholly satisfactory and the following is a portion of an act passed April 10, 1777 :

An Act in addition to an Act entitled an Act for the regulating of prices of Sundry Articles therein enumerated.

Whereas it hath been found by experience that some of the Articles in said Act are therein Rated too low, and no Provision is made thereby for the Regulation of sundry particulars not therein enumerated: For remedy whereof,—

Be it enacted by the Council & house of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by authority of the same. That the rates and prices of the several articles hereinafter enumerated, be and hereby are limited within this State as follows, viz.:—

Good Merchantable Rye and Rye meal shall not exceed the price of five shillings per bushel in the Town of Portsmouth.

Good merchantable Indian corn or Indian meal shall not exceed the price of four shillings per Bushel in the Town of Portsmouth.

Good Barley Malt shall not exceed the price of Indian corn. Rye Malt shall not exceed the price of Rye.

Men's Neat Leather Shoes of the best common sort shall not exceed Eight shillings per pair, other shoes in proportion according to their Quality and size

Good well dressed Merchantable Flax shall not exceed one shilling and three pence per pound in the Town of Portsmouth and in other towns in proportion.

“Hard times” and high prices had borne heavily upon the men of New Hampshire in 1777. Strong appeals to the legislators had resulted in the two acts of January 18 and April 10, 1777, but the laws failed to give the desired relief.

Arbitrary interference with the recognized laws of trade were already producing the usual result, and the people hastened to undo the legislative mistakes of the early part of the year.

On November 27, 1777, the following act was approved by the speaker of the House and the president of the council:

An Act for the Repealing the Acts of the General Court, made the present year, against Monopoly and oppression.

Whereas the several Acts to prevent Monopoly & Oppression made the present year have been very far from answering the salutary purposes for which they were intended;

Be it therefore Enacted by the Council and house of Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the aforesaid Acts, viz.:—one Act entitled an Act for Regulating the prices of Sundry Articles therein enumerated:—and another Act intitled an Act in addition to an Act for the Regulating the prices of Sundry Articles therein enumerated, made the present year be and they are hereby Repealed; and every part and paragraph of the Acts aforesaid declared null and void.

DEPRECIATION OF PAPER CURRENCY.

As a guide to the proper evaluation of the sums of money mentioned in this history, from 1776 to 1781, the following extracts from the Journals of the House of Representatives of New Hampshire are given to show the depreciation of paper currency during that period.

Special session of the House convened at Exeter, April 19, 1780.

[From the Journal of the House, April 27, 1780.]

The Committee appointed to make the Draft of a Depreciation Table to be a Guide to the Committee for making out the accounts of the officers & soldiers of this state, Report the following Table, calculated for what one hundred pounds was worth equal to good money in each month from Jan'y 1777 to Jan'y 1780 and that the same be considered as a rule for any sum or sums of money paid to officers & soldiers towards depreciation or by way of bounties and supplies, excepting those Articles the prices of which were stipulated in the year 1777 which are to be charged at the stipulated prices, and the wages received from the Continent, for which they are to be charged for the one-half part for the year 1777, one sixth part for the year 1778, and one twentieth part for the year 1779, equal to good money.

TABLE.

The following table gives the value, as reported by the committee, of £100 in paper currency, in good money, gold or silver, for each month in the years 1777, 1778 and 1779.

It is evident that the report on April 27, 1780, was not adopted, but the discussion of that report and the necessity for some immediate action to relieve the distress due to financial uncertainties led to the final adoption of the report of July 3, 1781, at which time £1 in silver coin was worth £75 in Continental paper currency.

TAVERNS AND TAVERN KEEPERS.

The long list of innholders or tavern keepers in Andover seems remarkable, if one considers the size of the town.

It should be remembered, however, that, for the first thirty years, at least, the capital necessary to establish a tavern for the entertainment of man and beast was quite small, and the accommodations required were of the simplest character.

In most cases the traveller carried his own food and asked only a seat by the fire, in cold weather, and a place to sleep.

The houses were built of logs, the rooms were small and the simple, even primitive, beds required much less room than the modern box spring with a hair mattress. As "creature comforts" multiplied the traveller eked out his simple fare with a glass of spirits, "plain or mixed," from the landlord's store, or with a generous mug of flip of the entertainer's best brew.

The landlord aimed to give the necessary conveniences rather than luxurious comforts, while the roaring fire on the hearth, in the winter, and the pungent jest and ready wit as it lightly flew about the semicircle left no place for an artificial spur to stir the unflagging springs of a free and healthy life.

The first through travel was along the "Plymouth" or "Coös" road by the west bank of the Pemigewasset River, and there the first tavern in town was established by Thomas Welch in 1774.

With the building of the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike, the taverns rapidly increased in number and improved in quality, until most of them could be fairly called houses of entertainment.

With the increase in travel, the tavern keeper whose wife, daughter or maid was a good cook, seldom found business dull. At first no formality was necessary in starting a tavern or inn, but after a few years the country towns generally deemed it wise to exercise some supervision over such public places, and a license from the selectmen became necessary, not only to follow the business of an innholder but to retail "spirituous or mixed" liquors. So it happened that many taverns were in existence before they were formally licensed as innholders or "taverners" or as retailers of liquors. Probably the first tavern in town, west of the River Road, was kept by William Morey in a log house on Boston Hill.

1774.—The tavern of Thomas Welch was built of logs and was located on the site of the Simonds house, on the River Road, which was destroyed by fire not many years ago.

1783.—Henry Hall was licensed as a "retailer of spirits."

1784.—Simeon Connor kept a tavern where Otis R. Connor now lives, on Boston Hill. He was licensed in 1786.

1785.—Peter Weare kept a tavern on Taunton Hill, where Wilton P. Graves now lives; a part of the original frame of the building is now in use.

1786.—Benjamin Cilley, "Affy Ben," kept a tavern at Andover Centre; possibly before this date, but he was licensed in 1786. His house stood a little north of the southeast corner of the new cemetery.

1787.—John Rowe was a “taverner” in 1787. Was licensed in 1792 to deal in “spirituous liquors by retail or mixed.”

1792.—Joseph Lunt was licensed as a “tavern keeper” in 1792, at the J. H. Durgin place.

1792.—Benjamin Thompson was licensed in 1792, but had kept tavern before that date. His tavern was on the site where John F. Sanborn now lives (1904), and Thompson and his son Herod carried on the business for more than forty years.

1792.—Elisha Cilley kept a small one-story tavern at Andover Centre, east of his father's place and southwest of the present residence of G. W. Stone.

1793.—Charles Hilton kept the first tavern at the east village.

1795.—Nathan Colby, on the River Road, was licensed to “keep a tavern.”

1795.—West Bonney kept a tavern at Potter Place, in a one-story house; afterward kept the first tavern at West Andover.

1799.—Col. John Gale built a tavern at Potter Place. He came from Salisbury.

1799.—John Weare had a tavern at Taunton Hill.

1800.—Eliphalet Rollins kept a tavern at Potter Place. He later built a two-story house for a tavern. This was afterwards cut down one story and moved eastward. It is said to be the frame of the Jesse Baker house, where C. E. F. Davis now lives. A Mr. Rowe had a tavern on south side of road near Potter Place.

The tavern at West Andover was built about 1800, and was occupied by West Bonney about twenty years. It was next occupied for several years by Thomas Clark, who moved out of town in 1840. John Edson was the proprietor for twenty-three years. It was afterwards under the direction of John Babbitt for about thirty years, and managed by Leonard Heath for about three years. After the railroad was built as far as Franklin, two stages from Franklin to Hanover and two from West Andover to Haverhill changed horses at this tavern.

1802.—Dea. Samuel Kimball built a tavern at the junction of the turnpike and the road to East Andover, often called Kimball's Corner, just below Nathan Woodbury's farm, and occuplied it as a tavern for several years. In 1810 it was occupied by Capt. Micah Kimball. It was afterwards occupied by Ezra Hutchins, Dudley Dearborn, ——— Boynton, Stephen W. Clough and Rufus L. Martin. While occupied by Martin it was burned, in 1856. After Dearborn's occupancy it was generally known as the "Dearborn stand."

1803.—Walter Waldo occupied the tavern at Potter Place.

1804.—Simeon Cate kept a tavern, location not now known.

1804.—David Dyer kept a tavern in John Sanders' house.

1808.—Josiah Evans was a taverner on the river road.

1811.—John True, a licensed taverner.

1811.—November 18, Micah Kimball was licensed "to keep tavern and mix liquors as the law directs for the same."

1812.—Henry D. Hilton had a tavern at East Andover.

1818.—Thomas Clark had a tavern at West Andover, Ezra Hutchins at Kimball's Corner, Elijah Cilley at the Centre, about where the academy now stands, and Seth Crossman and N. G. Haines had taverns, whose locations are not now known.

1822.—James Parker licensed as taverner.

1822.—Benjamin Wiggin licensed "to sell or mix and sell liquors by small quantities."

1822.—Seth Crossman licensed "to sell or mix and sell liquors by small quantities."

1824.—Reuben Dearborn had a tavern license in 1824 and 1826-'27.

1825.—John Sholes had a tavern license at Potter Place, 1825 and 1828.

1825.—Jazanera Whitney had a tavern license.

1825.—Benning Moulton had a tavern license on the River Road.

1826.—Asa Darling had a tavern license at the Evans stand.

1826.—Herbert Vose had a tavern license at the Centre.

1826.—Thomas Clark had a tavern license at West Andover.

1827.—Samuel Brown had a tavern license at East Andover.

1827.—Edward Robie had a tavern license.

1829.—Phineas Eastman had a tavern license at the Centre.

1829.——— Bean had a tavern license, the first tenant in Butterfield's new tavern at the Centre.

1830.—William Walker had a tavern license, the second tenant in Butterfield's tavern. Henry Moulton succeeded Walker about 1835, in this tavern, and he in turn was followed by his son, Simeon S. Moulton, who remained until his death in 1868.

1831.—John S. Rand licensed.

1832.—Calvin Eaton licensed.

1833.—Joseph H. Eaton licensed in 1833 and 1836.

1835.—John L. Corlis licensed.

1836.—Lewis D. Bean licensed.

1838.—Simeon Moulton took his first license in his own name.

1840.—David Cooper at the Centre.

1843.—John and George Edson, license for tavern and for retailing liquor, at West Andover.

1845.—Henry Dearborn Huntoon, license for tavern and for retailing liquor at East Andover.

1849.—J. S. Durgin, license for tavern at Potter Place.

At a later date Leonard Heath and John Babbitt were tavern keepers at West Andover.

After the railroad was built most of the hotel business in the town was concentrated at the Centre and Potter Place, and patronage at the other hostelrys gradually disappeared.

After Mr. Durgin left Potter Place, in 1850 or 1851, the successive managers were B. F. Scribner, B. P. Fifield, Hiram F. Emery, William Gordon, Andrew J. George and John Hopkins. In the hands of the latter and later under the management of Mrs. Hopkins, Hotel "Potter" became an attractive house. Before Durgin the several proprietors were West Bonney, Col. John Gale, Eliphalet Rollins, Walter Waldo and Jonathan Stewart.

It was the custom to issue licenses for only one year, but the renewal was apparently an easy matter. A special license was given as below:

In 1825 Robert Barber, at East Andover, was licensed "to keep tavern, to sell, mix and sell spirituous liquors by less quantities than one gallon, on the 8th and 9th days of March, at his house in Andover."

This was evidently for the accommodation of "town meeting folks."

The tavern at Andover Centre, occupied successively by Bean,

Walker and by Henry and Simeon S. Moulton, was built by Samuel Butterfield in 1828-'29. Elijah Cilley owned a small house in the village, which he managed for several years as a tavern.

In 1826 Mr. Butterfield bought the place of Cilley's estate, tore down the house and built on the same site the best public house in town. Fortunate in landlords, the tavern soon became the most popular house from Concord to the Connecticut River.

THE PROCTOR HOUSE.

In 1875 Hon. John Proctor, who had acquired the hotel property in the village, projected and built a first-class country hotel, complete in design and finish, and a credit and honor to himself and his native town. This was a three-story building, with a frontage of 112 feet. An east and a west wing extended northerly 119 feet. It contained large parlors, assembly rooms and dining rooms, with 125 guest rooms, all heated with steam. A large stable provided the finest livery accommodations in town. Fortunate from the first in the management, it soon became very popular as a summer hotel, and after two years all the rooms were engaged eight months in advance.

At the beginning, Mr. John S. Thompson, a noted hotel man with wide experience, became the manager and continued in that capacity until his death, in 1879. After that date the hotel was under the management of Mrs. J. S. Thompson and Mr. W. D. Thompson.

The famous "Shaker law suit" was, perhaps, the most notable occurrence at this hotel. The time consumed and the high character of the legal talent employed would have been noteworthy in any section of the state.

The case was that of Conant and Davis v. The Enfield Shakers, for settlement of an account.

The case was heard by Judge Isaac W. Smith, a court auditor. Austin F. Pike and Isaac N. Blodgett appeared for the plaintiff and J. Y. Mugridge, H. W. Green and Harry Bingham were counsel for the Shakers. The examination of the account and the spirited contentions over some of the items occupied about six weeks, while the lengthy arguments of the counsel and other features consumed about three weeks more, or in all from December 23, 1878, to February 28, 1879.

During a very severe storm in August, 1878, the lightning struck the west end of the large hotel stable, damaging the building slightly, prostrating one or two men employed about the stable and killing a pig. The hotel people and the guests were somewhat frightened, but no person was injured. Upon the following Sunday the following note was sent to the pastor of the church:

“The Proprietor, guests and all connected with the Proctor House request that Public Thanksgiving be offered to the Almighty God for the preservation of life and property during the storm of Friday morning last.”

Accordingly the morning religious service was properly adapted to the peculiar exigencies of the case.

This hotel was the scene of many social gatherings, among them two which were specially noteworthy.

The first was on September 8, 1875, to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the wedding of the proprietor of the hotel, Col. John S. Thompson, and Charlotte A. S. Woodman.

The second occasion was on September 20, 1880, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of the owner of the hotel, Hon. John Proctor, and Elizabeth Conant.

On both occasions the capacity of the hotel was taxed to its utmost with the entertainment of guests, many from distant towns and cities, and the anniversaries will be long remembered.

The whole town and hundreds of former guests suffered a great loss by the burning of the hotel on March 23, 1882. There was no insurance and no effort to rebuild was made. For almost 100 years the village was for the first time without a tavern.

DRINKING AND TEMPERANCE.

From the standpoint of the modern “prohibitionist,” it is not easy to understand the attitude of the early settlers of this town towards the use of distilled and fermented liquors.

From a careful consideration of all available testimony, it seems probable that at least ninety or ninety-five per cent. of all the male adults in town before 1820 drank more or less alcoholic liquor.

The dedication of a church, the installation of a pastor, the building of a log house, or the raising of the frame of a more pretentious structure, all were occasions for generous, sometimes almost unlimited, conviviality. Births, marriages and deaths were universally considered proper seasons for indulgence in copious draughts of brandy, rum or strong wines.

When making pastoral visits the minister, on entering the house, and before engaging in the usual social courtesies and the semi-religious chat of such calls, refreshed himself with a little "toddy," generally mixed by himself, and on leaving his hospitable hosts he frequently took another "bracer" to protect himself from the cold or heat of our whimsical climate.

No funeral was conducted and no marriage celebrated at the bride's home until the minister had taken his "toddy," and generally something of the same sort was needed after the ceremony for comfort and recuperation.

The wife of Capt. Josiah Bachelder objected vigorously to the location of the church near the captain's house, on Taunton Hill. "If the meeting house is built here," she said, "we shall be expected to keep a bar for the accommodation of the ministers, and I won't have a bar in my house."

It was then the custom for everybody to drink, and when New England rum could be bought for fifty cents per gallon it was comparatively easy to get enough for "comfort."

In 1820 the selectmen issued a warning "to all tavern keepers and retailers in this town, . . . not to sell or give any ardent spirits to any person or persons after they had drank sufficient for comfort." Even in those days the liquor traffic was not without its humorous phases.

The first residents took great pains to foster the growth of apple trees. At first they were simply seedlings, but they flourished in the virgin soil and in due time produced many varieties, most of them better fitted for the cider mill than for the table. Soon cider became a common beverage and enormous quantities were consumed.

It is related that a farmer in the eastern section of the town needed, in the hurry of "spring's work," a man to shovel manure. A neighbor, named Gove, having little work on hand, offered to work one day for his meals and a drink of cider for each load shovelled. Each time the cart was loaded he presented himself at the door of the house and the good housewife handed him a quart pitcher of cider, which he immediately drank. That day he loaded the cart twenty times. At the close of the day's labor the farmer spoke of the good work done and asked Gove if he would like a drink of cider. He said "yes," and he drank another quart as he started for his home.

A farmer on Beech Hill put thirty barrels of cider into his cellar in November. His family consisted of four persons. Before "planting time," in May, he began to buy cider.

Simeon Rollins, of the Flag Hole district, put eighty barrels of cider into his cellar in November and it was reported that he declared that "Granny and I brought it all out of the cellar in a mug during the winter and spring."

The confirmed cider drinker would sometimes drink enough to intoxicate three ordinary men, at least. A small farmer on Beech Hill would drink a quart of cider without moving the pitcher from his lips, and with no outward sign of swallowing; the cider ran down his throat continuously as if it had been a large rubber tube.

This general habit of drinking liquors and cider soon developed a class of people with weak wills and little self-control, and gross excesses were not uncommon in that limited class.

Such courses were matters of serious anxiety in the community; frequent complaints were made to the selectmen of the conduct of certain persons, and combined, as well as individual, efforts were made to reform habits that were fast wrecking homes as well as individuals.

The following two papers are given as samples of the interest in such matters and of the methods employed:

To the overseers of the Poor in the Town of Andover:

Gentlemen: We the undersigned having in view the general good of the Town and each of its inhabitants beg leave to represent to you that W^m. Tossey, in our opinion, is squandering his time and money at the taverns and grog sellers in a very unbecoming manner and pray that you would take some method to stop it.

No special temperance work, peculiar to this town, has ever been undertaken. The usual irregular and spasmodic agitation has appeared from time to time, young people's "bands," "leagues," etc., have interested the rising generations, while some of the parents have done the most effective work by properly training their children to cultivate self-respect and the power of self-control. The first formal temperance address in town was delivered at the East Andover meeting-house, November 25, 1832. Elders Elijah Watson and Alvah Buzzell were present, but the name of the speaker is not given in Elder Watson's journal.

This town has lived through the different experiments which the state Legislature has been pleased to make with almost every form of license, temperance and prohibitory law, and now the local conditions, with a less number of liquor-selling taverns, are about what they were in the middle of the last century.

Some men do not drink alcoholic liquor because they have no desire for it. Others generally refrain, deeming the habit unsafe and unwise. Others drink occasionally, seldom to excess, while others give free rein to their appetites and become intoxicated whenever the opportunity occurs. Happily, the second class seems to be increasing, though the rate is far too slow. This serious problem, however, is still unsolved, and the solution in this town is not yet in sight.

ANDOVER SOLDIERS.

THE LOUISBURG CAMPAIGN.

In the successful expedition against Louisburg, in 1745, New Hampshire furnished about 500 soldiers, or about one eighth of the entire force. Col. Samuel Moore, one of the Masonian proprietors, commanded one regiment, containing 360 New Hampshire men; the remaining 140 were attached to Massachusetts regiments. Unfortunately most of the muster rolls of the regiments have been lost. From one of Colonel Moore's muster rolls it has been found that the following proprietors, to whom the territory forming New Breton was granted, served in the expedition against the "Dunkirk of America:"

In Captain Williams' company: Edmund Brown, ensign; Robert Calf, sergeant; Nason Cass, John Marston, Benjamin Shaw, David Lowell, Daniel Cram, John Sanborn, John Ellis, privates.

In Captain Prescott's company: Ezekiel Worthen, ensign; Joseph Weare, ensign; David Page, Benjamin Tilton, Joseph Prescott, John Chapman, Nathan Dow, John Prescott, Samuel Blake, William Swain, privates.

John Tufton Mason, who sold his claim to the New Hampshire lands to the "Masonian Proprietors," was at one time a captain in Moore's regiment at Louisburg, and later a grantee of land in New Breton, owning half of lot thirty-six in the second range, and half of lot thirty-six in the fourth range.

Dr. Anthony Emery was a surgeon in the Louisburg expedition, and later owned the lots numbered sixty-nine in the first range and those numbered sixty-nine in the third range.

Samuel Scribner, who settled in Salisbury and afterwards moved to Andover, and William Morey, an early settler in New Breton, were privates in Captain Light's company in Moore's regiment.

Joseph Philbrick was in Captain Light's company, later settled on Taunton Hill.

Thomas, father of Jonathan Cilley, was also a soldier in the Louisburg campaign.

Joseph Prescott, Samuel Blake and Nathan Rowe, Louisburg soldiers, moved to New Breton and lived here. No record of Joseph Prescott's family has been found.

THE FRENCH AND INDIAN WARS.

The following original proprietors of New Breton served in some of the expeditions to Crown Point, Fort Edward, etc.:

At Fort Edward and at No. 4, in Charlestown, N. H.: Benjamin Shaw, Nathaniel Bachelder, Thomas Cilley, Samuel Blake.

Other soldiers who served at various times and either went from New Breton or afterwards settled or owned land there, were:

Anthony Emery, a surgeon and also a lieutenant, in Col. Jos. Blanchard's regiment, in 1755, for Crown Point.

At Crown Point in 1756: Elias Raino, Abba Brown, Samuel Scribner.

At Crown Point in 1757: Lieut. Abba Brown, Paul S. Marston, Samuel Scribner, William Blake, Edward Ladd.

Served in 1758: Lieut. Abba Brown, Edward Ladd, William Blake, and, possibly, Joseph Chandler.

Served in the expedition to Canada in 1759: Thomas Cilley, Benjamin Randall, William Blake, Samuel Sleeper.

Some of the above men served in Rogers' Rangers, but the dates and length of service are not now known.

The French and Indian War ended in 1760.

ANDOVER AND THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION.

When an open rupture of the hitherto peaceful relations between the American colonies and the British government became imminent, steps were taken immediately to establish intimate and cordial relations among all the scattered settlements in New England. To this end "committees of safety" were named in all the towns. In 1775 a Committee of Safety was appointed in New Breton to take charge of all the interests of the colonies in the town, and to supervise generally the local relations with the great revolutionary movement. This committee consisted of:

Samuel Blake, Paul Smith Marston, Thomas Blake, Joseph Severance and Moses Clough.

The members of this committee were locally known as "Safety Men."

From the time of their appointment until the town was incorporated as Andover, in 1779, the committee had entire charge of recruiting soldiers in this town for the American army.

At first the Provincial authorities furnished each town with powder, lead, flints, etc., according to the number of citizens liable to be called upon for military duty.

In comparison with the outfit of the modern soldier, it may be interesting to consider the equipment deemed necessary at the period of the War of the Revolution. On September 19, 1776, the Legislature of New Hampshire passed an act forming and regulating the militia of the state. Article VI of that act reads as follows:

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid That each and every officer & private soldier of said Militia not under the control of Parents, Masters or guardians, and being of sufficient ability therefor in the judgment of the selectmen of the Town wherein he has his usual place of abode, shall equip himself and be constantly provided with a Good Fire Arm, good Ramrod, a Worm, Priming Wire & Brush and a Bayonet fitted to his Gun, a Scabbard & Belt therefor and a cutting Sword or a Tomahawk or Hatchett, a Pouch containing a cartridge Box that will hold fifteen Rounds of Cartridges at least, a hundred Buck Shot, a Jack Knife and Tow for wadding, Six Flints, one pound of Powder, forty Leaden Balls fitted to his Gun a Knapsack & Blanket a Canteen or Wooden Bottle sufficient to hold one Quart.

The following paper was endorsed "Requisition from the committee of New Brittain for powder firearms and lead."

To the honorable general Court of New Hampshire,—

Please to deliver to the bearer of this the Powder and lead and flints that is allowed for the town of New Brittain and in so doing you will oblige your Humble Servants,

December 23, 1776.—"Voted to take the money that was raised for the County Rate in the year 1774 to pay for part of the powder and lead that is now in town."

March 14, 1777.—"The town voted to pay to those men who went to the Concord fight ten dollars each."

This must refer to the men who started for Cambridge immediately upon the arrival of the news of the conflict at Concord and Lexington, but who were not in that fight.

April 5, 1777.—“The town voted to raise 45 pounds lawful money to use in procuring men for the Continental army.”

Nathan Rowe and Moses Clough were chosen a committee to hire the men.

January 22, 1778, New Breton appropriated the sum of $200, to defray the expense of “sending men into the Revolutionary service.”

March 30, 1778.—“Received of the selectmen of New briton for the year 1777 three Pounds, one Shilling, seven pence, three farthings, for going to Main to hire two men for the Continental Army. Moses Clough.”

“Paid to the two men that Moses Clough hired to List into the Continental Army, 72 Pounds.”

“Paid John Raino for listing into the Continental Army, 15 pounds.”

July 13, 1779, just after incorporation as the town of Andover, the town voted to pay $500 to each of two more men who would serve during the war.

The town had incurred various debts on account of the war, and on August 31, 1780, it voted “to raise so much money as the town has been out to the war or what the whole accounts amount to of all that has been done.”

Several individuals had incurred considerable expense in supporting the war, and it was thought equitable that all the taxpayers should join in paying these expenses.

In 1781 the town paid Joseph Tucker one shilling and ten pence for “going in the army.” This was evidently a small balance due him on some account.

In 1782 the town paid Ezekiel Fellows, “for serving in the army,” 18 shillings. This was evidently a small balance.

In 1782 paid Joseph Chandler, for hiring soldiers, 6 shillings, 3 pence.

In 1782 paid Josiah Haines, for going in the army, £5, 10 shillings.

In 1782 paid Joshua Danford, for going in the army, £6.

June 10, 1782.—“Voted to give Joshua Danford, now in the army, the value of a yoke of six foot oxen for his service when he is lawfully discharged from the army."

January 20, 1783.—"Voted to give John Rowe three cows a year during the time he shall serve for this town in the army."

February 17, 1783.—"Voted to give Joshua Danford two hundred dollars for his service in the army."

"Voted not to give John Ash anything."

In 1783 the town paid John Raino, for going to Cambridge and "for going in the service," £4 15s. 0d.

The news of the opening fight at Concord and Lexington reached New Breton on April 21, 1775, and Joseph Fellows, Ezekiel Lunt, Joseph Tucker, William Blake, Josiah Scribner, and John Raino started promptly, armed and equipped with their own weapons and stores, to aid the cause of the colonies. The opening fight of the Revolution had already taken place, but they were in season, however, to prepare for the memorable struggle at Bunker Hill on June 17, in which they bore with honor the test of that notable conflict with trained English veterans.

Raino was the only one of the group injured, and he was only slightly wounded.

New Breton, or Andover, furnished its full quota of soldiers for the War for Independence. Most of them were residents, but a few were from other localities, but credited to this town.

Most of the records of the Revolutionary War which pertain to New Hampshire soldiers are very incomplete, and most of the records of Andover men are obtained from the pay rolls of the various companies and regiments which have been preserved.

The following list contains such names of Andover soldiers as have been gathered from town, state and national records:

Joseph Fellows, Ezekiel Lunt, Joseph Tucker, William Blake, Josiah Scribner, John Raino went to Cambridge on receipt of news of the Lexington and Concord fight, and all are supposed to have been in the battle of Bunker Hill.

John Moody Gilman, in Capt. Jeremiah Clough's company, July 13, 1775.

In Captain Shepherd's company in Continental Army, paid by Timothy Walker, paymaster, July 2, 1776: Josiah Scribner, Daniel Giles, Nathan Rowe.

Marston, third corporal; Joseph Fellows, Ebenezer Tilton, Thomas Sleeper, Jedediah Sleeper, Nathaniel Burwash, Philip Mitchell, Josiah Haines, William Morey, Mosès Welch, privates.

John Chandler, recruit for Continental Army, July 24, 1781, for six months.

Joseph Tucker, recruit for Continental Army, July 24, 1781, for six months.

Josiah Haines enlisted in Capt. Ebenezer Webster's Rangers, July 23, 1782; discharged November 7, 1782.

Nathaniel Call, John Raino, John Ash, Zaccheus Hunt of Sandown, Charles Bowles of Warren, "enlisted for three years or during the war. May 8, 1782. William Blake, Joseph Chandler, selectmen of Andover."

Before 1780, Andover "advanced for bounties to Continental soldiers Nineteen pounds Six shillings & seven pence equal to good money."

In 1777 the number of men in Andover, then New Breton, between sixteen and fifty years of age was forty-one.

John Ash was claimed by the town of Salisbury as a resident and a soldier from that town. The following affidavit is found in N. H. State Papers, Vol. III, p. 563, and appears conclusive:

The deposition of John Ash of Andover in the County of Hillsborough and State of New Hampshire Who Testifieth and saith That he moved into the Town of Andover in the year 1774 on or about the Last of September with his family and that his Son John Ash Lived in Said Town the whole of the time for More than twelve months And then that he work^d in Salisbury with Samuel Scribner to the Best of his Remembrance between foure and five months and then Returned home to him in Andover & then to the best of his Remembrance he let out his Son John Ash aforesaid in the month of April 1776 to John Collings Gale in Salisbury between foure and five months and then Returned home to him And Inlisted into the Service for about three months to go to Cohoss and then Returned home to him again and then that the Said Gale hired his Son aforesaid for a Short Time about two or three months and then Returned to him again; and that his Said Son made his house his home.

ROADS IN ANDOVER.

The early records of the meetings of the proprietors of the New Breton township give ample evidence that road-making, as then understood, was, from the beginning, an absorbing topic.

But the work of providing such roads as would stimulate settlement in the new township was no easy task. It was not a difficult matter to vote that a road from Pemigewasset River to Loon Pond should be cut, cleared and made passable; but to do that work in the wilderness, many miles from the place of meeting, was a different problem.

At the meeting of the proprietors, held at the inn of Benjamin Swett, in Hampton Falls, on October 15, 1753, it was voted "that a Road shall be Cleared to Senter Squar," etc., and votes on the location and building of roads occupied a portion of the time of almost every subsequent meeting.

THE FIRST ROAD.

The "Military" or "Plymouth" road, along the west bank of the Pemigewasset River, was cut through by Colonel Blanchard in 1754, and was cleared of bushes in the summer of 1762.

The proprietors paid Moses Burbank and William Silloway £25 4s. 0d. for the labor. This road, on the plan of Stevenstown or Salisbury, was called the "Coös" road.

On July 21, 1761, the committee appointed to locate a road to the Centre Square (see abstracts of Proprietors' Records), reported that they had made search and pursued the road from the fort in Stevenstown to Loon Pond. Some parts of this road were afterwards built, but it is now impossible to fix the location of the original line.

On October 27, 1762, the proprietors voted to pay Joseph Fellows £117, old tenor, for clearing the road from Loon Pond to Webster's Mill, in Stevenstown. He worked thirty-nine days.

In 1762 a question arose between New Breton and New Chester as to the location of the northeast bound of New Breton. This was settled in 1763 by a committee consisting of Thomas Wells and William Tolford of Boscawen, Richard Nason and Richard Smith of the New Chester proprietors, and Benjamin Tilton and Jeremiah Lane, representing the proprietors of New Breton.

On November 3, 1762, the committee, consisting of Anthony Emery, Nathaniel Healey, John Sanborn, Ezekiel Worthen, and Jeremiah Lane, appointed to cut and clear the road from Pemigewasset River to Loon Pond, reported that they had cut and cleared the Centre Road about two and one-half miles from Pemigewasset River to Chance Pond, thence round the northerly end toward the mill privilege (near what is now called "hog-back"), in said township. Also that they had hired Capt. John Webster of Boscawen to begin at Loon Pond and clear the remainder of the road towards the mill privilege. The cost of the road from the river to the mill privilege was £270 10s. 0d., and thence to Loon Pond, £48 0s. 0d.

The crossroad from "New Road to the Centre Road," through the Chase farm, was built to the "lower falls" in 1769. The Emery Road was originally called the "New Road."

While the town was known as New Breton, many paths were partially or wholly cut and more or less cleared by the settlers for the convenience of individuals or neighborhoods, but were not legally laid out. Upon the incorporation of the town under the name of Andover it was deemed wise to formally "lay out" the roads and paths that had been used with advantage. In this work many of the traveled paths were straightened and in some cases the location was materially changed.

On September 1, 1779, Joseph Philbrick, Paul S. Marston and Philip Mitchell were chosen a committee to lay out roads, and they located and relocated the principal roads in town that year.

In October they laid out the road from Benjamin Cilley's, now Andover Centre, easterly to Ragged Mountain Brook, near the present switch track, on the Plains, thence easterly to the vicinity of the present Kilburn Corner, thence easterly to Boston Hill and southerly to the Connor place, thence easterly to the Joseph A. Rowe place, nearly on the line of the highway as it existed before the railroad was built across the Plains. Before October, 1779, the road across the Plains was very crooked and little better than a wood path.

In the same year the old range road from the J. A. Rowe corner eastward to the present Thompson place, was laid out in due form.

A road from the present Flaghole schoolhouse corner, by the way of the Joseph Fellows, now Royal Stone, place, was laid out to a point near the William Emery, now W. B. Emery, place, and thence to the range line, near the burial place of Joseph Fellows, the first settler, in the Stone pasture. Only a short section of this road was ever built.

In 1779 the road was laid out from Horseshoe Pond northerly to "Swett's Corner," and thence to Capt. Peter Weare's tavern on Taunton Hill, where Wilton P. Graves now lives.

Also in 1779 the "Protectworth road," running from a point on the Salisbury line, west of Raccoon Hill, northerly to Tucker Corner, thence northwesterly across the Great Plains to Long Bridge, over Ragged Mountain Pond Brook, was laid out in due form. Before this date this road was simply a path by spotted trees.

Another important road made a legal highway in 1779 was that from the "Walker corner," east of the J. A. Rowe place, northward over the Knowles and Brown Hill to the mills at East Andover, and thence westerly along the northerly side of Loon Pond, up the valley of the Tilton Brook, to what was known as the "ten mile tree" at the "pass of the mountain" at New Chester line.

A branch of this road, running from a point near where Seward Dow's house stands, westerly to Cilley's Corner on Boston Hill, was laid out in 1779. The road from Barnard's Corner (east of the Elbridge Chase house) to the former Anthony Emery farm, where Joseph B. Emery lived in 1880, was laid out November 17, 1779. At that time John Rowell and Thomas Blake lived on that route.

In 1780 the town "voted to raise £2000 to work out on the highways the Insuing year," and also voted that "work on the highways shall be twenty dollars per day." At that time a Continental dollar was worth from two and one-half to three and one-half cents. There were four highway surveyors in 1780.

The road from Benjamin Cilley's, at Andover Centre, westward and northwestward, via the present villages of Potter Place and West Andover, to the Wilmot line, was laid out by the selectmen in September, 1780, through what had been known as the "fifteen mile woods."

"Laid out a highway from the North side of the town Down to Benjamin Sillas as the Path is Now Trod Excepting Nine Places altered and Straightened by Spotted Trees. Said Highway to be three Rods wide." This road was again laid out and straightened in 1789.

The Beech Hill or Swett Road, from the foot of the hill near and southeast of the present Fifield bridge, running first southerly and then westerly, about as the road now lies, towards the Beech Hill schoolhouse, to land of Jedediah Sleeper, was laid out in 1781.

The Range Road, from the corner east of the present residence of Henry M. Thompson on Beech Hill, westerly to the Eastman place, was first laid out in 1781, and extended easterly to the Richard Elkins place in 1794.

The road from Weare's Corner, on Taunton Hill, to the Tucker corner, northeasterly from John Bachelder's house, was laid out in June, 1782.

THE COLLEGE ROAD.

On July 4, 1774, the proprietors voted (see abstracts of records) to build a road "from the Mills in said New Britain to meet a Road at New Chester Line that is Now Cleared or Marked out through said New Chester and other Towns to Hanover." This was soon called the "College Road."

The road, as built, ran from the mills at East Andover westward across pond brook, now Tilton Brook, past the late John Bachelder's place and on to the New Chester line.

Dea. Jonathan Weare built the section from the mills to the brook, including the stone bridge over the brook, and Joseph Fellows built the remainder. Fellows was allowed thirty dollars for his work.

Prior to this date the travel northward through the central part of the town had been by a spotted trail over the mountain, by the way of Taunton Hill. The greater part of the travel through New Breton from the southern to the northern towns had been by the River Road along the Pemigewasset River.

The rapidly increasing population of the upper towns became dissatisfied with the condition of the road over the mountain to New Chester, and northwestward, and in 1784 a petition was laid before the Legislature asking for a better road. The Legislature passed an act to lay out a road, four rods wide, beginning at the River Road in Boscawen and running to Connecticut River, at or near Dartmouth College.

Timothy Walker of Concord, Ebenezer Smith of Meredith and Henry Gerrish of Boscawen were named as a committee to lay out the improved highway. On the copy of the act sent to Colonel Gerrish are the following notes: "1785, May 24, set out. Returned 30th d—7 days. Adjourned to Sept. 12, 1785, to meet at Colonel Gerrish's, Oct. 26th, 1785. Made a Return of said Road which [was] received & was accepted by the General Court."

This return has not been found among the records of the Legislature of 1785; but the following purports to be a transcript from that return so far as it relates to the route in Andover.

Beginning on the north at "New Chester line to Benjamin Ciley's house in Andover, thence straight (leaving John Sawyer's house three rods to the north) to the road as now trod; thence by said road to the Bridge over the Ragged Mountain Brook; thence nearly on a straight course to a stake three rods to the south of Simeon Connor's barn; thence on a straight course to the road by Josiah Scribner's house; thence in said road to a Beech tree marked E; thence straight, about seventeen rods across Lieut. John Roes land to the Road; thence in said road to Benjamin Huntoon's house in Salisbury." From the last mentioned point the road was to run to the River Road in Boscawen, near the house of Col. Henry Gerrish.

There appears to be no record of the construction of the various links, noted in the above return, necessary to connect the several roads already traveled.

The "Hanover Road" was, in 1787, quite neglected and unfinished, as appears by an Act of the Legislature on January 6 in that year to enforce the completion of the road. The committee appointed to build that road were authorized to proceed against the selectmen of each town that failed to put the road in passable condition, by directing the sheriff to levy and collect money, goods and chattels, of those officers for funds to construct the road.

As finally located, the "College Road" ran from Boscawen to the South Road village in Salisbury, thence to the Centre Road, thence northerly into Andover along the west base of Raccoon Hill to the Tucker corner; thence across the Plains up the westerly side of Taunton Hill, and nearly along the location of the present road, northward into New Chester.

In Salisbury the road followed in a general way, to a point a few rods northerly of S. P. Webster's house, the route subsequently adopted for the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike. The location of a part of this road is now plainly visible near the house of Buron W. Sanborn in Salisbury.

Another account of that section of the road on Taunton Hill reads: "It ran westerly in front of Mrs. Graves' down to the east side of Captain Morrill's south field and on past the Currier place, southward." That portion of the road near the north border of the plains was called, locally, the "slough" road.

In 1786 the town voted to raise thirty pounds to clear out and make passable the College Road, laid out by the court's committee, through the west part of the town towards Hanover.

Apparently no very active measures were taken to make the road passable, as the route was likely to divert travel from the older thoroughfare, in the vicinity of which most of the influential citizens lived.

In October, 1783, a road, sometimes called the "Back" Road, was opened eastward from the Ellis corner past the Newel Healey house, now the W. A. Emery place, to the top of "Great Hill," where it joined the old "Centre" Road. This change greatly improved communication, as the old road ran with many turns much farther south.

In the earlier history of the town no compensation was allowed owners for land taken for roads, but that policy was soon changed, for the records of 1781 show that Joseph Tucker was paid for land for a road; in 1782 John Ash, Charles Hilton, Jonathan Roberts and John Rowe were paid for land needed for roads; and in 1783 Joseph Philbrick, Jeremiah Fellows, Charles Hilton, Simeon Connor and Joseph Brown were paid for land taken for the same purpose. In some cases the town exchanged portions of the original rangeways for the land needed for roads.

In 1782 the highway tax was £61 7s. 10d., and this sum was placed in the hands of the following surveyors to be used in their respective districts.

Nathaniel Danforth in the River district.

Samuel Blake in the Mills district.

Benjamin Cilley in the western part of the town.

Joseph Fellows in the Flaghole district.

Moses Clough in the Boston Hill district.

In 1783 the first road from East Andover Mills to Tilton corner, the Reuben Bachelder place, was straightened. It originally ran considerably south of the James Marston place.

The road from Blake's corner to Tucker Mountain district was laid out in 1788.

In 1790 there were eight highway districts.

ROADS IN ANDOVER IN 1790.

In 1790 the principal roads in Andover were as follows: The "River" Road, sometimes called the "Military" Road or the "Plymouth" Road. This road ran north and south along the west bank of the Pemigewasset River. A branch of this road extended westward to the "east end of the mountains."

The highway called the "Centre" Road ran from the "River" Road around the north side of Chance pond, about as the road now runs, to the top of the hill sometimes called Great Hill, where Jacob Weare lived in 1850, thence down the hill to Mill Brook above "Hogback" ridge, across the stream southwesterly and westerly to the valley southwest of the "Back Road" schoolhouse, continuing along this valley the road emerged from the ravine at the southward of Hobbs' Hill, turned farther south over the knoll and continued over meeting-house hill to the old "Church Common," and to the saw and gristmills. A branch way from this road ran along the foot of the hill, north of the cemetery, down to Mill Brook, just below the gristmill, which was near where Busiel's hosiery mill now stands. Thence along the west side of the sawmill (the site of which was occupied in 1880 by the Highland Mills) to a point near the W. S. Marston place. Another, or return road, ran from the Church Common easterly by a route now lost in field and pasture, through the Emery region, over Marston Hill along the south side of Chance Pond, over the outlet of the pond and across the plains to the "River" Road at a point in ward one of the present city of Franklin.

A private or "driftway," laid out by the selectmen in 1788, extended from Blake corner, near where C. B. Hilton now lives, "across Mill brook" to the Tucker Mountain Road, and another driftway ran from the vicinity of the Back or North Road schoolhouse to the Timothy Weare farm.

From a point a little westward from the sawmill ran a way along near the present location of the Tucker Mountain Road. This was laid out by the selectmen, as far as the farm now owned by G. E. Eastman, in 1788. Another road was open from the mills and the Mountain Road corner, northwesterly along the north side of Loon Pond, up the valley of the Tilton brook to a point on the "College" Road.

From Barnard's corner a road ran southerly, as at the present time, to the town line where a range road, on the south line of the town, extended easterly to the top of the hill beyond Flaghole.

At the site of the present Flaghole schoolhouse a road diverged in a northeasterly direction through that settlement.

From the Raino corner west of Flaghole, a range road extended west to the Stevenstown or Salisbury North Road, and thence in a generally northwesterly direction to Connor's tavern on Boston Hill, and thence westerly down the hill, across the plains to "Long" bridge at Great Brook.

This was at first called a part of the "College Road" to a point west of the present Boston Hill schoolhouse; from that point the College Road ran across the plains, up the westerly side and over the Taunton Hill to New Chester, etc.

From the site of the Boston Hill schoolhouse, the road running over Great Brook on the Long bridge and westerly through Andover Centre was known as the Great or State Road.

From the Brown Hill Road, at the bend southeast from the Brown place, a highway extended southwest down the hill to Bailey brook, continuing over Boston hill to Long bridge corner on the plains, crossing the original College Road by an offset at Kilburn's corner. The cross road from the Connor place, running northerly to the Cilley corner, followed closely the location of the present road.

A private "driftway" connected the Boston Hill Road with the mill and meeting-house locality by a route through the pine woods on the little plains and at the east of the north meadow of Loon Pond to the Church Common.

From the road extending between the mills and the Mark Batchelder corner a road was open as it now runs past the parsonage, where Hale Flanders now lives, to the College Road on Taunton Hill.

From the Graves corner on Taunton Hill a road ran nearly as it now lies, westward to Ragged Mountain Brook, thence to Swett's corner and southerly to the road near Horseshoe Pond; and another highway was open from this road, near the Ragged Mountain Brook, up into the "Bear World."

From the road to Salisbury, west of Raccoon Hill, a range road ran eastward over the hill to the Raino farm.

A much-used road, starting from the south line of Andover at the western foot of Raccoon Hill, extending northerly to Tucker's corner, thence northwesterly across the Great plains, past the present Merrill farm, to the junction with the State Road at Long bridge corner. This important link in the north and westward route through Salisbury, Andover Centre, West Andover, etc., was sometimes called the "Protectworth Road."

The "Great" or "State" Road extended from "Long Bridge" over "Great" brook at a point southwest of the present wood and lumber railroad station on the "plains" westerly to the vicinity of the present Centre village. At this point the road curved southward, passing south of the present new and old cemeteries, reaching the highway, as now located, near the Keniston corner, where Vivian Quimby now lives, and following generally the line of the present highway to the "Morey" Hill east of Potter Place. There the road curved south, following the present site of the railway past Potter Place and then generally following the direction of the present highway on to West Andover. Thence the road ran northwestward through the Dudley neighborhood to the town line. This road was first put in condition for travel in 1784 and finished in 1786-'87. It had been "bushed out" before that date. It was first laid out three rods wide, by the town, in 1780.

From the present Potter Place a road was laid out April 2, 1788, southwesterly along the line of the present highway, past Aaron Cilley's mill to the line of "Kearsage Gore," now Wilmot.

A road was also open from the Keniston corner to the region of the Great Meadow, since called Bachelder or Fellows meadow. From Andover Centre a road ran southward over the Blackwater River and up the valley of Nether Pond Brook. No record has been found that this section of the road was ever laid out by the selectmen. At a point not far from the present residence of Charles Merrill the road turned southeast, running east of Apple Hill to the town line, connecting there with a road laid out by the town of Salisbury.

The road from Keniston corner to Mompey Hill was open in 1790 and extended to the Fourth Range.

The path, from a point on the "Back" or "North" road, near where the schoolhouse afterwards stood, to Stephen Green's, now the William Weare place, was laid out as a highway, one and one-half rods wide, on August 28, 1792. Joseph Brown and Ephraim Sanborn lived near the road as located.

In 1793 the town laid out a road across the stream at East Andover, just south of the sawmill owned by John Roberts, and through his mill yard. He objected strenuously. The bridge was built low, very near the water, so that he could not raise the water much without floating the bridge. Finally, in 1794, on condition that the selectmen should raise the bridge one foot, he withdrew all objection to the highway and peace reigned once more.

"At Court of Common Pleas Holden at Amherst in County of Hillsborough, 2^d Tuesday of Mar. 1796: on Petition of Philip Mitchell praying for damages; Court ordered a Committee consisting of John C. Gale, Jona. Fifield & Abel Elkins to examine the road laid out and report such compensation as they think proper the petitioner should receive. Reported the Selectmen had not tendered sufficient compensation and that Mitchell be paid $30.00 for the road crossing his land and $18.00 cost of court."

In 1798 the road past the Corliss house was discontinued; and a road to take its place, running from the foot of the small Corliss hill to Barnard's corner was laid out in 1799.

The Philbrick Road from the North Road to the east end of the mountain towards the Call neighborhood was laid out September 16, 1801.

The Robie Spring Road was laid out by order of the court in 1801. The cross road from North Road to the Emery Road was finally laid out, as it now runs, in 1801.

(The road at first called the "Back" Road was in 1801 recorded as the "North" Road and the latter name will be continued in these records.)

The road over Beech Hill from Salisbury line northward through the farms of Weare Hilliard and George Seavey was laid out March 15, 1794, and accepted by the town, July 7, 1794.

The continuation of this road to and across Blackwater River to the State Road was laid out June 18, 1794, and accepted by the town July 7, 1794.

The above sections, taken together, constituted the road from the Centre village over Beech Hill past the schoolhouse to Salisbury line; in direction and location generally as it is now travelled, past the Hervey Elkins place.

The road from the "southeast corner of Isaiah Langley's farm," now owned by Henry M. Thompson, on Beech Hill, northward to the road from the east side of Beech Hill, at a point near where the large elm tree now stands, was laid out August 22, 1794, and accepted December 8, 1794.

In 1801 some of the citizens of East Andover wanted a road on the west side of the stream from Loon Pond to the mill, with a bridge over the outlet of the pond. They began work on the road and bridge, but meeting with no encouragement from the town authorities, they petitioned the court "for a highway to be laid out in Andover from Capt. Wm. Proctor's house to strike the south road in said town near Roby Spring, so called."

In March, 1802, the court appointed a committee consisting of General Blood, Major Wallace and Aaron Greeley, Esq., to lay out the road. The committee reported that they had "laid out the road three rods wide as follows: Beginning at the southerly side of the highway opposite Capt. William Proctor's dwelling house and nigh the westerly side of Mr. Stickney's store, between two Stakes and Stones, we set thence S. 2° E.—22 rods through Mr. Stickney's land to Mr. Robert's land, the same course 66 rods to the pond; thence the same course over the outlet of the pond about 20 rods, thence southerly about the same course, by the line between two lots of land, taking the whole width of the road off the west lot, $22\frac{1}{2}$ rods; thence S. 40° E.—14 rods through Ebenezer Tucker's land; then the same course through John Bailey's land 14 rods to Bailey's road (so called), thence on the same course and five rods, through James N. Pervere's land; then S. 22° E.—54 rods; then S. 15° E.—36 rods; then S. 19° E.—86 rods; then S. 10° E.—40 rods further through said Pervere's land to the South road in Andover provided the petitioners complete the Bridge that is now begun over the outlet of the pond within one year at their own proper cost and charge the bridge to be covered with good square edged white pine plank three inches thick and good rails put upon each side of the bridge the whole length thereof the whole of the [bridge] to be well built of good sound timber. The above road to be opened by the town of Andover within one year. We estimate the damage of the above road as follows:—viz. to Mr. Stickney D.3.00; Mr. Roberts, D.10.00; Mr. Hilton D.5.00; Mr. Brown, D.12.00; Ebenezer Tucker D.2.50; John Bailey D.2.50 and James N. Pervere D.50.00 to be paid by the town of Andover within one year and the petitioners receive of the town of Andover D.35.00. Cost of Committee and cost of Court taxed in common form."

The court granted the petition as reported by the committee and put the cost of court at $15.36.

The road, as surveyed, was about 380 rods long and, according to the appraisal of the committee, the land was worth about $14 per acre. The road and bridge were finished in 1803.

Previous to the building of this road the travel from the mills at East Andover village had been through the south field of the C. A. Durgin estate, thence across the little plain near the present Lakeside Cemetery and through the Haley pasture.

The road from the Weare place northward over Dea. Samuel Cilley's hill to New Chester was laid out in 1806.

The road from Parker Scribner's corner to the burial place at Sawyer's corner was laid out in 1806.

In 1807 the Captain Tucker road, running northeasterly from the Deacon Kimball or Pettingill place to Taunton Hill, was laid out by a court committee.

December 28, 1807, the Centre Square and the ranegway leading therefrom to the Badcock Road was sold at auction to Dr. Jacob B. Moore for $271.75. Samuel Graves, "Vendue Master."

For several years there was a bitter local controversy in regard to the location of the road leading southerly from East Andover village. Should it lie on the east or the west side of the outlet of the pond was the vital question.

Finally, in 1809, a road was laid out and built on the east side of the outlet of the pond, near the location of the present road, and superseding the one built in 1803 on the west side and over the bridge. The irritation of the controversy, however, did not immediately subside.

In 1823 the town was indited for neglecting the road bridge over the outlet of the pond.

A new section of road from near the big elm tree on the east Beech Hill Road to a point on the west Beech Hill Road, near the present Hame Company's shop, was laid out in 1815.

A short road, running northerly from the "Smithfield" Road to the sawmill of Jonathan Roberts, was laid out in 1820.

In 1821 a highway from Salisbury along the easterly shore of Bradley Pond to the highway between the Centre village and Potter Place was laid out by the court's commission and three years were allowed for building it. That portion from Salisbury line northerly, about one mile, was nearly finished when the town of Salisbury refused to build its section and the road was abandoned.

In a warrant for one of the Andover town meetings this road was called the "Imperial Turnpike."

In a portion of the above line, from the western end of the highway, near J. E. Fitzgerald's house, northwesterly past the house of W. Lorden to the highway running southerly from the Keniston corner, a road was laid out by the selectmen, but was never built.

In 1823-'24 the causeway across the meadow south of the mills at East Andover village, and east of the stream, was rebuilt by Capt. Caleb Marston for $360. It was called the "Long bridge."

The so-called "Brook Road" below "Dyer's Crossing" was laid out by Ephraim Eastman, surveyor, and was first built in 1824 or 1825. Capt. Jonathan Brown of Beech Hill was the builder. The freshet of August 28, 1828, destroyed much of this road.

Capt. Caleb Marston was very much opposed to the road and would not use it. He drew all of his lumber, largely long and heavy masts, over the hills of the Emery Road and Marston Hill to the Merrimack River.

The road at Cilleyville, from Potter Place to Wilmot, formerly crossed the river about where the middle of the carriage shop now stands. It was changed, after the great freshet of August, 1826.

The "Mill Brook" Road, from the Henry Emery corner to the Parker Scribner corner, was built in October and November, 1827. Capt. Caleb Marston superintended the construction and was paid $1.00 per day. The road was completed in sixteen days. Laborers were paid 67 cents per day, boarding themselves, and a man with a yoke of oxen received $1.17 per day.

The road from the Gershom Durgin place, where the late George W. Mitchell lived, eastward and across the East Andover plain towards the East Andover village, was laid out by a court committee in September, 1834. This road, the section past the gristmill and the change at the "Gulf" were completed in 1835.

The Andover section of the road running from the south side of the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike, near the Rev. Samuel Robbins place, westward towards Gookin's Mills, was laid out September 21, 1835.

That section of road from the corner west of the Hubbard Dudley place towards the causeway at the outlet of Eagle Pond was built about 1846.

The road from Cilleyville to West Andover, on the west side of Bog Pond, was laid out by the county commissioners in 1846.

When the railroad was built in 1846, the section of the Brook Road near "Hogback" was abandoned and the road was re-located on the hillside.

The link connecting the old road to the True and Tucker farms on Tucker Mountain, with the old College Road leading over "Ragged Mountain pass" to Hill and beyond, was laid out June 18, 1852.

A road on Beech Hill "from Eben Farnum's south bars northwesterly to Bachelder's Road, so called, through land of R. F. Eastman, Eben. Farnum, Walcott Hamlin and Isaac R. Eastman, was laid out November 6, 1853, but never built. It was again laid out in 1867, but not built. A short road from a point west of the Ziba Severance house to the plains, near Tucker corner, was laid out October 2, 1854.

The road leading from Raino corner on Raccoon Hill northwesterly to the East Andover and West Salisbury road on the plains, was laid out November 30, 1860.

In 1868 the new road was built from a point near the Andrew Seavey sawmill, towards Morey Hill. In 1872 the town voted to collect the highway tax and have all the work on the roads done under the direction of one surveyor or superintendent. In 1873, voted to return to the old system, under which each taxpayer worked out his highway tax in his own district, at a fixed rate per hour.

In 1875 a wooden-covered bridge was erected over the river at Andover Centre. For many years the old structure had been known as the "Seavey" bridge, so named for Mr. Henry Seavey, whose home for a long time was just south of the bridge.

In 1878 new guideboards, or post guides, as they were first called, were erected at many of the road crossings in town. Most of the guide boards then standing had been in use from thirty-five to forty years.

In 1880 the old bridge, formerly known as the "Philbrick" bridge, southeast of Kimball's corner, was removed and replaced by a wooden-covered bridge, which is now generally known as the "Fifield bridge."

THE FOURTH NEW HAMPSHIRE TURNPIKE.

This road, when finished, ran from Boscawen "Plains" northerly and westerly through Salisbury "South Road" and "Centre Road," Andover Centre, Potter Place, West Andover, Wilmot Centre and Springfield on towards the Connecticut River in Lebanon.

It was incorporated by an Act of the Legislature passed in the autumn of 1800.

As incorporators the Act named Elisha Payne, Russell Freeman and Constant Storrs and their associates and successors, etc.

The general location of the road is defined as below:

"SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, that the said corporation are empowered to survey, lay out, make and keep in repair a turnpike road of four rods wide, on such route or tracks as in the best of their judgment and skill shall combine shortness of distance with the most practicable ground from the east bank of Connecticut River, in the town of Lebanon, nearly opposite to the mouth of White River, eastwardly to the west bank of the Merrimack River in the town of Salisbury or Boscawen; and also to survey, lay out, make and keep in repair, as aforesaid, a turnpike road, four rods wide, from the east abutment of White River Falls bridge in Hanover southeastwardly till it intersects the road first mentioned and be a branch thereof."

A committee consisting of James Whitelaw of Ryegate, Gen. Elias Stevens of Royalton and Maj. Micah Barron of Bradford, all of Vermont, was chosen by the proprietors to survey and lay out the route.

From Horseshoe Pond in Andover two routes were selected, through Salisbury and Boscawen, to the Merrimack River. On that section of the route the report was as below:

"From said pond through Salisbury, two routes:—the northern by Maj. Gale's to Col. Gerrish's is 9 miles 113 rods; from said Gerrish's to Boscawen meeting-house is 2 miles 240 rods; from Horse Shoe pond through the south vale in Salisbury by Esq. Bean's to Boscawen Meetinghouse is 10 miles 226 rods which is 1 mile 113 rods further than to Col. Gerrish's, but is 1 mile 127 rods nearer than the north route by Col. Gerrish's to Boscawen Meeting house. Your committee recommend the south route by Esq. Bean's provided there is no particular embarrassments in procuring the land."

At this time "south vale" is an unknown locality.

When the report of the committee was presented to the corporation at a meeting on September 24, 1801, the northern route by Major Gale's to Colonel Gerrish's was unanimously adopted. John C. Gale was chosen one of the five directors. At a later meeting the route through the "south vale" by Esquire Bean's to Boscawen meeting-house was adopted. By this time much interest in the plans of the company had developed.

The south and centre villages in Salisbury were earnestly opposed to the adopted route and sharp, sometimes bitter, discussion followed. At first each village tried to secure the route through its own locality, leaving the other with no advantages. This struggle for selfish ends delayed the completion of the turnpike until a committee of the proprietors reported that under certain conditions it "ought to be made by the two meeting-houses," that is, through the two Salisbury villages, and there the road was finally built.

The notes of the final survey from Dea. Amos Pettingill's house at the Centre village, afterwards known as the Searle's place, to and through Andover, across the line into Wilmot, were as given below:

"Which road is four rods wide southwesterly from the afore-said bounds." The "cross road near the bridge last built by Captain Harriman" ran from a point a few rods west of Horse-shoe Pond, across the river near the present Fifield bridge and on south up Beech Hill.

The "Walter Waldo" place was a tavern at Potter Place.

The "Harriman bridge" still stands at West Andover, ten rods or more below where Fifield's mills once stood. It is probable that Bonney's mill, the first in the westerly part of the town, stood on or near the site of Fifield's mills.

The Andover section of the turnpike was built by Capt. Stephen Harriman of Vermont. He built a light, but strong, frame house, about thirty feet long, resting on solid wooden trucks for convenience in moving from point to point as the work progressed. Two smart, capable daughters did the cooking for a gang of more than twenty workmen, who lodged in tents. Eight yoke of oxen used on the road were able to move the building along as required, and a span of horses brought up the rear of the procession on "moving day," drawing a large iron-hooped brick oven built on a solid platform supported on wheels.

The schedule of tolls on the turnpike was provided in a section of the charter as given below:

SECT. 6. And be it further enacted that it shall and may be lawful for said corporation to appoint such and so many toll gatherers, as they shall think proper, to collect and receive of and from all & every person or persons using said road the tolls and rates hereinafter mentioned; and to prevent any person riding, leading or driving any horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, sulkey, chair, chaise, phaeton, coach, chariot, cart, wagon sley, sled or other carriage of burthen or pleasure from passing through the said gates or turn pikes until they shall have respectively paid the same, that is to say, for every mile of said road and so in proportion for a greater or less distance, or greater or smaller number of sheep, hogs or cattle; viz. for every fifteen sheep or hogs, one cent; for every fifteen cattle or horses, two cents; for every horse and his rider or led horse, three fourths of one cent; for every sulkey, chair or chaise with one horse or two wheels, one and an half cents; for every chariot, coach or stage wagon, phaeton or chaise with two horses and four wheels, three cents; for either of the carriages last mentioned with four horses, four cents; for every other carriage, the like sums, according to the number of wheels and horses drawing the same; for each cart or other carriage of burthen with wheels drawn by one beast, one cent; for each cart or other carriage of burthen drawn by two beasts, one and an half cents; if by more than two beasts, one cent for each additional yoke of oxen or horse; for each sley drawn by one horse, three fourths of one cent; if drawn by two horses, one and an half cent, and if by more than two horses half a cent for every additional horse; for each sled drawn by one horse, half of one cent: for each sled drawn by two horses or a yoke of oxen, one cent; and if by more than two horses or one yoke of oxen one cent for each additional pair of horses or yoke of oxen; and at all times when the toll gatherer shall not attend his duty the gates shall be left open, and if any person shall with his carriage, team, cattle or horses turn out of said road to pass the said turnpike gates on ground adjacent thereto, said ground not being a public highway, with intent to avoid the payment of the toll due, by virtue of this act such person shall forfeit and pay three times so much as the legal toll would have been, to be recovered by the treasurer of the said Corporation, to the use thereof in an action of debt or on the case; provided that nothing in this act shall extend to entitle the corporation to demand toll of any person who shall be passing with his horse or carriage to or from public worship, or with his horse, team or cattle, or on foot, to or from any mill or on their common or ordinary business of family concerns within the town where such person belongs.

The toll gate in Andover was at West Andover, opposite the big elm in front of the Babbitt place. The next to the east and south was north of the Webster place, in Salisbury, and just south of the point where the road branches to go to East Andover.

The turnpike was finished and accepted by the corporation in the autumn of 1804. From Clark's tavern at West Andover to the Dearborn tavern, where the road now forks just east of Nathan Woodbury's, it was three miles and 232 rods.

The first record of appointment of toll gatherers was on February 7, 1809.

The toll gatherers were sworn and gave bonds for $500 for faithful discharge of their duties.

It was provided in the charter that the road should be completed in six years from the date of incorporation, and also that at any time after the expiration of forty years from the date of incorporation the state might take possession of the road on payment of expenditures and twelve per cent. annual profit, less the tolls actually received, etc.

So far as now known, no one outside of the corporation ever knew how valuable the road was to its owners.

The following paper, purporting to be a copy of a report of the directors, has come to the hand of the writer, but its accuracy is not known:

REPORT OF DIRECTOR OF THE FOURTH N. H. TURNPIKE 1836.

The expenditures on said Road in making and Keeping it in repair and paying Toll Gatherers up to Mar 2, 1836 is 159124 dolls 92 1-2 cts.

And the profits arising from Tolls taken at the Gates is 123562 dolls and 1-2 cent.

NATHAN STICKNEY,

Directors of the 4th Turn. Road in New Hampshire.

THOMAS WATERMAN,
Clerk.

Lebanon, May 24, 1836.

Roads with toll gates are seldom popular with the people along the route, and the fourth New Hampshire turnpike was no exception to the general law. At first the advantages of a better road were generally appreciated, but as the population increased and the quality of adjacent roads was improved, the tolls, as taxes on transportation, were soon considered in the aggregate as a burden. A large amount of freight for Salisbury, Andover and the towns toward the Connecticut River was carried over this route, and the frequent tolls were no small addition to the expenses of the merchants along the line. As the time approached when, under certain conditions, the state would have the right to take possession of the road, petitions to the Legislature urging the state to exercise its privilege began to appear from the towns between Andover and Lebanon.

Finally, in 1840, a court committee, consisting of Simeon Colby, Moses Norris, Jr., and Nathaniel S. Berry, after due investigation, made the turnpike from West Andover to the Boscawen end a free road, and Andover was ordered to pay $566 as its proportion for the benefit of the stockholders of the turnpike.

With the abolition of tolls business increased apace. Freights to the western towns of New Hampshire and to the eastern towns of Vermont were increasingly attracted to this route, and soon the daily procession of freight teams over the Salisbury hills, along the banks of the Blackwater River in Andover, and westward over the rugged way through Wilmot and Springfield developed and fostered a sympathetic interest among the dwellers along that route that never flagged until 1847 when the well-known eight-horse teams of Balch and the one-horse team of the up country farmer vanished at the blast of the steam whistle as the iron rails won and held their way through rock and glen and over bog and bridge toward White River Junction.

But the vision of that unfailing line of teams is still a charming memory to those who can recall the scenes of sixty years ago. Balch's teams of eight well-groomed white horses, one team driven by a stalwart negro, a striking figure in those days; six-horse and four-horse teams to handle the heavier freight; three-horse or spike teams; two-horse or pod teams, and one-horse teams, or pungs, in the winter, trailed along the way to and from Boston, Salem, Gloucester and Portsmouth, doing that freighting for the manufacturer, grocer and farmer which now flies shrieking through our villages in the darkness, the mechanical, materialized ghost of the old way with the human element and "man's best friend" left out.

The writer recalls with vivid distinctness the view of the Common east of Moulton's tavern, on more than one pleasant winter evening. Nearly all the space was covered with the parked sleighs and sleds of many varieties, from the huge van drawn by eight horses to the little one-horse box pung, filled with the butter, cheese, poultry, etc., of the New Hampshire or Vermont farmer, seeking a market "down below." Each stall in the roomy barns of the tavern was filled and, when business was unusual, horses were accommodated in the barns of Esq. Peter Fifield and other neighboring farmers.

Not the least interesting by any means was an occasional pung or pod going westward loaded with fresh frozen cod or haddock, weighing from ten to forty pounds each, and frequently piled up on the sled like cordwood. These fish were sometimes sold to people along the route, and the chowders and steaks from the larger fish were a welcome break in the monotonous routine of salt pork and beef in the winter menu of sixty years ago.

The regular teamsters were well known to most of the residents along the route, and among themselves their mutual acquaintance stimulated respect and good comradeship. Out of their ranks came many of the successful men in the varied phases of business that developed along new lines when the old methods of transportation were overturned.

Still another class of men were beneficiaries of the old system. Many farmers felt that there might be some advantage in seeking their own market, and a winter pilgrimage to the markets on Massachusetts bay became for them an annual outing. With their pungs and pods filled with the best of the surplus from their farms, they found their way singly or in twos or threes to the big road, and took up the route for "down below" and a market.

Frequently half a dozen teams would form a group and keep together for the trip, sleeping in the taverns, and on the down trips eating the food they had taken from home, sometimes supplemented by generous mugs of the landlord's flip. At the end of their journey they met in person the merchants with whom they traded; there was time for discussion, for interchange of information, high quality of wares was duly appreciated, mutual respect and confidence were developed; sometimes friendships resulted, and the travellers started on their homeward trips with teams well laden with family stores and with pockets and minds well plenished for the work of the coming year.

Repeated trips improved the friendships with their fellows and widened their horizons as good citizens.

Has the middleman improved the character of either merchant or farmer, who now never meet?

GRAFTON TURNPIKE.

This turnpike was incorporated June 21, 1804, to run from Orford bridge on the Connecticut River to Harriman's bridge at West Andover. Four years were allowed for the completion of the road. In 1808 this time was extended by the Legislature three years more. On application by the proprietors, the charter was repealed by the Legislature on January 3, 1829. This road ran from West Andover to South Danbury, on to Danbury and through Grafton, etc., about as the main road is now travelled.

THE NORTHERN RAILROAD.

The demand for speed in freight and passenger transportation towards the growing west soon relegated the six- and eight-horse freight teams to the lighter express business or to the more prosaic work of tilling the hillside farms of New Hampshire, and condemned the Concord stage coaches to the scrap heap or to the museums for curiosities or antiques.

The first meeting of the incorporators of the Northern Railroad Company was holden at Lebanon, January 31, 1845, and in 1847 the section of the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike lying in the town of Andover was practically free from the stage coach and freight teams that for many years had made it a busy thoroughfare.

By joint action of the railroad company and the county commissioners, the damages for land taken by the railroad company in Andover was fixed at $6,547.70. This, however, was not the entire sum paid by the company, for the several settlements in and outside the courts of claims by disaffected landowners changed the aggregate considerably. The life and activities of the Northern Railroad, so far as they touch the interests of this town, are so interwoven with the daily life of almost every family that an attempt at further historical description or analysis would be as unnecessary, not to say futile, as to elaborate our daily experience with storm and sunshine or the succession of the days.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

The Andover Social Library was incorporated by act of the Legislature, approved June 22, 1814. Jonathan Weare, Rev. Josiah Badcock and Dr. Silas Merrill and their associates were named as incorporators. The following officers were elected: Jonathan Weare, president; Robert Barber, Samuel Graves, directors; Josiah Badcock, librarian.

By the rules and regulations it was provided that "the said Social Library shall be kept alternately east and west, within one and one half miles from the center square in said Andover."

"The annual assessment on each share shall be twenty cents."

"The library shall be open every Saturday during the two hours preceding sunset."

"Five volumes may be taken at one time by a shareholder."

For every blot of tallow or ink, the fine was fixed at ten cents. This was in the day of dipped candles and the running and spluttering lights, dim at their best, were the ready means for defacing the books of that period. The drowsy, nodding head and the relaxing hand that held the candle were the frequent signals that roused the family to save the pages in the tired farmer's hands from the unsightly drop of tallow.

In 1817 the catalogue of books and the names of the shareholders were printed at Concord. At that time there were ninety-two volumes in the departments of theology, history, biography, philosophy, geography, natural history, politics, poetry, and fiction. For a small collection, the selection was fairly well made for that epoch. For thirty years this library was not seriously depleted. The remains of the collection are now scattered in various parts of the town among the descendants of the original shareholders.

The shareholders in 1817 were:

Bachelor, Reuben

The Sewing Society Library was established about 1846, at Andover Centre, and a good collection of books was put in circulation. Mrs. Samuel Butterfield was librarian. A few of these books finally found their way into the Proctor Academy library.

The East Andover Social Library was organized in 1849, with Clark Durgin as librarian. The collection contained about 200 volumes, fairly well selected for a country library. The books were finally scattered among the original proprietors.

The libraries of the various Sabbath schools contain, in the aggregate, about 400 volumes of the usual indifferent quality.

THE TOWN LIBRARY.

In 1891 the Legislature passed an act creating a board of library commissioners for the state.

On application from any town not having a public library, said commissioners were permitted to expend a sum not exceeding $100 toward the establishment of a public or town library in said town. On March 8, 1892, this town voted to accept the offer embodied in the act, and took the steps necessary to secure the benefits of a town library. By the terms of this act any town accepting its provisions "shall annually appropriate not less than $50, if its last assessed valuation was $1,000,000, or upward; $25 if the valuation was less than $1,000,000, and not less than $250,000, and $15 if the valuation was less than $250,000." The members of the school board were chosen as library trustees and $100 was appropriated.

In 1895 the Legislature provided for the support of town libraries, that "The selectmen in each town shall assess annually upon the polls and ratable estate taxable therein a sum to be computed at the rate of thirty dollars for every dollar of the public taxes apportioned to such town, and so for a greater or less sum." This law assured a certain amount of financial support to each town library, independent of the uncertainties of town meeting appropriations.

For several years the town library was housed in the lower room of the west wing of the academy, at the Centre, and the librarian took charge also of the books belonging to the academy library.

A branch library was established at East Andover, according to a system providing for a frequent exchange of books, in bulk, between the branch and the main library.

In the fire which destroyed the academy building, on January 13, 1901, nearly all the books of the town library were burned.

This serious loss seemed to inspire the citizens throughout the town with a determination to have a new library without delay. Individual subscriptions to that end were soon received, and small social gatherings were held to help the cause.

The ladies from all sections of the town united in a plan for holding a bazaar in May, 1901, to raise money for the purchase of books. The affair was well patronized, not only by present and former residents of the town, but by natives of the town who had made their homes elsewhere, and the results exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. In all there was obtained:

From individual subscriptions,	$9.00
young peoples' box party,	7.00
Ladies' Industrial Society,	10.00
the Ladies' Bazaar, net results,	248.18
book table at the bazaar, money and books,	26.00
	$300.18
From insurance on books burned,	200.00
special appropriation by town,	250.00
Total for new library,	$750.18

The new books, with the few saved from the fire, were temporarily installed in the boarding hall of the academy until the new academy was completed, when they were transferred to a pleasant, commodious and well-finished room on the second floor of that building. The new library is a great improvement on the old.

THE PROCTOR ACADEMY LIBRARY.

This library was established by the Unitarian Educational Society in 1889.

The nucleus of the library was a few books which had belonged to the school when under the control of the Christian denomination. Generous donations of books and money were obtained by Mr. T. W. White, principal of the school, in 1889-'90. In 1900 there were 1,480 volumes. In the following year the most of these were destroyed in the academy fire. There are now (1904) 617 volumes. The use of the library is free to the people of the village and vicinity.

POUNDS.

The first pound in town, for the confinement of stray domestic animals or those found trespassing on land not belonging to the owners of the stock, was built by vote of the town on Taunton Hill, near and northeast of the present residence of ex-Gov. N. J. Bachelder.

In 1816 a pound was built by Henry D. Hilton, for $25, between the house of Joseph Ladd, now the Lizzie Marston place, and the house of James Tucker, Jr., now Mrs. E. G. Emery's place, and nearly opposite the west district schoolhouse.

About 1821 this pound was abandoned and a new one built in the rear of the North meeting-house.

At the annual meeting on March 8, 1831, it was voted to build a pound with walls of stone. The location and the dimensions of the pound were to be fixed by the selectmen, the time for building not to exceed one year.

Voted that Joseph C. Thompson's barn yard be a pound till the pound is built and that Mr. Thompson be the pound keeper.

March 13, 1832, voted "that Jonathan Kimball's barnyard be a pound till one is made."

There is no record of the action of the selectmen, but the pound near the Pettingill place was built before March 10, 1835, for on that day Frank Pettingill was chosen poundkeeper.

At first these pounds were useful in protecting and restraining stock belonging to careless owners, but, if traditions are trustworthy, the opportunity to get even with one's neighbor by impounding his stock in accordance with the letter of the law, was the source of much ill-feeling, frequently curdling the milk of human kindness in a whole neighborhood.

The poundkeepers elected by the town were:

PAUPERS.

Prolonged illness, accidents and other misfortunes, together with chronic laziness, incapacity and intemperance, combined to produce a small class of people in the pioneer communities whose individual existence depended upon the good-will of their relatives and neighbors.

When these failed the burden fell upon the charitable, but it was finally shifted from the individual to the town.

At the close of the eighteenth century organized charity had not been developed in the sparsely settled New Hampshire towns, and each case was generally considered separately in the town meetings. At first each case in Andover was assumed to be a town charge, and the town hired some citizen to furnish food and clothing to the dependent person for a fixed period. This was soon accepted as the proper method, and the custodian and the price paid were generally determined by vendue at the annual town meeting. It was always stipulated that the persons taking charge of the paupers should see that they had proper care, and if sick, good nursing; should furnish them with reasonably good food and clothing, and that their clothing should be as good at the end of the period as at the beginning. The paupers were to do as much work as they were able to perform safely.

The first record of a case settled at town meeting was that of Widow Elkins, who was set up March 20, 1797, and her care, with board and clothing was bid off by Gershom Durgin for the first quarter of the year at 2s. 6d.; for the second quarter to Jacob Dudley at 1s. 11d.; the third quarter to Elisha Cilley at 2s. 3d., and for the last quarter to Benjamin Cilley at 2s. 5d. per week. This method of supporting and caring for paupers was carried on for a score of years with little variation. It was soon found that in a few cases the labor of the paupers was more than an equivalent for their board and care, and the annual auctions or vendues were sometimes held to find the highest bidder for the labor of each dependant. Food, clothing, care and nursing were required as before; the cost of medical attendance was defrayed by the town.

Among the conditions pertaining to the sale and care of paupers in 1820 were the following items:

Each person will be struck off to the lowest bidder for the term of one year.

Any person bidding off a pauper shall furnish him or her with suitable meats, drinks and clothing, nursing, if sick, and every accommodation which is necessary for their support, doctors' bills excepted.

The following are from the records of the sale in 1820:

Mr. Frasure sold to Ebenezer Tilton at $1.00 per week.

Widow Hannah Rano to Henry D. Hilton at $0.56 per week.

Eliza Meloon to Timothy Swett at $0.35 per week.

Samuel Sleeper to Samuel Cilley at $0.90 per week.

Widow H. Gove to Jonathan Martin at $0.10 per week.

The York child to Joseph Sevey at $0.50 per week.

The inventory of the clothing of Widow Hannah Rano at that time showed her in possession of 1 pair of shoes, 1 woolen gown, 2 black cambric gowns, 1 gingham gown, 6 pairs of stockings, 5 caps, 4 handkerchiefs, 5 shifts, 4 petticoats, 2 bonnets, 3 tires, 2 pairs gloves, 2 cloaks and 1 gold necklace; also many articles of household furniture.

In 1820 there were nine paupers, but in 1821 the number had increased to twenty-two; twenty of the latter number were sold to Josiah Elkins for $500 for the year.

At an adjourned meeting held March 14, 1821:

Voted that Capt. James Tucker, Josiah Babcock, Phineas Huntoon, Capt. Caleb Marston and Joseph Brown be a committee to draft rules and regulations for the government of the poor.

The committee made the following report, which was adopted:

In view of the great increase of pauperism the people of Andover have been satisfied of the necessity of adopting some different mode of Support and some rules of government and discipline to be exercised towards paupers which shall serve immediately to correct the great and increasing evil. Rules calculated to punish Sloth and indolence, correct vice and immorality, establish industry, teach economy and independence, encourage virtue and morality and establish at the same time the means of support on the most just and equinomical principles so that he that will not work may not eat:—

Therefore we the undersigned, being appointed a committee by the town on this subject, humbly offer the following rules and regulations to be strictly observed not only to those who are now dependent on the Town for support and those who may hereafter throw themselves upon the Town but to all those who live in this Town of what age soever who live idly & are poor & stand in need of the relief of the Town or whose families stand in need of such relief from the Town:—

Article 1. Industry shall be taught & enjoined by the overseer on all who can perform the most trifling Labors. Every pauper shall have their labour allotted by the overseers dayly accordin to the ability of the person. For every neglect of performing such labour the overseer shall with hold all sustenance till the delinquent performs the requirement or satisfy the overseer of his disposition to do it.

Article 2. No pauper shall absent him or her self from the service and care of the overseer without leave. For every such offense, for disrespectful conduct towards the overseer, for wanton mischief and determined obstinacy, the offender shall be abridged in privilege and diet equal to the crime. When such measures are not affected (?) and the person can not thus be restrained and governed the overseer shall call on the selectmen of the Town who shall direct and cause to be inflicted punishment equal to the crime.

Article 3. No pauper shall be allowed to live on costly or luxurious food or drink, the diet of the labouring and healthy shall be course, wholsom & substantial food. Those who are feeble & unhealthy shall be furnished with food more simple that is cheape and will answer the requirements of nature. No coffee or tea shall be allowed more than once a week excepting what is made from domestic produce. No spirituous liquors or tobacco shall be allowed unless life & health absolutely require it, nor a greate quantity of cider.

Article 4. No clothing shall be furnished them but that of the plain ordinary kind which decency and nature require.

Article 5. Particular attention shall be paid to the sick and the necessary requirements afforded.

Sam. Sleeper was the son of Margaret Roberts and was partially deficient, both mentally and physically.

At the town meeting on March 13, 1827:

Set up and struck off the paupers to Charles Hilton for $419.00. Josiah Babcock appeared as his bondsman and was accepted by the town.

Voted that the selectmen call on persons in town that are within their knowledge who are liable to become town paupers and who are spending their time and deal with them as they think proper.

At a town meeting on March 13, 1827, a committee, after citing a part of the report on March 14, 1821, as a preamble, made the following report:

Your committee recommend that the maintenance and support (for one year) of all that may be committed to the poor house be now set up and struck off to the lowest bidder, providing the selectmen consider him a suitable person, and providing he will give sufficient bonds to maintain and support in said house during the year, agreeably to the regulations this day adopted, all such as the selectmen may commit to said house and pay all bills of cost arising after they are there committed and keep their clothes in as good repair as they now are:—

Article 1. The house in which the poor are to be kept shall be constituted a workhouse.

Article 2. It shall be the duty of the selectmen to cause to be committed there all such as are liable by the Law just received to be committed where they shall be maintained and supported agreeably to these regulations excepting the Wd. Rowe and Margaret Roberts who the person bidding them off have a right to dispose of them other ways at his own expense.

Article 3. The person bidding them off shall be the immediate overseer and have full power to carry into effect and execute the laws of the state and of the town this day adopted respecting the government and support of such as may be committed to said work house.

Article 4. Industry shall be taught and enjoined by the overseer on all who can perform the most trifling (labor), every pauper shall have their labor attended by the overseer daily according to the ability of the person. For every neglect of performing such labor the overseer shall withhold all sustenance till the delinquent performs the requirement or satisfy the overseer of his disposition to do it.

Article 5. No pauper shall absent himself or herself from the service of the overseer without leave, for every such offense, for disrespectful conduct towards the overseer, for wanton mischief, determined obstinacy, the offender shall be abridged in privilege and diet equal to the crime, when such measures are not effectual and the person cannot thus be reclaimed and governed the overseer shall call on the selectmen of the Town who shall direct and cause to be inflicted punishment equal to the crime.

Article 6. It shall be the duty of the selectmen to visit the poor house when called upon by the overseer or when a complaint shall be made by any of the paupers which appears to demand their notice and decide all matters of difficulty and wrong respecting the overseer and paupers.

Article 7. No assistance shall (be) rendered to any person excepting at said poorhouse unless imperious circumstances shall render it absolutely necessary.

Article 9. It shall be the duty of the committee appointed by the town to be vigilant in the detection of all such as are spending their time and property visiting taverns or grog shops, or in any way that shall render them liable to become paupers and report them to the selectmen and it shall be their duty to take immediate cognizance of all such reports rendered to them by the above committee.

Josiah Babcock	James Tucker	} Committee. Report accepted by the town.
Joseph Brown	Elijah Hilton

Although some portions of the above report are almost identical with articles in the report of March 14, 1821, both reports are given in full in order to indicate the persistent effort of the town to find the best method of caring for the unfortunate poor within its jurisdiction.

March 11, 1828. Sold sixteen paupers to the lowest bidder.

March 20, 1828. Sold paupers' labor, including care of the people, at auction to the lowest bidder. Whole number sold, eleven; bound out three. "Set up Mehitable Tilton and struck off to Miles Cole at 2 cents per week."

At an adjourned meeting on June 1, 1829, a report of a committee appointed March 10, 1829, on pauperism was read.

It was really a partial essay on pauperism and its causes, but it ended with a recommendation that the selectmen make an arrangement with some suitable person to receive into his house all the paupers and to constitute it a house of correction for this town.

The report was accepted.

The selectmen constituted the house of Daniel Rowe on Boston Hill the required house of correction and appointed the said Rowe the superintending and governing officer of said house.

They also established the following regulations:

(1) The governing officer of said house of correction shall furnish all persons sentenced to the house of correction and placed under his care with suitable meats and drinks in health and sickness.

(2) The said officer shall furnish suitable and proper employment to said persons when in health for the number of hours in each day usually devoted to labour by industrious persons.

(3) The said officer shall require all persons committed to his charge as aforesaid to perform their daily prescribed tasks; and if said persons refuse or neglect to obey said officer or to perform the proper task of labour, he may use all lawful means to enforce his commands or requirements always beginning with admonitions and persuasions.

(4) And the same officer shall use all reasonable exertions to redeem such persons from all immoral and idle habits.

(5) Note: No part of the foregoing instrument is to be construed in any manner repugnant to the laws of this state.

The above system and regulations were in use but a short time.

In the latter part of 1829 pauperism and vagrancy had so increased that many people thought it wise for the town to own a farm where paupers and other dependants could be supported and governed on its own premises.

At the annual meeting on March 9, 1830:

Voted that the town purchase a farm to support the poor upon.

Voted that the Committee on pauperism be authorized to select said farm and direct the selectmen to close the bargain.

Voted that the committee and selectmen be not allowed a sum that will exceed the fund of the parsonage money, which is 1607 dollars, to purchase said farm to support the poor upon.

Voted that the selectmen and committee make use of the parsonage fund, or a part of it, to purchase said farm to support the poor upon and that the town be holden to the several religious societies for the interest of the same.

Voted that the selectmen select an overseer for the poor house.

The following are the condensed rules and regulations for the conduct of the poor farm, which were prepared by Joseph C. Thompson, Samuel Brown and Josiah Babcock, the committee on pauperism:

(1) The selectmen will appoint the overseer or warden.

(2) The selectmen will collect all the poor at the poor farm.

(3) The warden will instruct the inmates at the farm according to the best of his judgment.

(4) The warden will inflict punishment when necessary. Solitary confinement may continue not longer than forty eight hours.

(5) The warden will keep a careful record of all transactions and report expenses etc. at the annual town meeting.

(6) It is the duty of all the inmates to obey immediately and willingly all orders and directions of the warden.

(7) No assistance will be given any person except at the poor house, unless imperious circumstances shall render it absolutely necessary.

(8) The selectmen shall take all legal measures to commit to the poor house and house of correction all rogues, vagabonds, lewd, idle, disorderly persons, beggars, runaways, stubborn servants or children, common drunkards and pilferers, such as neglect their calling or employment, misspend what they earn and do not support themselves and families.

(9) The selectmen shall render such aid and assistance to the warden in governing the inmates as is necessary.

(10) One or more of the selectmen shall visit the establishment at least once in six months, examine the warden's books and have power to grant such immunities and rewards for the deserving as they see fit.

(11) The warden may command the assistance of any or all the inmates in inflicting punishment to any other inmate.

To refuse prompt assistance makes the person as liable to punishment as the first offender.

In 1830 the farm of Samuel Fuller was purchased by the town for $1,500, and thereafter used as an almshouse or poor farm, under the same rules and regulations practically as given above. Several propositions were made in subsequent town meetings to increase the original farm by the purchase of adjacent land, but the records are not very definite.

After the poor farm was occupied the following record is found:

Set up the doctoring of all the paupers in the Almshouse and struck off to Doctor Woodman for twenty five dollars and fifty cents.

All the town poor were cared for on this farm, now owned by George E. Eastman, until it was sold in December, 1868, and the inmates transferred to the county farm at North Boscawen. Since that date the poor, dependent on this town, have been maintained generally at the county farm, though occasional and temporary aid has been furnished people at their homes.

TRAMPS.

The professional tramp of 100 or even 50 years ago differed materially from the modern specimen of that class. The earlier denizen of the highway was seldom vicious. A lack of mental, physical and perhaps moral stamina, mingled with a strong dislike for continuous labor, was likely to separate some people from the positive life of an ordinary New England home. Add to these characteristics a genial and humorous manner and behold your man ready to cast his lot among the quiet, congenial lives scattered among the farms along the early roads of this section of the state. He sang ballads, told stories and laughed at his own and other men's crude jokes; in fact, he was a certain type of king's jester turned loose into the green paths of a new country.

The modern road runner, however, is another creature entirely. He is generally a lazy, surly, vicious vagabond, whose range of impudence, brutality and crime is limited only by opportunity and the lowest form of courage. Instead of modestly begging he impudently demands, with never a smile or a song for the favors received.

The earlier man of the road travelled the same route for a series of years, and his periodic return could be easily predicted by his good-natured patrons. James or "Jim" Robinson tramped his route through this town for many years. Sally Keniston jogged along through the town for many summers, begging food and cider. One early May morning she was found by the roadside too weak to carry her load of cider, and ever after she was called "the Mayflower."

For about twenty years a man named Jaquith, generally called "Jaquish," strolled through the town annually, picking up a precarious living by various simple devices and entertainments. At first he was accompanied by a heifer and a pig, but later, owing to some unusual exposure, he had one foot frozen, rendering it almost useless, after which, with that foot wrapped in a mass of rags he tramped his route alone and generally with the aid of crutches. The heifer and pig were trained to perform certain simple tricks, while he was ready to furnish what he considered moral and religious entertainment to any group of interested listeners. Some of his prices were as follows:

For jumping his heifer over a pole, 5 cents.

For jumping his pig over a lower pole, 2 cents.

For praying he charged 5 cents.

For preaching a sermon, 15 cents.

In form and logical presentation the prayer and sermon were not inferior to many heard in country churches. Exposure and lack of proper nourishment finally sapped a weak, but not vicious life, wedded to the dust, flowers and freedom of the roadside, and about 1845 there came a springtime when the painfully plodding figure was missed along his accustomed way.

Many less noted followers of the road came and went, but left no sign and no resentment. Each visit of the modern tramp, however, only adds another grain to the weight of that sentiment that sooner or later will enforce the decree that unless a man work he shall not eat.

SELECTMEN.

From an early period the local business of the towns within the jurisdiction of the Province of Massachusetts Bay was transacted generally in open town meeting or in the General Court of the province.

One part of the process of simplifying the town government was the selection by popular vote in each town of not more than seven men to order the usual business affairs of the town. In 1642 these men were called "seven men," then "chosen men," "chosen townsmen," "selected townsmen," "townsmen select," and as early as 1648 they were called "selectmen." The use of this title spread throughout Massachusetts and New Hampshire as fast as towns were organized. It was first used in the New Breton records on January 30, 1778. Before that date officers charged with some of the duties of selectmen were known as assessors.

From the beginning of 1779 the persons chosen as selectmen are given below.

POST ROADS, POST OFFICES AND POSTMASTERS.

In 1784 the road over Taunton Hill towards New Chester was known as the "post road," which would indicate that the mail for Andover and northern towns was carried on that road.

In 1790 John Lathrop was post rider from Concord through Andover to Hanover.

* Under the law providing for biennial elections the first governor, Natt Head, was elected in November, 1878.

Clement Emery, son of Dr. Anthony Emery, was the second mail carrier or post rider through Andover. At that period all the mails were carried on horseback.

In 1791 four post routes were established by the New Hampshire Legislature. The route leading through Andover was known as No. 2, starting from Concord and going to Salisbury, Andover, New Chester, Plymouth, Haverhill, Piermont, Orford, Lyme, Hanover, Lebanon, Enfield, Canaan, Grafton, Alexandria, Salisbury, to Concord.

The direction on this route was reversed on alternate trips. The exact route followed by the post rider was by Capt. Ebenezer Webster's, in Salisbury, northwesterly along the north road past the Lieut. John Rowe, later the Ayers Rowe, farm, over Boston and Taunton hills, through New Chester and northward.

Nathan Dow retired from the position of post rider, October 5, 1799. He was succeeded by Daniel Blaisdell and he by Samuel Kimball of Andover, who retired in March, 1801.

When the post route was established through Andover the postage on single letters for any distance less than forty miles was four pence; for forty miles or more the rate was six pence.

The first post office in town was established at Andover Centre, May 28, 1810. West Bonney was the first postmaster and he held the office until Rev. Ebenezer Chase was appointed in 1817. From the organization of the postal system the postage on sealed letters was as below:

Single letter, under 40 miles, 8 cents; between 40 and 90 miles, 10 cents; between 90 and 150 miles, $12\frac{1}{2}$ cents; between 150 and 300 miles, 17 cents; between 300 and 500 miles, 20 cents; over 500 miles, 25 cents.

After May 1, 1816, the rates were changed as below:

Single letter, 30 miles, $6\frac{1}{4}$ cents; between 30 and 80 miles, 10 cents; between 80 and 150 miles, $12\frac{1}{2}$ cents; between 150 and 400 miles, $18\frac{3}{4}$ cents; over 400 miles, 25 cents.

On newspapers for not over 100 miles, or in the state where published, one cent each; for over 100 miles, $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents each.

In 1845 letters not exceeding one half ounce in weight, for less than 300 miles, 5 cents each; for more than 300 miles, 10 cents each, and an additional rate for every additional one-half ounce or fraction thereof.

While Mr. Chase was postmaster, the office was in a small building nearly on the site of Mr. Cochran's hardware shop in building nearly on the site of Mr. Cochran's hardware shop in 1900. This building was torn down about 1870.

In 1818 and 1819 Peter Fifield was postmaster and the office was in his house, the residence now owned by Mrs. Mary E. Fifield. In 1820 Mr. Chase was again appointed postmaster and retained the office till 1823. In 1823 his salary was $20.52. On November 20, 1819, Postmaster Chase printed the following notice in his monthly magazine, published at Andover:

If people who receive letters at the Post Office would pay for them at the time they receive them they would much oblige their friend. Considerable is now due for letters that were received at this office more than 3 years ago and it is found that some gentlemen have forgotten that they have been favored with a letter on credit. Should any letters here after be charged:—if it is not paid within 3 months one cent a month in addition to the postage will be requested on each letter for every month's neglect.

E. Chase, P. M.

Dr. Tilton Elkins was postmaster from 1824 to 1828 and the office was moved to West Andover.

In 1829 Reuben Dearborn was postmaster and the office was moved to Dearborn Tavern, where the road across the Plains joined the Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike, just east of the present residence of Nathan Woodbury. In 1830, Samuel Butterfield was appointed postmaster, and the office was moved to the Centre village where it has remained. Mr. Butterfield held the office until 1848.

EAST ANDOVER.

Although the eastern section of the town was settled several years before the western section, the people of that part of the town were without the usual mail facilities until the post office was established at East Andover, January 26, 1847.

Before that date they were dependent upon the offices at Andover Centre and Salisbury village, afterwards Franklin, five or six miles away.

Benjamin F. Scribner was the first postmaster at East Andover.

WEST ANDOVER.

The post office at West Andover was formally established August 16, 1849, and Charles Fellows was the first postmaster.

POTTER PLACE.

On July 17, 1871, a post office was established at Potter Place, with James Fellows as postmaster.

TRAINING DAYS AND MUSTERS.

Early in the history of the militia in Andover the "training field" for those living near the center of the town was the nearly level ground lying south of the present residence of Frank Pettigill and between the highway and the railroad. Later the parade ground was on the village common, east of the present academy at the Centre.

Occasionally the annual muster of the Twenty-first Regiment occurred at the Centre village, and then the large field west of the street from Emerson's store to the railroad station was used. The houses now on that street were built since the day of musters.

The training days for the various companies were in May and September of each year, the one in September coming before the annual September muster, enabling the officers and men to brush up their tactics and drill for the regimental show. Muster day was the grand gala occasion of the year. The showy field and staff officers with cocked hats, gold or gilt lace and buttons, jingling arms and trappings and gaily prancing horses were a gorgeous sight to both old and young, who were accustomed to the quiet life of the country.

The various companies representing the neighboring towns, stimulated by the presence of their friends and by the keen rivalries in military drill and personal prowess, put forth their best efforts to shine conspicuously in the eyes of superior officers and enthusiastic spectators.

Booths, tents, open and covered wagons, with their sometimes boisterous occupants, afforded entertainments, bargains, food and drink to the fun-loving, curious, hungry and thirsty sight-seers, with a fullness equalled only by the demand.

Happy the country boy who took in his first muster without accident and stored a fund of amusement and food for reflection, enough to supply him for a whole year.

The annual meetings of militia companies from different towns were almost certain to develop strenuous rivalries. The Andover Light Infantry or Second Company, Twenty-first Regiment, from the first claimed great credit for their accomplishments in the school of the soldier. Out of this claim and a lively sense of their personal prowess, there arose a sharp rivalry with the Boscawen Rifle Company, and to a less extent with the Salisbury Grenadiers, which lasted and increased for several years.

When they managed to get on opposite sides in the sham fight, which usually closed the programme of each muster day the rivalry was highly intensified.

The following story, confirmed in the presence of the writer by a member of the Boscawen company, will best illustrate the humor and zeal of that period, 1825-'35.

On one occasion when the annual muster was to be held at Andover, the rifle company conceived a plan for getting the better of the light infantry, which would have been better characterized as heavy infantry.

Their scheme was devised to drive, with the assistance of the grenadiers, the light infantry over and down the bank at the south side of the muster field, on to the intervalle, and there compel their surrender or rush them into the river.

The Andover men received a hint of the scheme and quietly made their own plans. When the sham fight began the rifles and grenadiers worked around to the front of the light infantry, and pressed them back towards the river. The rear guard held them back as well as they could, and with display of great vigor, while the large majority of the Andover men fell back to the river, at a point about 125 yards above the Seavey bridge, and crossed on planks supported on temporary trestles. Then the guard broke for the river and crossed in single file with an alacrity that surprised their opponents. The southern section of the planks was wide enough for two men to stand abreast. The two largest men of the infantry company, Versal R. Eastman and James Marston, the last to cross, wheeled and standing side by side kept an almost continuous blaze of powder from their guns along the line of planks, so that no one could cross. Their guns were loaded and passed along to them by their comrades in the rear.

In the midst of this noise and turmoil, and while the attention of their opponents was centered on the temporary bridge, the mass of the light infantry were led down the river, crossed the highway bridge and fell with their whole weight on the more numerous rifles and grenadiers clustered on the river bank. Many of the would-be captors were rushed into the river and the remainder scattered in all directions.

The member of the Boscawen company mentioned above added: "There were ten men on the right of that Andover company more than six feet tall, and we could do nothing with them; they would run over us whenever they pleased."

MILLS, MANUFACTURES AND INSURANCE.

MILLS.

On the plan of the town made by William Brown Clough, from the minutes of his survey of the township in 1753, there appears a "mill lot" of twenty acres set off from the south end of lot No 53 at the region now called "Hog Back" hill.

At first it seems strange that a site with so slight a fall of water should have been selected for the first mill in the town; but it should be remembered that at that time it was customary to use "undershot" instead of "overshot" water wheels, relying on the impulse of the running stream rather than on the weight of the falling mass of water. In this way an expensive dam was avoided. Ebenezer Eastman built the first mill on the Pemigewasset River at that time in Salisbury, now in Franklin, and evidently used an "undershot" wheel. The mill was on the west side of the river and when the fine modern dam was built in 1902-'03, traces of Eastman's low wing dam, and a well-preserved "raceway" were plainly seen.

The proprietors were not thoroughly satisfied, evidently, with the selection of the "mill lot," for by individual effort and by committees they kept up the search for a mill site for a dozen years at least.

Finally, on April 30, 1766, an agreement was made with Nathaniel Prescott of Brentwood for the erection of a sawmill on the outlet of Loon Pond, very near the point where the Busiel hosiery mill now stands.

The price for construction was forty pounds, lawful money, and for that sum Prescott agreed to complete the mill by the 1st of October, 1766, and to "truly keep said mill in good repair and seasonably saw any Logs which any of the Proprietors of said New Britton shall carry to said mill to the halves for and during the space of ten years next after said mill shall be built," etc.

A bond in the sum of "Two hundred Pounds Lawful money" was given by Prescott to ensure the fulfillment of the contract. The mill was built according to agreement. The large crank was forged at Exeter and brought into the woods on the back of a horse.

In 1772 great complaint was made that Prescott neglected to saw the logs brought to the mill, as he had agreed to do. The proprietors at first proposed to prosecute him, because his neglect had retarded the settlement of the township, but their transactions with him became so complicated that nothing was done in that direction.

In 1768 the proprietors decided to build a grist mill if a suitable site could be found. They tried to arrange with Prescott to move the sawmill further up the stream in order to occupy the first site of the sawmill with the grist-mill, but a committee appointed for that purpose reported that "said Prescott refused to act anything thereto." A committee was appointed to search the town for a site for the grist-mill and to build thereon. Sixty pounds lawful money was appropriated for the construction of a grist-mill and on October 30, 1769, Dr. Anthony Emery was engaged to build it. In the meantime Prescott had "acted thereto" and moved the sawmill up the stream to the upper falls, where the upper hosiery mill stood. Before the grist-mill was built at East Andover, Joseph Fellows and his neighbors carried their grain on their backs to the mill of Henry Lovejoy in West Concord. They generally started in the evening, in order to be the first at the mill in the morning, get their grists ground and get home before night. The gristmill was built on the site of the first sawmill in the summer of 1770, under the direction of Dr. Anthony Emery at a total cost of sixty-three pounds. The proprietors agreed to pay Prescott "7 pounds old Tenor" for the privilege of drawing water to run the grist mill for the term of twenty years. On February 22, 1774, the proprietors voted to sell the gristmill to Joseph Fellows for thirty-five pounds lawful money, and the deed was signed by Mesheek Weare, Anthony Emery and Henry Robie on behalf of the proprietors.

All the changes of ownership of the sawmill and grist-mill cannot now be traced.

The upper stone of the first set of mill stones in Andover is still in existence and serves as a well cover on the E. C. Chase (Caleb Cross) farm.

John Roberts owned and operated the sawmill in 1781. Samuel Blake owned one half of the sawmill in 1784 and Jonathan Weare owned the other half of the sawmill and all of the grist-mill. Chandler Cass owned the mills in 1818. Robert Barber and Joseph Noyes operated the sawmill after Mr. Cass. Barstow and Dyer occupied both saw and grist-mills, in part, in 1823. In 1831 Joseph Noyes owned both mills and David Dyer operated them. In 1833 Benjamin Shaw, of Shaw's Corner, Franklin, bought the grist-mill of Mr. Philbrick, and soon began to increase the business of the mill. He was the first man to bring the southern, "horse tooth," variety of corn into town. He bought it in Boston in 1834, freighted it by boat to Concord and thence by horse teams to his mill, where it was ground for his customers. Nathaniel Fellows was the miller at that time.

In 1842 Mr. Shaw entirely rebuilt the grist-mill, with many improvements, including a set of burr stones bought at the Charlestown (Mass.) prison, brought by water to Concord and thence by team to the mill. He also owned and rebuilt the saw-mill in 1834. The work and material cost $2,600, and he afterwards rented it to Caleb Merrill, Elkanah Bean and Reuel Long for five years at the rate of $500 per year.

When the lease expired he bought the Deacon Severance lumber lot near the Boston Hill schoolhouse and sawed the logs at his mill. He owned both mills until his death, December 17, 1846. Wm. Otis, Addison Tuttle, William Marston and H. D. Cilley and Joseph Osgood were subsequent proprietors of the sawmill.

With the construction of both grist and sawmills at West Salisbury, with far greater water power, the patronage of the East Andover mills became wholly local and they soon became unprofitable.

BONNEY'S MILLS.

West Bonney built a mill about 1800 at West Andover, on the stream flowing from Eagle Pond and a short distance above the present Harriman bridge. A sawmill was first built and a carding mill was afterwards added on the southwest side of the river. The latter was carried away by a freshet about 1830. Nathaniel G. Haines owned the saw and grist-mills and clothing mill in 1818 and the clothing mill on the northeast side of the river in 1826.

Winthrop Fifield owned a mill near (probably below) Bonney's mill soon after 1800. The mill was occupied as a clothing mill by Sumner and Favor and while in their hands was carried away by a freshet, August 28, 1826.

CILLEY'S MILLS.

Aaron Cilley built the first dam across the river at Cilleysville about 1785 and the mill privilege remained in the name of his descendants until sold to John Proctor in 1866. From a small beginning it gradually increased until it became the most complete and important set of mills in town. A sawmill has existed there for nearly 125 years and a grist-mill for nearly a century, while the generally good water power has sufficed for other prosperous industries.

Mr. Cilley settled on one of the "amendments" or commonlands, as they were called, and in 1789 desired a deed from the town for the place on which he had settled. In 1790 the town voted not to give the deed. So far, no record has been found of any later action on his request.

A shingle and clapboard mill, planing mill, lath machine and other usual accessories have been connected with the sawmill. A bobbin shop, wheelwright shop, an establishment for making wrapping paper and a fishing-rod factory have also derived their motive power from this mill privilege. The paper mill was started by Capt. William Gordon in 1871 and existed for a few years only.

Gilman Lang, a skillful maker of edge tools, came from Grafton to Cilleysville about 1865 and began the manufacture of axes. He moved from Andover to southern Iowa.

Capt. Samuel Elkins built the first sawmill on the outlet of Bradley Pond; the dam being practically on the site of the dam at the present hame shop. This mill and site has had many owners and has been put to many uses. Captain Elkins came to Andover from Salisbury, where he built the first mill on the site of Prince's mill, about 1793, and settled on Beech Hill. The mill was probably built about 1800, and used simply as a sawmill for several years.

Jacob Eastman, who lived where W. F. York now lives, operated a carding and clothing mill with this water power in 1825. Bracket Clark ran the carding and clothing mill after Eastman's death in 1826. After Clark went to Franklin, John Ellis, son of Lawrence Ellis at East Andover, took the property and ran it as a sawmill and shingle-mill. After Ellis retired the mill was managed by Horace T. Field, who devoted his time chiefly to devising improvements that were not financially successful; and by several other men who controlled it in the interest of special lumbering operations for short periods. After it came into the possession of John Proctor it was actively employed for several years and then with all its privileges was transferred to the Hame Company, that has now become the most important business enterprise of the town.

The mill on Mountain Brook, on the road from Cilleyville toward Kearsarge Mountain, was built before 1827 by Bachelder, Seavey and Sleeper. For lack of a steady supply of water it was never a very successful business enterprise and was finally abandoned.

A little later than 1800, one account gives it as 1820, Jonathan Roberts built a grist-mill, with one "run of stone," on the brook forming the inlet of Elbow Pond and north of the present highway. This mill was a few rods above the sawmills afterwards built by Capt. Samuel Morrill. Captain Morrill changed the grist-mill to a shingle-mill, but after a few years it was dismantled.

About 1814 a sawmill was built near the site of the above grist-mill by Isaac Brown.

One of the first shingle mills in town was built on Roberts' Brook, now known as Middle Brook.

The Graves sawmill on Mill Brook, near the Graves Meadow, was built by Capt. William Graves in 1837. The grain threshing machine was connected with the mill by Mr. Graves about 1860, and a cider mill was added about 1864. This mill was bought of Henry Colby in 1874 by John D. Aiken, and is now used as a sawmill and shingle-mill and also for threshing grain and making cider.

A sawmill was built at the falls on Tilton Brook by David Dyer and Parker Scribner. Mr. Dyer also set up a carding mill at the same place. Afterwards, in 1818, Nathan Leeds, senior, built a two-story mill on Tilton Brook, where he manufactured chairs, bedsteads, etc., for many years. Leeds and Josiah Badcock set up a clapboard mill at the same place, which was operated by Mr. Leeds.

The first dam on Mill Brook at the small falls next below the Busiel hosiery factory was built for the use of a carding and clothing mill. The mill was built and operated by Mr. Sawyer. John Brown was the proprietor of the shingle-mill which succeeded the carding mill. This mill was afterwards owned by several persons, and at one time was used by Willard Emery and John S. Pillsbury as a shingle mill, a clapboard mill and plow factory.

In accordance with some legal requirement, the following mills reported their net income for the year 1811, as given below:

Bonney's mills at West Andover, $30.00.

Cilley's saw and grist mills at Cilleyville, $36.00.

Roberts' saw and grist mills at East Andover, $100.00.

The first mill on the east side of "Hog Back" was a sawmill erected by Joseph Fellows, the first settler, and his sons, John and Ebenezer. The mill stood about ten years and was set on fire accidentally and burned by fishermen who were spearing "suckers" by torchlight.

Isaac and Joseph, sons of Joseph Brown, built a small grist-mill about twenty rods below the site of the sawmill. This business did not prove profitable and after several years the mill was taken down. Enoch Brown was for a few years the miller at this mill. He lived on Healey Hill, where Jacob Weare so long resided.

John Merrill built a shingle mill on the brook near Luther Sawyer's on "the plains" in 1833.

A sawmill, built by a company (Ephraim Sanborn and others) before 1800 stood on the "mill brook" a few rods above the Dyer bridge. Traces of the stone dam are still to be seen.

The first carding, dyeing and fulling mill at the East Andover mills was destroyed by fire. Robert Barber built the second mill and it is supposed that he also built the first one. He owned the mill in 1817-'18.

Jeremy Y. and John Bryant were proprietors of the fulling mill at East Andover in 1823 and owned half of the sawmill with Robert Barber and David Dyer, who at that time owned the grist-mill.

A lampblack factory was started by Mr. Staples in 1800 on "the plains" west of the brook and west of William Morrill's place. It continued but a few years.

HOSIERY.

About 1865 William S. Marston built over the sawmill at East Andover, fitting the new two-story structure for a hosiery mill and rented it to Mr. Townsend of Lowell, Mass., who operated it about a year. It was then sold to Mr. Thomas Appleton, who ran it as the Highland Lake Mill till the autumn of 1872. On the departure of Mr. Appleton the mill came into Mr. Marston's possession again for about one year, when it was sold to Shepard and Messer of New London. They maintained the business for three or four years, after which the mill was idle for nearly two years. It was then rented, in 1879, to Colvin and Hood of Lakeport for the manufacture of underwear. This firm dissolved and the business was continued as a yarn and stocking mill by R. N. Colvin. It then passed into the hands of Mr. John Murphy, who sold it to Mellen and Phelps. After about one year it was owned by Mellen and Quimby. Mr. Harrison M. Busiel, who had been a manufacturer of hosiery in Franklin as early as 1854, came to East Andover in 1865 and established a hosiery factory on the site of the first grist-mill, where he has continued the business to the present time, 1907.

TANNERIES.

Israel Marston owned and operated a tannery at East Andover and Enoch Merrill succeeded him in the business at the same place.

Benjamin F. Tucker carried on the business on what is now known as the Samuel Morrill place. The business was started by his father, Capt. James Tucker, about 1800. He lived on that farm, where his tan yard, bark mill and finishing shop were a few rods east of the house. His tan-pits were located on the road leading from C. Campbell's towards F. H. Flanders' on land now owned by W. H. and A. H. Kilburn. On the death of Mr. Tucker in 1836, his father carried on the business for a few years. Enoch Seavey operated the tannery as late as 1846 or 1850, when the business was discontinued.

The stone wheel used in the Tucker tannery to crush the bark is now used as a cover to the well on the Shirley place, east of the Centre village. The pump passes down through the shaft hole in the stone.

POTASH.

The making of potash and pearlash was carried on by Benjamin Thompson near the river and nearly opposite the house now owned by John Sanborn east of Potter Place. The business was established about 1800 and continued about twenty years. Joseph Webster of Springfield was the skilled employé of Mr. Thompson. About forty large iron potash kettles were used and the last one of the collection was used by Herod Thompson for many years as a watering trough for his stock.

Potash was made at one time at a point a few rods northeast of the residence of the late Caleb Cross at East Andover.

For several years potash was made in a building standing beside the brook, a few feet east of the residence of Carlos Pevare in the village of East Andover.

Enoch Merrill and Benjamin M. Tyler erected a building for the manufacture of potash, a few rods north of the house of James Parker in East Andover village. The business was successful for many years.

A potash factory owned and operated by Josiah Badcock, Jr., was located nearly east of the present residence of Charles W. Stone on Taunton Hill.

BRICKMAKING.

Bricks were made by a Mr. Blake at an early period at a place on Connor's Hill, on land now owned by George H. Haley.

They were made quite early at a place on Nathaniel Fellow's farm near Dyer's crossing.

The material near the latter place was used again about 1830. Joseph Ladd, Sr., started a brick yard on the farm now owned by Geo. E. Eastman, and his neighbors were allowed to use his plant to make brick for themselves. About 1830 bricks were made on the land now owned by W. D. Tuttle at Bennett's crossing.

Nehemiah Emerson opened a brick yard near the old grist-mill at East Andover in 1841 or '42.

MISCELLANEOUS MANUFACTURES.

Elijah Hilton manufactured nails with a machine invented by Caleb Leach of Plymouth, Mass. With this machine a boy could cut and head about 5,000 nails per day.

Nail-making in this town declined soon after the Perkins nail machine came into use for making cut nails. Very few wrought nails were used after 1830.

About 1850 Stephen Scales built a small machine shop, using the water of the Keniston brook for power. Scales lived in the house east of Vivian Quimby's present residence. The machinery was used principally in boring gun barrels. Scales was an ingenious mechanic, a skilful gunsmith and had much practice in repairing clocks and watches.

Enoch Eastman, and afterwards his nephew, Versal R. Eastman, were noted makers of spinning wheels, both "linen" and "woolen." The wheelwright shop of Versal R. Eastman is now owned by John Buswell on Beech Hill. There are some of the Eastman "Linen" and "Woolen" wheels still in existence.

John Rowell of East Andover was also a maker of spinning wheels. Capt. Moses Gove, who lived on the "Back" or "North" Road, was a noted maker of churns, which in those days were made of straight staves, the bottom diameter the larger, and bound with wooden hoops. It is said that Captain Gove moved to Canterbury and died there.

Dea. Sylvanus Atwood carried on the business of a wheelwright at West Andover for a few years after 1835, and then moved to the Centre and occupied a shop that stood about half way between the present sites of Rollins' and Emerson's stores.

Edwin Moody established a cabinet-shop at the Centre in 1832 and continued the business as sole owner till 1841. After that time he was associated with Samuel Morrill for two or three years, working at several kinds of machinery which they had devised. From 1832 to 1841, Mr. Moody conducted a large business for a country town, supplying many of the people with complete sets of house furniture. He employed several journeymen and apprentices, many of the latter becoming competent masters of the trade. The cabinet-shop was in the building now occupied (1906) by Millard F. Thompson as a residence.

THE HAME FACTORY.

The most important manufacturing business ever established in town is that for making harness hames. This business was started at Enfield Centre, N. H., in 1860 by Joseph Baker and Robert C. Carr. John P. Carr of Enfield soon became associated in the enterprise. In 1863 the company transferred its business to Andover, occupying the site and water power, on the outlet of Bradley Pond, where Capt. Samuel Elkins built the first sawmill in that section of the town, soon after 1790. In 1869 W. S. Carr became an owner of a portion of the business and in 1877 was one of the principal members of the firm. In 1883 C. E. Carr became an owner in the business. R. C. Carr left the firm in 1877 and soon after 1883, Mr. Baker sold his interest. After the death of John P. Carr, in 1888, the business was owned by W. S. and C. E. Carr. In 1896 the Andover Co. was consolidated with the Bartlett and Rowell Co. at Sunapee under the name of "The Consolidated Hame Co.," and the business was continued at both places. Mr. R. P. Carr became a member of the Andover Co. in 1894. In 1902 the Andover and the Sunapee plants were consolidated with the United Hame Co. of Buffalo, N. Y.; the J. A. DeArmond Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the Hermann Bros. of Tell City, Indiana, and were incorporated as the U. S. Hame Co., with the following officers:

O. P. Lechtworth, of Buffalo, president.

W. S. Carr, of Andover, vice-president.

G. H. Bartlett, of Sunapee, treasurer.

Fred Frazer, of Syracuse, N. Y., clerk.

C. E. Carr, manager of Andover plant.

C. L. Weidrick, manager of Buffalo plant.

I. G. Rowell, manager of Sunapee plant.

R. P. Carr, manager of Tell City plant.

The Andover branch of the company is a well-managed, prosperous enterprise and employs generally about one hundred workmen. The products of this company find a market in nearly every civilized country.

LUMBERING.

The value of the immense quantity of excellent pine and spruce lumber in this town during the first half century of its existence could be measured only by the local demand for buildings, bridges and fences.

Houses covered with boards, clapboards and shingles required the use of many nails, and hand-made nails were expensive. The pod augur of those days was neither a convenient or a rapid-working tool and a house or barn frame of that period required many one-inch holes for the wooden pins that held in place the posts, beams, girts, plates, rafters and braces against the mighty winds that swept the Andover hills. But a well built log house or barn was not only comparatively comfortable, but with good timber and time in abundance, it was vastly cheaper than a frame building.

These facts soon confronted the owner of the first sawmill, who had agreed to saw his neighbor's logs "at the halves."

His share of the lumber was piling up fast, for he had no market, and out of these conditions grew his long controversy with the proprietors.

Land and lumber were the two speculative articles in the depths of the wilderness; but the trees must be removed to get access to the land. Hence many millions of feet of first-class pine were reduced to ashes in order to clear the land for cultivation and grazing. Before the settlement of the town a great fire had swept over the whole northwest section of the "great plains" and destroyed the heavy growth of pines, mostly of the red, sometimes, but erroneously called the "Norway" variety.

The southeastern and eastern sections of the plains were still covered with pines, mostly of the white variety, many of them magnificent specimens of that king of our northern woods.

About 1798 a great white pine tree, very tall and straight, five feet in diameter at the butt, was cut on the Joseph Morey place just east of the Potter place, not far from the house occupied by Charles Baker in 1905.

The number of sawmills increased with the influx of new settlers, and the demand for a better class of framed and well-finished buildings, but no extensive lumbering operations were undertaken until about 1839, when Caleb Merrill and Elkanah Bean of Franklin and Reuel Long of Andover united in the firm of Merrill, Bean and Long to conduct a general lumbering business.

They bought most of the lumber near the Boston Hill school-house, except the Severance lot, and began their active campaign by first taking off the white pines fit for masts. These were felled and immediately removed, because if left on the ground and another mast tree fell across them, one or both of the trees were almost certain to be broken, destroying their value as masts. The butt of the tree was loaded on to the high bunk of a large bob sled and the team of six, eight or more yoke of oxen started with the huge stick, from 85 to 135 feet long, for the Merrimack River in Franklin, whence it was floated to Lowell and thence by the Middlesex Canal to Charlestown, Mass., to be fashioned into a towering mast for some swift American clipper.

The logs above the portion of the tree valuable as a mast were taken to the company's sawmill at East Andover, to be cut into boards.

These formidable ox teams, with their ponderous trailing loads, were an attractive feature in the winter landscape.

An ever-present element of danger in handling such unwieldy loads lent an additional zest to the ever attractive life in the woods.

At the curves and angles in the roads and wherever one side of the road happened to be the highest, the rear end of the mast would swing around like the tail of a mighty serpent, and small trees, wooden fences and even stone walls were swept away as easily as are charred weed-stalks by the farmer's plow.

These teams held the right of way, and when the unfortunate traveler, with his one horse, met or overtook a team or a procession of such teams, he had to sit, in drifting snow perhaps, with such patience as he might, until some wider spot in the road enabled him to pass.

About 1,200 masts were taken from the "plains" at this time and John Fellows and Benjamin F. Scribner managed the hauling from the lot to the river. After the masts were removed, the rest of the lumber was hauled to the mill at the village and to the Graves mill below the village.

Other mast timber was cut in town, notably about Bradley Pond and on other sections of the "plain," but the methods of hauling and marketing were the same as already described.

Between 1850 and 1860 a large amount of hemlock, spruce and white pine lumber was cut in the vicinity of Bradley Pond by Cyrus Gookin of West Salisbury, drawn in the winter to the bank of the Blackwater River below the Seavey bridge, rolled into the river at highwater in the spring and floated down to the owner's mill.

With the advent of the portable steam sawmill, rapidly moving from lot to lot, forests are quickly converted into merchantable lumber; but much of the old-time comradeship among the young farmers along the lumber road, with their teams of sturdy oxen, and the busy hum of the mill by the waterside, with the odor of pine and spruce throughout the year, have disappeared.

The Pole and the Italian follow the smoke and the whistle of the steam mill, but leave little trace of their occupation, save the unsightly piles of sawdust, where once the young and rapidly growing trees lent shade and beauty to our hillsides.

MARRIAGES IN ANDOVER.

The following data are mostly taken from the town records. A considerable number of records, however, have been obtained from the diaries of Rev. Josiah Badcock, and other ministers. It is highly probable that of many marriages, no record, public or private, was ever made, especially those performed by justices of the peace. It is a serious misfortune that many of the town records of marriages between 1844 and 1880 have been lost.

Although most of the following data can be found scattered throughout the genealogical section, this condensed record is published as a source of ready and valuable information.

DEATHS IN ANDOVER.

The principal source of information concerning the dates of deaths among the early settlers of this town is the record or diary of Rev. Josiah Badcock. In some instances the dates in this record differ from one to four days from the records or traditions of the various families, but at this time it is impossible, in many instances, to fix the actual date. In order to employ the Badcock and other data for other purposes in this history, an index of the Badcock and other records was prepared. This was found so helpful, in such use of the records, that it is printed in the following columns which precede the records of deaths.

RECORDS OF DEATHS.

The following references to deaths of Andover people, or to those closely connected with our citizens, are taken from the diary of Mr. William Adams Bachelder. The numerous entries in that diary were made without reference to other sources of information and so are specially valuable for identification and confirmation. Only such items are contained in these extracts as are not given in the various family or cemetery records; except where they are desirable for special purposes.

In many instances the entry refers to the date of the funeral services, and in such cases the letter F follows the date.

*According to Mr. Badcock's own notes, this number should be 174, if he reckons adults and children.

CEMETERIES.

The first burials in town were made at Boston Hill in the little cemetery for which the land was given by William Morey. The first person buried was Elsie, daughter of William Morey, but no stone was erected to mark the spot.

The next interments were in the little graveyard on the west side of the stream in East Andover village.

Then followed the use of the cemetery now north of the North Church at East Andover, for which a special deed was given by Charles Hilton.

The old cemetery at the Center is on land given for that purpose by Benjamin Cilley, and was first used about 1780. The lots were free. Some of the older graves are marked by rough, uncut stones with no inscription.

The Simonds burial ground was the first on the River Road. It is supposed that the land was given by Nathaniel Danford, who was the original settler on the J. W. Simonds place. The first person buried there was Alpheus Moore, a lawyer, who died suddenly, April 25, 1803, while travelling through that section of the town.

The larger cemetery at Taunton Hill was first used November 23, 1782. The land was given for a cemetery by Obadiah Worth, who was the first person buried there.

The Sawyer cemetery is near Scribner's corner in the eastern part of the town (now a part of Franklin).

The new cemetery at Andover Center was projected by Hon. John Proctor and is now controlled by an incorporated association. The officers of this association have been George W. Thompson, Walter S. Thompson, John Proctor, Nathan Woodbury, Frank W. Proctor, Clarence E. Carr, Amos H. Proctor, Carrie E. Carr, Walter S. Carr, J. R. Eastman and Henry A. Weymouth.

The land for the new Lakeside cemetery at East Andover was bought and laid out by Watson Dickerson and Joseph Ayers Rowe. Mr. Dickerson left by his will $1,000, the interest of the sum to be devoted forever to the maintenance and care of the grounds. Mr. Rowe's son, Frank Pierce Rowe, was the first person buried in the new cemetery.

Lakeview cemetery, adjoining Lakeside on the east, was established on land owned by Smith D. Sanborn.

Since the organization of the new cemetery association at Andover Center, many of the graves of those originally interred in the old cemetery have been transferred to the new locality. For this reason the list of those interred in the old cemetery has been materially decreased.

The following record of persons interred in all of the cemeteries is brought down to 1880; in most of them to about 1900. In some cases the record is continued as late as 1906.

These lists exhibit the names of many persons whose deaths are recorded elsewhere; but they contain valuable information concerning the place of interment. They also present the only known record of many people.

While a body of troops was marching through Andover towards the northern frontier, during the War of 1812-'14, three soldiers were taken sick. One was left at Kimball's tavern, at Kimball's corner; one at Benjamin Thompson's tavern; and one at the tavern of Moses Johnson at West Andover. The name of one was unknown; of another, Asa was the only name that could be learned; while the third, at Kimball's, was Hiram Hill of Maine. They all died, and were buried in the northwest corner of the old cemetery, at the Center.

Samaritan Lodge, No. 36, of Salisbury, was chartered in June, 1821, and its charter was forfeited in June, 1840.

This lodge held its meetings generally at the Centre Road, now Salisbury Heights. A lodge room was built in the house at East Andover, owned and occupied by Hezekiah Blake, afterwards owned by Charles B. Hilton, at the corner west of the present residence of Charles H. Hilton. It is believed that some of the meetings of Samaritan Lodge were held in this room. It is known that some of its meetings were held in the house of Elijah Hilton, where Henry W. Kilburn now lives. There is a tradition that some meetings were held in the house of Peter Fifield, now standing at Andover Centre. Some Andover men were members of this lodge. Most of their names are given below:

Hezekiah Blake	Jeremiah Marston
Samuel Brown	Enoch Merrill
Ebenezer Chase	William Proctor
Joseph Cilley	James Severance
Samuel Cilley	Benjamin Thompson
Tilton Elkins	Jonathan Weare
Peter Fifield	Thomas R. White
Elijah Hilton	John Woodbury
Samuel Kimball

Samuel Brown was master of this lodge in 1825 and Thomas R. White in 1826.

The most of the following historical account of the Masonic lodge in Andover is taken directly from a paper read at the twenty-fifth anniversary of Kearsarge Lodge on June 23, 1891, by Nathan Woodbury, for many years secretary of the lodge.

In the winter of 1866 a few of the leading citizens of Andover and vicinity, who were members of different Masonic lodges, more or less remote, started a movement for the organization of a lodge of Free and Accepted Masons at Andover Centre, for the purpose of advancing the interests of the order, and at the same time to avail themselves of the benefits, pleasures and associations therewith connected; and proceeded to circulate petitions for the signatures of Masons, both for the organization of a new lodge and also recommending the same. A majority of the signers were actual members of King Solomon's Lodge at Seytheville, now Elkins. Others were from Social Lodge, No.

50, at Enfield, from St. Peter's Lodge at Bradford, from Mt. Moriah at Grafton, now extinct, from Samaritan Lodge, No. 14, at Salisbury, and from Warner, now both extinct; some were from Massachusetts lodges and some of the signers were non-affiliated Masons.

This petition, with the names of fifty-three signers, was forwarded to the grand master of the Grand Lodge, with the request that the new lodge be given the name "Union." The petitioners also forwarded the statement that they had the approbation of the district deputy general master of District No. 5, and the consent of the nearest working lodge for a dispensation empowering them to "meet at Andover on Saturday on or before every full of the moon, and there to discharge the duties of Ancient York Masonry in a constitutional manner, according to the forms of the order and the laws of the Grand Lodge."

They nominated and recommended Brother George Sleeper to be the first master, Brother Charles W. Quimby to be the first senior warden, and Brother William H. Huntoon to be the first junior warden of the said new lodge.

The dispensation was granted April 16, 1866, by Hon. J. Everett Sargent of Wentworth, then the grand master of the Grand Lodge, to remain in force till the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge in June, 1866. Within a year a lodge named Union had been chartered in Bristol and the grand master gave the name Kearsarge to the new lodge in Andover, to receive the proper number when chartered. Brother Sleeper was not appointed the first master, as recommended, because he was then holding the office of warden in King Solomon's Lodge.

Brother John B. Wadleigh was appointed to fill the position of master, and the wardens were appointed as recommended in the petition. Masons in this vicinity who desired to affiliate with the new lodge asked for and received dimitts from the lodges to which they had respectively belonged.

Afterwards, in 1871, Masonic law and usage ruled that the act of signing a recommendation for a new lodge actually dismissed such member from the original lodge and constituted his membership in the new one.

On April 28, 1866, Kearsarge Lodge, under dispensation, held its first meeting in a hall on the third floor of the first Proctor's block, standing on the same foundation as the second Proctor's block, in which Kearsarge Lodge is now located. Brother John B. Wadleigh served as master, and the other stations were filled by election and appointment.

Brothers Shirley and Sleeper were appointed to draft and present a constitution and by-laws. Brothers Sleeper, Carr and Huntoon were appointed a committee to estimate the expense of fitting up the lodge rooms and the cost of jewels, and to arrange with Mr. Proctor for the rent. An assessment of fifty cents per member was voted. Brother John Fellows was elected the first representative to the Grand Lodge.

Kearsarge Lodge was chartered June 13, and was duly constituted on June 23, 1866, John H. Rowell, grand master of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, being present. Bro. George Sleeper was chosen master under the charter. The other officers remained the same as under the dispensation, except that M. P. Thompson was chosen treasurer and J. B. Wadleigh marshal. Of the twenty-three Masons present at the constitution of the lodge, fourteen were living at the twenty-fifth anniversary, and seven, J. H. Rowell, H. A. Weymouth, John B. Wadleigh, Charles W. Quimby, John F. Emery, J. D. Philbrick, and C. H. Morrill, were present at the meeting on June 23, 1891.

In August, 1866, Bros. John Fellows, H. A. Weymouth and John P. Carr were authorized to furnish the lodge room, to hire money for that purpose, and give their note for the same. Subsequently they reported that they had expended the sum of $570.69.

In September the fee for the degrees was raised from $15 to $25, and in January, 1867, a direct tax of $5 was assessed on each member towards paying the indebtedness of the lodge.

On July 13, 1867, Bro. J. W. Fellows presented the lodge with a beautiful Masonic chart.

The act of incorporation, approved June 22, 1867, was accepted and adopted February 1, 1868.

In March, 1868, all the rooms on the third floor of Proctor's block were leased for a term of ten years.

In May, 1868, the ladies, wives, sisters and daughters of members, presented the lodge with a large Bible for the altar.

In August, 1868, Bro. John F. Emery was appointed a committee to ascertain the actual indebtedness of the lodge. He finally reported the indebtedness to be $148.63. A vote was then passed to assess each member $4 per year until the debt be paid.

August 29, 1868, Bro. John M. Shirley presented the lodge with a solid silver square and compass, in behalf of the wives, sisters and daughters of the members. The donors were invited to be present on October 10 following, at a meeting for social entertainment and for a supper.

"While the years were passing, and our debts were being steadily lifted, on July 19, 1871, our new hall, our charter and our entire furniture, which had cost us $1,000, were destroyed by fire. We had no insurance and the flames spared nothing but two small books and a considerable debt. Having degree work on hand at that time, King Solomon's Lodge, then at Wilnot Flat, opened wide its doors, and a dispensation from the grand master enabled us to complete the work.

"Stated communications were held in Academy hall and in the hall of the Franklin House, formerly kept by Bro. S. S. Moulton, until the completion of this our new hall, when Bro. Robert C. Carr was authorized to procure a lease of Mr. Proctor for ten years."

The following January the beautiful large Bible now used on the altar was presented by the ladies, with words of encouragement by Miss Mary A. Brown, on behalf of the donors. A fitting response was made by Bro. C. W. Woodbury on behalf of the lodge.

The committee appointed to raise funds to refurnish the present rooms reported subscriptions amounting to $396; receipts from a festival conducted by the ladies to aid the fraternity, $62; in all, $458. On January 31, 1874, the records show the lodge out of debt.

Later the ladies gave the lodge $15.75, to provide the curtains which are still in use, and Bro. J. W. Fellows presented the beautiful picture of George Washington in Masonic regalia, now suspended over the senior warden's station.

Notwithstanding its reverses, Kearsarge Lodge has kept steadily on. Additions have been made from time to time to replace removals, and it now (1891) numbers sixty members, with a fair average attendance and degree work on hand. Its charities have been generous and well bestowed, its benefits well earned and its honor untarnished and well preserved by its officers and members who have been worthy and well qualified.

The losses by death to 1891 have been as follows:

S. S. Moulton	C. H. Melendy
John Fellows	W. H. Melendy
John Woodbury	Peter Stone
Horace S. Clay	C. H. Potter
Aaron Cilley	Stephen Morse
Simon Graves	John M. Shirley
William H. Huntoon	B. T. Severance
B. Frank Kilburn	John P. Carr
Samuel Robbins	Amos H. Proctor
George H. Morrill

In 1895 the lodge purchased new regalias and jewels, and also two swords, at an aggregate cost of $70.

The twenty-ninth anniversary of the lodge was observed October 26, 1895, with the wives, sisters and daughters of the members present. The exercises consisted of a musical program, banquet and a social hour. Many portraits of members have been presented to the lodge, and there are about two dozen now hanging on the walls of the hall.

Since 1891 dimitts have been granted to H. M. Bosworth, H. B. Dow, Joseph Baker, and J. C. Danforth.

From 1891 to 1901 eighteen new members were received by initiation and by card, and by death the lodge lost the following members:

C. G. Pevare, East Andover.	David E. Clark, Franklin.
George Sleeper, Wilmot.	Joseph D. Philbrick, Andover.
Daniel F. Whitecomb, Sutton.	John F. Emery, Sutton.
John S. Ford, Danbury.

The whole number of members who have signed by-laws, 112.
Number of members enrolled in 1901, 67.

THE LOCATION AND TOPOGRAPHY OF ANDOVER.

Andover is situated in the central part of New Hampshire, and in the northern part of Merrimack County. It is bounded on the north by the towns of Hill, Danbury and Wilmot; on the east by the city of Franklin; on the south by the towns of Salisbury and Warner, and on the west by the town of Wilmot.

The Pemigewasset River was the eastern boundary of the original grant, and the southeastern corner of the township was about half a mile above the junction of the Pemigewasset and Winnepesaukee rivers that unite to form the Merrimack.

The approximate latitude of the center village is North $43^{\circ} 27'$ and the longitude is $71^{\circ} 50'$ West from Greenwich or $5^{\circ} 14'$ East from Washington. The center village is, by railway, 29 miles from Concord, 104 miles from Boston, and 41 miles from White River Junction, in Vermont. By highway, along the route of the old Fourth New Hampshire Turnpike, the distance from Concord to the center village is 23 miles.

The western part of the town lies between Kearsarge and Ragged mountains, covering a large part of the northeastern slope of Kearsarge and nearly all of the southern slope of Ragged Mountain. The central and eastern sections stretch southward from the eastern spurs and foothills of Ragged Mountain in a succession of hills and valleys, slopes and meadows, such as constitute the distinctive beauty of the hill country of New Hampshire. The surface of the town is divided, practically, into two separate drainage systems,—one formed by the Blackwater River and its tributaries, and the other by the Highland Lake and the Webster Lake basins, that by a short outlet reach the Pemigewasset River. The low and inconspicuous ridge joining Taunton Hill and Boston Hill marks the dividing line between the two systems.

MOUNTAINS.

KEARSARGE.

This mountain is a prominent landmark, the dominant feature in the landscape in this section of the state. As an isolated peak it stands a dark and silent sentinel at the gateway to the mighty hills of the north, recognizing no rival save the grand Monadnock far to the southwest. Seen from the northeast to the southeast the view is at once beautiful and impressive, and happy the sons of men who from a thousand hills and valleys may turn their eyes to catch the first glint of the morning light from its towering peak.

There is a tradition that when first seen by white men, this peak was nearly covered to the top with a dense growth of spruce timber, but soon after that period the top of the mountain was swept by a destructive fire which burned every tree and shrub far down its slopes.

The work of the Coast and Geodetic Survey fixed the height of Kearsarge as 2,970 feet above sea level. Other authorities have placed it at 2,943 feet. The top of the mountain lies in the town of Warner, but some portions of the eminence lie in the towns of Salisbury, Sutton, Wilmot and Andover.

The southwest corner bound of Andover rests on the northeast slope of Kearsarge Mountain. Much has been written and spoken concerning the true name of this peak, and a prolonged and heated discussion of the rival claims of this and of the Carroll County peak for the honor of giving the name to the victor in the famous sea fight of the Kearsarge and the Alabama has made this mountain a noted point in the scenery of this section of our country.

It is not proposed to re-open the discussion of those rival claims, which, happily, have been justly settled, but to present a few facts concerning the history of this beautiful isolated peak. In his historical address at the centennial celebration of the incorporation of the town of Andover, on June 25, 1879, Mr. George E. Emery presented the following interesting and important historical notes concerning the Merrimack County Kearsarge and its immediate vicinity:

“The General Court of Massachusetts, September 6, 1638, ordered a survey of the Merrimack River, to ascertain its extent northward, with a view of appropriating the Masonian lands and suppressing the Wheelwright claim at Exeter under an Indian deed. I have discovered that a party of explorers, with Nathaniel Woodward as chief surveyor, and some Indian guides, made a survey of the Merrimack River in 1639, from its great bend at the present southerly line of New Hampshire, as far north as Pennacook (now Concord, N. H.), and explored the river (ceasing their measurements at Pennacook) as far north as Andover and Kearsarge Mountain. At that date Andover was first visited by civilized men. I was so fortunate as to bring to light in the spring of 1877 the original plan of the survey of the Merrimack River in 1639. Upon this remarkable historic relic or map Kearsarge is called 'Carasaga.' The name Carasaga or Kearsarge, it should be stated, was given to the chief mountain of this region by the Natic Indian guides. The name means when fully translated 'Notch-pointed-mountain-of-pines.' The notch at the summit is at present a noticeable peculiarity in the outline of Kearsarge when seen from the eastward. The mountain was covered with pine trees as late as 1796. That year a great fire swept the mountain free of nearly all the primeval forest that had grown upon it. The great fire so lighted up the surrounding country at night, for nearly a week, that the New Testament could be read out of doors in the western part of this town. . . . Many small military expeditions were sent up the valley of the Merrimack and among the mountains of the southern and central parts of New Hampshire after 1720. Saturday, July 31, 1725, Capt. Samuel Willard encamped with a party of soldiers and some friendly Indian guides upon the top of Monadnock Mountain. In the journal of his march Captain Willard relates that he saw 'Cusagee.'

"On the 8th of August, 1725, he was in the west part of this town on his return towards Massachusetts, as he said, 'By reason of our Indians having no provision and several of our English but little.' Capt. Joseph Blanchard with a party of rangers went down through Andover along near the present river road the same day, which was Sunday, when Willard was in West Andover. Capt. Ebenezer Tyng of Dunstable led an expedition in search of Indians up the Merrimack valley and visited Chance pond, April 11, 1825. Another notable Indian fighter named John White was in this town with a party of forest rangers on April 18, 1725, he having scouted along the east side of the Salisbury Bays the day before. White described the region hereabouts as 'very full of great hills and mountains.' "

The original map of the survey of the Merrimack River in 1638-39 is now in the Essex County Court Records at the court house, Salem, Mass., and has the following endorsement: "Plat of Merrimack River from y^e See up to Wenepesoc Pond, also the Corses from Dunstable to Penny-cook. Jno. Gardner."

Gardner was apparently the draughtsman who made the plat. A copy of this map may be found, together with some notes on the survey, in the Historical Collections of the Essex Institute, Vol. XIV, p. 153.

It should be said that there is probably no evidence to show that Goodman Woodward and his party ever reached the territory of Andover, but it is certain that they did locate with considerable accuracy the relative position of the mountain which they named "Carasaga" and we call Kearsarge.

RAGGED MOUNTAIN.

This truly ragged pile of ledge and boulder, crag and cliff, hill and ravine, stretches along the northwest boundary of the town, and is a fitting companion to Kearsarge, as they both stand like sturdy guardians over the traffic and travel that ebbs and flows through the great natural highway between their massive walls of stone.

Like most of the detached peaks throughout the Appalachian range, the south and southeastern slopes of both Ragged and Kearsarge mountains are by far the most abrupt. Between the summit of Ragged and the center village, and really one of the foothills of the mountain, rises the rounded dome of Pine hill, once covered with a valuable growth of pine timber. Farther to the east and nearer the east and west axis of the mountain appears the notable "Bulkhead," an almost perpendicular cliff nearly 400 feet high.

Still farther to the east and practically along the whole length of the present northern boundary of the town lies a range of foothills with a gradually decreasing elevation, pierced by two passes or gaps through which roads run to Hill and beyond. Through the western gap ran the first state road from Concord to Dartmouth College.

Since the settlement of this section of the state fierce fires have destroyed the trees, shrubs and leaf mould on the higher parts of the mountain, leaving at the top and for some distance below nothing but bare rock, while blueberry bushes and other small shrubs live on the still lower slopes. From the summit the view commands the White Mountain region and is charming in every respect. The height of Ragged Mountain above sea level is a little over 2,000 feet.

HILLS.

The hill lying to the southwest of Cilleyville and traversed by the old road leading up to the Wesley Cilley farm was formerly known as Twist Hill, on account of the winding or twisting course of the old highway which may still be traced.

Prospect Hill is situated on the south side of the Blackwater River and southeasterly from Potter Place. As it lies at the western end of the larger river valley the views from its summit are far broader than from any other similar height in the vicinity.

Stretching southward from the Bachelder road and lying between the Bachelder or Fellows meadow and Bradley pond lies a rocky ridge known as the Bear World. Tradition avers that this locality was once a well-known resort of the ordinary black bear, and the conditions for the last sixty years would indicate the high probability of the story. This ridge terminates just south of the Salisbury line in a rounded peak known for many years as Bald Hill. The name Bear World is also applied to another locality on the eastern slope of Ragged Mountain, including the mountain brook ravine and adjacent rough territory.

Mompey Hill is more properly a spur of Ragged Mountain, and lies northwesterly of the center village. It includes the territory between Mud or Mooseauket pond on the east and Cole pond and the house of the Ragged Mountain Fish and Game Club on the west. There is a farm with a fertile soil on this hill, but it has been neglected. The prospect from several points on the hill is unsurpassed from any similar height in town.

Beech Hill includes a large territory lying between Bradley pond on the west and the heights above the river on the east, and from the higher lands south of the Blackwater river southerly to the Salisbury line. Apple Hill, the highest point, is the most prominent feature in the landscape, and its rounded, bare summit affords views that in breadth and distance are unsurpassed in this section of the county, except by the outlook from the peaks of Kearsarge and Ragged mountains. The local name indicates that the first settlers found a large percentage of beech trees in the forest, a peculiarity that still exists. This section abounds with almost every variety of scenery in town, making it an attractive locality for walks and drives to every lover of field and wood and stream.

Overlook, the high bluff that rises sharply from the interval south of the center village, is really the most prominent northern spur of Beech Hill. Its height and proximity shut off the view of Kearsarge from most of the houses in the village.

Oak Hill lies north of the road from the Shirley place to and past Nathan Woodbury's and stretching northward nearly to Adder pond. This is a prominent object in the landscape at all seasons, but in the autumn the wonderful mass of oak leaves is a charming study in brown.

Taunton Hill, like Beech Hill, is the name of a locality rather than of a single elevation. It includes the high land west of Highland Lake, north and east of the great plains and northward toward the Hill line. From the residence of ex-Gov. N. J. Bachelder the view to the south and east is very attractive. The view to the eastward across Highland Lake and the valley of the Merrimack and on to Red Hill and Gunstock Mountain is worthy of the unstinted praise that has been bestowed upon it for many years. He who fully describes it must be an adept in the use of superlatives. The early settlers found here an excellent soil, and their descendants have so well managed it that some of the best farms in town are now found on this hill.

Mr. George E. Emery believed that the name was derived from an Indian name, Ntanntawem, meaning "I climb." Whether this be correct or not, the traveler who gains the summit from any side will be ready to believe that at least it is probable.

The prominent eminence lying east of the great plains, west of the little plains and south of the railroad, was first settled by William Morey, and was for some time known as Morey's Hill. After Morey moved to Wilmot the section to which he moved became known as Morey Hill, and the Andover name was abandoned. Portions of this section have since been known at various times as Connor's Hill and Jonathan Cilly's Hill, but the best known name for the entire locality has been for many years Boston Hill. The name has been the subject for speculation for many years, but thus far no authentic reason has been given for adopting the name Boston. There are ample reasons for calling this locality Connor's Hill, but the successful change of a geographical name is a slow process.

The eminence directly south of Boston Hill and lying on both sides of the dividing line between Andover and Salisbury has long been known as Raccoon Hill. The origin of this name has always been in doubt, although the subject of much guess work. One of the finest drives of the vicinity is from the eastward over the road crossing this hill on the town line. The views to the north and west are the best in this section.

Tucker Mountain is a locality on the southeast slope of a spur of the Ragged Mountain foothills and is reached by the road from East Andover village past the old poor farm and through the Pass to Hill. The neighborhood was originally settled by the Tucker and True families.

The prominent peak lying easterly from East Andover village affords a fine prospect from its summit, and at one time was a popular resort for lovers of attractive scenery. It has been known under a variety of names. First as Blake's Hill, from Thomas Blake, an early resident on its eastern slope; afterward as Corliss Hill, from Peletiah Corliss, whose house was situated on a lower slope on the west side; again as Robie Hill, from Paine R. Robie, a later resident on the east side; later and at the present time as Artist Hill.

The broad ridge spreading away to the northward from Artist Hill was, early in the 19th century and later, called Wicopy Hill, from the scattering growth of Wicopy (Dirca palustris) bushes found there. The inner bark of this shrub is very pliable and tough, and the neighboring farmers were accustomed to send their boys to this locality for bark to be used as bag string and for other purposes, for which we now use hemp or cotton twine. The writer has used this bark in tying together the stalks of tobacco plants in the process of curing.

The height in the northeast section of the town, over which runs the eastern road to Hill, has long been known as Cilley Hill, from Dea. Sam Cilley, an early settler on the hill. The view to the east and south from the summit will well pay for the hard climb.

The excellent farm of Capt. Caleb Marston marked the habitable summit of a notable hill at the eastern end of the town, known as Marston Hill, from the family that for many years occupied the farm. From this outlook is obtained the best view in this vicinity of Webster Lake, the upper Merrimack valley, the Winnepesaukee Lake region and the hill country to the eastward.

RIVERS AND BROOKS.

The Blackwater River, which at different times has been called, but not locally, Contoocook Branch or Contoocook North Branch, is formed at Cilleyville by the junction of the streams flowing from Pleasant pond in New London and Eagle pond in Wilmot and by Quickwater brook, flowing easterly through the village of Wilmot Centre.

The volume of water is materially increased by the stream which flows through the Bachelder or Fellows meadow and enters the river below the Cilleyville dam; by the outlet from Bradley pond, which enters the river a little above the Seavey bridge at Andover Centre; by the waste from Horseshoe pond, and by the great brook from Elbow pond.

The general course of the river in Andover is easterly until it reaches a point near the farm of C. J. White, whence it follows a southerly direction through Salisbury and Webster, joining the Contoocook about two and a half miles northeast of Contoocook village in Hopkinton.

The river water is clear, but when viewed in the direction of the bottom it is apparently quite dark colored. This appearance is evidently caused by the dark sediment brought down from the muddy bottoms of Eagle pond, Cilleyville bogs and the quiet pools about Wilmot Flat and deposited on the river bed.

Kearsarge brook, increased by the small stream from Morey pond, flows from the Bachelder or Fellows meadow, northward into the Blackwater river below the Cilleyville dam.

The inlet of Cole or Mompey pond, now the property of the Ragged Mountain Fish and Game Club, has long been known as Trout brook. The outlet of this pond flowing south into the Blackwater river, is known as Thompson brook.

The Tirrill brook rises from the springs and ravines of Mompey hill, north of Vivian S. Quimby's residence, and flowing southerly crosses the road at the foot of Tirrill hill, and empties into Blackwater river. This stream furnished the power for the small repair shop of Stephen Scales.

The inlet of Bradley pond rises in the eastern slopes of Kearsarge, flows east, then due north into the pond, and is known as Bradley brook. The outlet of the pond known as Eastman brook carries the water power for the hame shop and enters the Blackwater river a few rods above the Seavey bridge.

The Mitchell brook rises on the southeastern slopes of Ragged Mountain and flows south, crossing the road east of the town house, and passes through the Quimby meadow to the river.

Mountain brook rises high in the foothills of Ragged Mountain, near the southern boundary of Hill, flows south through picturesque gorges and deep woods, and forms the inlet to Elbow pond or Echo lake. On this brook, far up toward the town line, is found the charming Mountain cascade, the finest in the mountain district.

The outlet of Elbow pond is known as Great brook, which in a winding, leisurely way finds its way across the great plains to the river.

The Severance brook flows westerly through the valley between Boston and Raccoon hills, and finds its way to the river.

Morey brook formerly flowed from the northeast base of Boston hill towards Highland Lake, but in later years it seems to be lost in the stagnant waters of a swamp.

Bailey brook rises at Robie spring, on the southeast part of Boston hill, flows through the Bailey farm and the Brown meadow and loses itself in Morey brook and the swamp.

Tilton brook rises in the valley northeast of Taunton hill, and flows into Highland Lake. This stream is noted for its numerous small cascades and waterfalls. The most prominent of these is known as Silver Falls, a most attractive feature in the fern-decked, wooded dell. The remains of the first dam on this stream, built by Jonathan Tilton, are still to be seen just above Silver Falls.

Mill brook, the outlet of Highland Lake, has played an important role in the development of the town. It furnished the water power for the first sawmill and the first gristmill, and has turned the wheels of several other mills on its way to the lower levels. The name is applied to that section of the stream between the lake and Aiken's mill. Between Aiken's mill and Webster Lake, into which it flows, it is known as Sucker brook. The outlet of Webster Lake flows easterly, past several mills, into the Pemigewasset River.

PONDS.

Morey or Runaway Pond. This small body of water is situated on the east side of the north shoulder of Kearsarge Mountain, in the first range, very near the Wilmot line. It has no appreciable inlet and at present the outlet is quite small and joins the Bachelder or Fellows meadow, a small brook flowing northward from the Brown valley to form the Mountain brook.

Nether or Bradley Pond or Eastman Lake. This pond, situated at the northeast base of Kearsarge Mountain and mainly on lots 25 and 27 W., in the first range, was known on the early maps as Nether pond, but locally and for more than seventy-five years as Bradley pond. More than 125 years ago, at a point near the present site of the dam erected by the same company, there remained some traces of a beaver dam, which must have flooded a wide area. On the desertion or destruction of the beaver dam the northern section of the pond, opposite the present residence of James Fitzgerald, was drained and the rich bottom land was soon covered with a vigorous growth of white pine, ash, red maple and spruce. From 1845 to 1860 a heavy growth of white pine lumber was taken off. Many of the trees measured three feet or more at the butt and reached a height of nearly 100 feet, affording in many instances excellent spars and masts for use in New England shipyards. When the present dam was built the deforested timber land was again submerged and the pond now covers about the same area as in the days of the skillful beaver.

Bog Pond or Cilleyville Bog. This body of water occupies, under ordinary conditions, a considerable area of the lowland between Cilleyville and West Andover. The water from Eagle pond flows slowly through this shallow and muddy pond, which at a very low stage of water is little more than a narrow, sluggish channel.

KEARSARGE FROM THE GROUNDS OF THE FISH AND GAME CLUB ON THE SOUTH SLOPE OF RAGGED MOUNTAIN

Cole Pond. This small body of water, which has sometimes been called Mountain and Mompey pond, lies about half a mile north of the turnpike and a little west of north from the residence of John Sanborn. It was formerly noted as a trout pond and is now owned by the Ragged Mountain Fish and Game Club. This pond was named for John Cole, a hard-working man who raised a large family very near its shores.

Horseshoe Pond. This pond lies between the residence of Frank Pettingill and Blackwater River, and has sometimes been known as Blackwater or Mitchell's pond. It has no apparent inlet and the waste at high water finds its way to the nearby river. The railroad divides the pond by means of an embankment into nearly equal parts.

Mud Pond. This small pond lies at the foot of Ragged Mountain, nearly a mile northwest of the center village. The name of Mooseauket (moose place) was suggested for this pond by George E. Emery about thirty years ago.

Attuck, Adder or Seavey Pond. There is a tradition that the most used name, Adder, is a corruption of Attuck, the Indian name for deer. This pond is situated about a mile and a quarter north northeast from the center village. The bottom is muddy and the western shore is marshy. It has no important inlet and the small outlet stream finds its way easterly into the same water course that drains Elbow pond.

Elbow Pond. This sheet of water lies nearly easterly from the former residence of Samuel Swett, and was probably named from the peculiar configuration of the shore lines. At a point near the south shore an echo may be plainly heard, and from this circumstance many visitors have called the pond Echo lake, but the local preference is apparently still for the original name. The inlet of this pond is known as Mountain brook and flows southerly down through the foothills of Ragged Mountain. The outlet flows southerly and finds its way across the Plains to Blackwater River.

The falls on Mountain brook were found by the selectmen in 1864 to be about nine rods south of the northern line of Andover.

Loon Pond or Highland Lake. This beautiful body of water lies immediately west of the village of East Andover and is an important element of the charming scenery of that locality. It was originally called Loon pond, because it was a favorite haunt and nesting place of that peculiar water fowl. These birds frequently passed to and from this pond to Bradley pond, and for many years the old residents, when they heard the startling cry of the loon in its rapid flight between these ponds, felt that a rain storm was certainly coming. For nearly half a century this pond has been known as Highland Lake. The outlet stream of this pond flows easterly into Webster Lake.

Webster Lake. This attractive element of New Hampshire scenery was the largest pond within the borders of the original town of Andover. On the early maps it was known as Great pond or Chance pond. It lies in that portion of the original town of Andover that was taken to form a part of the town of Franklin. In a speech made by Daniel Webster at a meeting in the oak grove near Aiken Park, by the lakeside, in 1851, the great expounder of the constitution said: "Much has been written and said of the beauties of Lake Como, but that sheet of water is no more beautiful than the one on whose shores I now stand."

Since that period it has been generally known as Webster Lake. The outflow of this lake creates a valuable water power in the western part of the city of Franklin and finally empties into the Pemigewasset River.

Call's or Flaghole Pond. This small pond is gradually growing less and the decreasing amount of water and the steady progress of filling up from the bottom promises in the not distant future to remove this feature of the landscape.

Near the boundary line between Andover and Hill, and nearly north of the former residence of Samuel Swett, lie two small ponds, generally known as Lone and Weeks' ponds. From the various reports on the location of this boundary line, it would seem that for many years it has been uncertain whether these ponds were in Hill or in Andover.

PHYSICIANS WHO HAVE SETTLED IN ANDOVER.

The first resident physician in Andover was Jonathan Robbins. He was here in 1788 and lived at East Andover, near the fork of the road afterwards known as Barnard's Corner, above Walter B. Durgin's house.

Dr. Benjamin Rowe also lived here in 1788 and resided in the western part of the town.

Between 1790 and 1800 a negro known as "Jumbo," who claimed to have lived among the Indians in Maine, came to Flag-hole and earned his living for several years by treating the minor ills of his neighbors and of some people in the neighboring towns, with decoctions of roots and herbs.

Dr. Silas Barnard came to Andover about 1790, perhaps in 1789, and remained until his death, June 25, 1795. He came here from Bolton, Mass., and settled on the place at East Andover near the fork of the road, owned in 1880 by Elbridge G. Chase. This locality has since been known as Barnard's Corner. He owned a good one-story house, which was taken down in 1831 and a part of the timber was used in building the house owned for a long time by Caleb Cross. Doctor Barnard was a skilful physician and highly esteemed as a citizen. He died suddenly at the house of Captain Sargent in New Chester (now Hill), where he had called to see a patient.

Dr. Jacob Bailey Moore began the practice of medicine in Andover in 1796. He was a successful physician and a very popular citizen. He held several town offices and was active in all matters affecting the welfare of the town. He was especially interested in music and his children inherited a strong tendency in that direction. In 1812 he was appointed a surgeon's mate in the 11th Regiment, U. S. Infantry. The life in the army was too severe for his health and he resigned in the latter part of the year. He lived but a short time after reaching his home here, dying January 10, 1813.

Dr. Silas Merrill came to Andover soon after the death of Doctor Moore and resided on Taunton Hill. He married Elizabeth Haseltine of Epsom. He moved to Illinois in 1837, where he died, leaving one son and two daughters. His eldest daughter married Caius Jenkins, who was killed in Kansas by Senator "Jim" Lane. Doctor Merrill built the house on Taunton Hill where William L. Bennett now lives. After Doctor Merrill left town the house was owned and occupied successively by Doctor Hanson and by Doctor Weymouth.

Doctor Tilton Elkins studied medicine with Dr. J. B. Moore and began the practice of his profession at West Andover in 1816. He enjoyed a wide practice for many years and was an active and respected citizen. He retired from active professional work in 1858 or 1859 and went to reside with his daughter in Des Moines, Iowa, where he died April 23, 1873.

Doctor Kittredge practised a short time in Andover. He died February 26, 1819.

James Harvey McClary Haseltine was the son of Rev. Ebenezer Haseltine and was born in Epsom, N. H., September 18, 1800. His mother was Margaret, the daughter of Maj. Andrew McClary of Epsom, who was killed at the close of the fight at Bunker Hill. Soon after the death of his father in 1814, young Haseltine came to Andover to live with his eldest sister, who married Dr. Silas Merrill. After attending the military school at Norwich, Vt., Haseltine studied medicine with Doctor Merrill and began the practice of his profession in this town. He was at the medical school of Dartmouth College in 1825. He was very successful in his work and remained here until 1829, when he moved to Henrietta, N. Y., where he practised for forty-two years. While in Andover he married Cyrena, daughter of Capt. James Tucker. He had one son and one daughter, who lived in Rochester, N. Y. Doctor Haseltine died in Rochester, N. Y., January 6, 1874.

Doctor James M. Buzzell was a physician residing on Taunton Hill in 1833. He afterwards, probably in 1836, moved to Lewiston, Me., where, in 1883, he was the dean of the Eclectic Medical College. He was a brother of Rev. Alvah Buzzell, once a resident of Andover. Doctor Buzzell was a graduate of Dartmouth College Medical School in 1837. He died in Portland, Me., September 2, 1891.

Dr. Jacob Clements Hanson graduated at Dartmouth Medical School in 1839. He was a physician in Andover until 1843, residing on Taunton Hill in the house afterwards occupied by his successor, Dr. H. A. Weymouth. Doctor Hanson died at Great Falls, N. H., July, 1875.

Dr. J. Allen Tibbetts resided on Taunton Hill and practised medicine in this and neighboring towns for at least three years. The exact length of his residence is not now known, but he was taxed here in 1843 and 1844. Later he was the owner of a drug store in Manchester, where he died in 1866.

A Doctor Simpson practised in town a short time during the residence of Doctor Tibbetts, living at the east end of the town.

Austin S. Durkee was for several years a resident of Ohio, where he was a postmaster under the administration of Van Buren. He lived a short time in Vermont. After coming to New Hampshire he practised medicine as a botanic physician, residing in Andover, Bristol, New Hampton, Manchester, Plymouth and Franklin. He settled at East Andover about 1846 and resided there about fourteen years. About 1870 he went to Franklin, where he died February 24, 1881.

The following is a brief tribute from one of the most noted physicians and surgeons in New Hampshire:

Henry Augustus Weymouth was born October 14, 1820, in that portion of Gilmanton now known as Belmont. He had a common school education before he entered on the study of medicine with Dr. Nahum Wight of Gilmanton. He attended lectures at the Vermont Medical School at Woodstock and graduated in 1843. He came immediately to Andover and established himself at Taunton Hill, where many of the former physicians had lived, taking the place of Dr. J. C. Hanson.

No man has known the town and its people for two generations so intimately as he. He has been a part of its life—social, industrial, educational, political and religious—during all that period. The list of infants whom he has welcomed to the world numbers about 2,000. Many of these he has watched over through childhood and youth. He has seen them marry and has cared for their own little ones, and has finally stood beside their deathbeds.

Doctor Weymouth has been the typical family doctor. His first and absorbing interest has been in the practice of his profession. In summer's heat and winter's cold, by day and by night, he has been ready to answer calls, and at eighty-seven years of age he is still ready. It is only a few years since that he got out of bed one winters' night and rode several miles to a hill farm to see a child with croup. Approaching the place, the deep snow became impassable for horse and sleigh. The doctor left the horse in a barn nearby and plodded ahead on foot. His fur coat becoming burdensome, he dropped it and pushed on. Reaching the house he cared for the patient, and in the morning returned to another day's work.

Doctor Weymouth stands for much that is best in the medical profession. In figure, tall and massive, with a strong face; in speech, deliberate, direct and plain to bluntness, he makes an impression of sincerity which wins confidence. His thinking is without evasions, dealing with the substance of things in common sense fashion. He arrives at conclusions without haste and holds them with tenacity. His cheerful spirit and keen sense of humor have enabled him to appreciate all the vicissitudes of an active life in the country, and have carried the balm of hope and the stimulus of a good story to many a weary, suffering patient in this community.

His fellow-townsmen recognize and value his ripe judgment. They have always counted on his help and leadership in every good movement, whether for temperance, or clean politics, or social or religious betterment. He was moderator of the town meeting for thirty-two years, town clerk five years, representative in the legislature for three terms and trustee of Proctor Academy. He received an honorary M. D. from Dartmouth College in 1870.

With robust health enabling him to make light of hardships; with a length of consecutive service such as is granted to very few; with absolute devotion to the work of his calling, the value of his contribution, during these sixty-four years, to the life of Andover can not be estimated.

A Doctor Clark practised for a short time at West Andover about 1847. His subsequent career is not known.

Harry E. Mygatt, a graduate of the Dartmouth Medical School in 1896, was a practitioner in Andover for a few years and afterwards in Franklin and Nashua.

School in 1898, settled in East Andover, where he practised for several years. He subsequently moved to Hanover.

LAWYERS.

John Hancock Slack was the first lawyer who settled in Andover. He was born in New London, June, 1789. His parents came from Attleboro, Mass. On graduating at Dartmouth College in 1811, Mr. Slack became a teacher in Hopkinton. He soon chose the law as a profession and studied with Moses P. Payson at Bath, John Harris and Baruch Chase at Hopkinton and Henry B. Chase at Warner. He began practice at Goffstown in 1814, moved to Wilmot, where he married Lydia Hastings. He came to Andover in 1816 or 1817, where he had an office at one time in the "old Mansion House," then owned by his father. This house stood where Mrs. George H. Morrill lived in 1906. He was apparently a better teacher than lawyer or business man. His greatest success in the legal field during his residence in Andover grew out of a horse trade. He bought of a noted jockey in Goffstown a once famous stallion, "Bullrock," giving his note for $400, but the horse proved to be impotent, utterly worthless. Suit was brought to collect the note. Slack was his own advocate and set up such a vigorous and eloquent defense that he not only proved the falsity of the adage that "the client who manages his own case has a fool for a lawyer," but won his case with flying colors. In 1820-21 he was located in Goffstown and in 1822 he was a lawyer in Pembroke. He soon abandoned the law and opened a school in Lebanon at the East village. From Lebanon he went to Georgetown, D. C., where he maintained a very successful school for a number of years. He finally purchased "Evergreen Plantation," near Drainsville, Fairfax Co., Va., where he resided the remainder of his life.

ELKINS.

Jeremiah Elkins was born at Andover, N. H., August 31, 1795. He was educated for the bar and practised law at Washington, D. C., for a considerable time. He returned to New Hampshire in 1835, and practised law at Guilford. He removed to Barnstead in 1836, where he was elected to the state legislature for three years in succession. He was elected clerk of the house in 1836. On the 4th of March, 1837, he was appointed captain of the "Jackson Guards" in the Tenth Regiment. In 1838, he was appointed judge advocate of the Second Brigade, N. H. Militia, and retained the office until 1845. He was appointed register of probate for Belknap County in 1841, when the county was formed, and served with great acceptance for ten years. He removed from Barnstead to Meredith in 1846 and died there, greatly respected, in February, 1855.

BUTTERFIELD.

Samuel Butterfield was born in Goffstown in December, 1791. He studied law and began the practice of his profession in Epping in 1817. He remained in Epping, save for a short period at Goffstown, until he settled at Andover Center in 1823. He opened an office as an attorney-at-law, but he soon became interested in many other enterprises besides his profession, which was still his chief interest. He bent his energies solely to the work in hand, taking up new schemes as those in hand were put in order. He was never idle. He was the only lawyer in town. He built and for many years owned the tavern, which in the era of stages and freight teams flourished under the management of William Walker and Henry and Simeon S. Moulton. He owned the principal store, a flourishing cooper shop and several farms in the vicinity. He and his wife were interested in all the good works of the neighborhood and of the town and they both were largely instrumental in establishing the Andover Academy.

He was postmaster at the Center during the administrations of Jackson and Van Buren; representative in the legislature in 1846 and 1847; member of the executive council in 1851 and 1852 and president of the State Capital Bank in Concord from its organization until his death. He was a man of great energy and industry and by these qualities mainly he compelled success. He married young, and before he was twenty-five years old he found himself a widower with three children and at that time he had not acquired his profession.

He moved from Andover to Concord in 1855 and died in Concord July 4, 1860.

BUTTERFIELD.

William, son of Samuel Butterfield, was born in Goffstown, September 18, 1815; graduated from Dartmouth College in 1836; studied law in his father's office in Andover; admitted to the bar in Ohio, July, 1839; practised in Gilmanton and Nashua; editor of Lowell Advertiser 1842 to January 1, 1844, and maintained a similar connection with the Nashua Gazette from April 23 to November 25, 1846; assistant secretary of state in 1845. He purchased the New Hampshire Patriot in December, 1846, and retained connection with that paper until 1873; joint state printer, with John M. Hill, 1847-1855; secretary of state 1874; member state board of equalization 1878 till his death; auditor public printers' accounts 1879 till his death.

Mr. Butterfield married, December 31, 1844, Rosamond M., daughter of Findlay Robinson of Gilmanton; three sons. Mr. Butterfield died in Concord, February 1, 1884.

BRYANT.

Napoleon B. Bryant was born at East Andover, where he spent his early life getting such school training as was afforded at the district school, one term of private school and a few terms of Tyler's school in Franklin. By constant effort he secured the necessary preparation and took the prescribed course at Waterville College in Maine. At the age of twenty-two he began the study of law with Nesmith and Pike at Franklin, graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1848 and entered upon the practice of his chosen profession at Bristol the same year. At the age of twenty-five he was one of the commissioners of Grafton County and at twenty-nine had become county solicitor. From 1853 to 1855 he resided at Plymouth and secured a large and lucrative practice. In 1855 he moved to Concord and established the firm of N. B. Bryant and Lyman T. Flint. In 1856 he joined the ranks of the newborn Republican party and contributed to its final success in no small degree by his eloquent enthusiasm on the stump in all parts of the state. In 1857 he was elected to the legislature and was re-elected in 1858 and '59, serving the latter year as speaker.

In 1860 he was a delegate to the Chicago convention and after the election that year took up the practice of his profession in Boston, where his success, professionally and financially, was very gratifying. After a long life of active but varied experience, he retired from active pursuits in his profession to his native village, where, after several years of quiet enjoyment, he suddenly, at the close of a characteristic talk to the young people of the village, passed to the realms of the great beyond. At his best, he easily stood in the front rank of eloquent men in his native state.

HAMLIN.

Wolcott Hamlin was educated in the common schools and in Kent's Hill Seminary in Maine, and taught school for several terms. He came to Andover Center as a merchant, but afterwards studied law with Samuel Butterfield and was admitted to the Merrimack County bar in 1852. He moved to Dover and became solicitor for Strafford Co., resigning that office in 1861. He was the engrossing clerk of the U. S. Senate, 1861-70; member N. H. legislature 1866-67, and supervisor internal revenue, 1870-72. In 1878 he moved to Amherst, Mass., and organized the law firm of Hamlin and Reilly. He was the Prohibition candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1892 and the candidate for attorney general of Massachusetts in 1898. Mr. Hamlin was a man of versatile attainments, genial, enthusiastic and a vigorous and zealous campaign orator. He died in Amherst, Mass., October 23, 1898.

SHIRLEY.

John Major Shirley (see family) had the educational advantages of the district schools of Sanbornton and Northfield and of a few terms at the academy of Dyer H. Sanborn at Sanbornton Bridge. He began the study of law with Cate and Rogers at Sanbornton Bridge, May, 1850, and was admitted to the Belknap County Bar, September 13, 1854. In October, 1855, he came to Andover and formed a partnership with Samuel Butterfield, which continued until the death of the latter in 1860. Mr. Shirley soon established a large practice and became an influential citizen in this section of the state. He was postmaster 1855-59; representative 1859-60; superintendent of schools most of the period from 1858 to 1865; agent of town for enrollment of troops 1862-65, and delegate to the constitutional convention in 1876. He was reporter of the N. H. Supreme Court 1871-76. He received the honorary degree of A. M. from Dartmouth College in 1865. In 1879 he published a critical examination of the "Dartmouth College Causes," in which he exhibited great power of analysis and concentration.

Mr. Shirley's work as a lawyer was chiefly notable for the care with which he prepared all his cases. While much of his success was due undoubtedly to his remarkable diction, sometimes rising to impressive elocution, his chief reliance was in the preparation of his cases, with each important point supported by numerous citations from the wisdom of the courts. His facility in the use of sarcasm and invective, sometimes crude and often employed to compel attention, was almost always astonishing or impressive, and is nowhere better illustrated than in his reports as superintendent of schools, 1858-65.

He had a cordial hatred for all shams and lost few opportunities for expressing his opinion in that connection. Mr. Shirley's death before reaching the probable height of his professional career was a distinct loss to the community and to the state.

WHITCHER.

John Wesley Whitcher, son of Joseph and Nancy (Elkins) Whitcher, was born in Andover, February 26, 1829. Educated in common schools, attended Andover Academy, a student at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., 1848-49 and one term in sophomore class, but did not complete course. Was a teacher in Andover Academy. He was an excellent scholar and has remained a classical student to the present time. Resided at Dubuque, Iowa, 1850-51; teacher Grant County, Wis., 1851-52; civil engineer on the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad, 1852; civil engineer on Fort Wayne and Chicago R. R., 1853; land agent Ill. Central R. R., 1855-61; studied law in Concord, N. H.; admitted to bar in Chicago, Ill., 1862; practised law in Oakland, Cal., 1862-64; city attorney for Oakland; practised law in Virginia City, Nev., 1866-72; superintendent public instruction, Hovey Co., Nev., 1868-81; city attorney, Virginia City, Nev., 1868; United States Commissioner of Circuit Court, District of Nevada. From the beginning of Mr. Butterfield's residence in Andover in 1823, to the present time, there has been an important attorney's office at the Center village.

Mr. Butterfield maintained the office alone until 1852, when the law firm became Butterfield and Hamlin. On October 1, 1855, Mr. Hamlin retired and John Major Shirley was the partner of Mr. Butterfield, until the death of the latter in 1860.

Many lawyers began their professional careers as students of this office.

In 1882 he went to Boston, where, in association with George B. Upham, he had a good and increasing practice, until ill health compelled him to abandon his legal pursuits. Since that period he has become interested in scientific pursuits, more recently employing all the time that his health would permit in the study of meteorological phenomena in the vicinity of his residence at Fairhaven, Mass. REV. JOSIAH BADCOCK was the first settled minister and for many years was the best exponent of learning and cultivation in the town. He was born in Milton, Mass., July 6, 1752; graduated from Harvard College in 1772, and was engaged in teaching and probably in further study for the next four years. In his diary he wrote: "Oct. 1, 1776. Went to ministers' meeting at Epping and was examined by them and received their approbation to preach the gospel." "Oct. 27 I began to preach." "Jan. 1, 1777, prayed with a sick man, which was the first time I ever prayed with the sick." "August 11, 1778, preached in Lynn, Mass., and many of the militia were sent for to go to Newport and the people after meeting met to get men for the army."

On February 7, 1780, he received a call to settle in Barrington; a similar request from Wakefield was received June 19, 1780. A call to settle in Wendell was received November 19, 1780. He preached in Andover for the first time August 19, 1781, and remained to preach for several weeks. For this service the town paid him twelve shillings. He returned on May 26, 1782, and preached several times. On July 8, 1782, he wrote that the people in Andover had given him a call to settle with them in the gospel ministry. He was ordained with the usual formal ceremonies October 30, 1782 (see Church History, pp. 69-71), and continued as an active pastor until 1809, when he resigned and was formally dismissed by action of a council on July 13, 1809. He remained in town, living on his farm and carefully attending to all his business affairs until his death, December 7, 1831. He was familiarly known as "Priest Badcock."

Mr. Badcock always read his carefully prepared sermons, but after his death the family was unable to find a single complete sermon. He was not a popular pulpit orator and the people soon found many excuses for absence from "meetings." The payment of the minister tax was soon considered a burden and it was no small source of the minister's unpopularity. Mr. Badcock was generally a kind and charitable neighbor, who did not limit himself to simple duty in the kindly offices of a neighbor or a citizen. In the collection of the minister tax, however, he believed in a rigid observance of the law and would recognize no exceptions. Several cases have been cited when the parson rigidly exacted the tax from impecunious widows whose long suffering husbands had been unable to earn the poor pittance to help out the preacher's salary. One case described in a letter written in June, 1880, by a former citizen and clergyman who knew the facts, is briefly as follows: A poor but worthy man had been sick for nearly two years and unable to pay his small tax. Soon after he died Mr. Badcock demanded the tax. The widow explained to him her inability to pay at that time, that she had six young children and only a small house, two acres of land and a cow, which was essential for the welfare of the children; but she would work for the neighbors and earn the money to pay the tax if he would give her a little time. He would not relent, but sued the widow, attached and sold her cow, satisfied his claim, and left the widow and her children to their fate. The good samaritan appeared, however, in the kind neighbor, who bid off the cow and presented it to the widow, whose children again enjoyed their daily meal of hasty pudding and milk.

It is more than likely that such instances did more to destroy his influence as a pastor and preacher than any peculiarities of style or rigidity of theology in the pulpit. It was also urged by many people, about the beginning of the new century, that he "had never claimed any personal religious experience," and at that period of the new religious awakening this objection had great weight and certainly weakened his influence. At that time many believed that "preaching for pay was not in accordance with Gospel teaching."

In spite of the smaller criticisms which lose much of their force when filtered through the years of the last century, we at this day are compelled to recognize in the first minister in town a faithful, conscientious and hard-working preacher, a good citizen, morally upright in all his dealings, following the line of his duty as he saw it, wherever it led, with unfailing patience and fortitude. Of his ten children (see family data) the five who lived to maturity were worthy sons and daughters of a family trained in all those homely but essential virtues that have made the country life of New England the model school for good citizens.

REV. JAMES MONROE BAILEY, D. D.

As a boy he had the usual advantages at the district school in Andover. He completed his preparation for college at New Hampton in 1839, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1843, and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1846. The honorary degree of D. D. was conferred by Hilsdale College in 1869. He was ordained at West Buxton, Me. By studying nights by himself and with one term at the High School he succeeded, under great disadvantages, in fitting for Brown University, entering the junior class with some conditions in 1837, and graduating in 1839. He then entered the theological school and was ordained at Medway, Mass., as a Baptist minister in 1843. He preached at Medway, West Medway and East Longmeadow, Mass., Grand River, Mich., and Stafford, Conn. He attended the common schools in Holliston and the academies at Wilbraham, Mass., and Kent's Hill, Me. After his religious conversion he determined to devote his life to missionary work. To that end he studied medicine. By teaching school he obtained some funds to pay expenses and paid his way as he went. He attended the Dartmouth and Harvard Medical Schools, earning money in the latter years of his studies by preaching in the vicinity of Hanover and Cambridge. He married, first, May 8, 1840, Catherine E. Palmer, and they soon sailed for India. His wife died in 1845 and he married, second, February 26, 1847, Sarah P. Morrill. Edward, his father, a native of Charlestown, Mass., settled in New Chester, Hill, about 1793, and engaged in trade. A few years later Edward moved to that part of Salisbury, now Franklin, where he was a justice of the peace and toll collector at Republican bridge for several years. Elder Blodgett began to preach when about 23 years old and spent several years as a Christian evangelist in the state of New York and in Canada. He engaged very zealously in "revival" work in this town on several occasions, and generally with marked success. He was at one time assistant editor of the Christian Herald. He was a fluent and effective speaker and represented the town of Kensington in the Legislature in 1847-'48. He became very liberal in his religious belief during his later years and died in Kensington November 26, 1878, firmly trusting in "the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." His wife was a daughter of Elijah and Sarah (Batchelder) Shaw of Kensington and a half sister of Elder Elijah Shaw.

He died at the home of his son in Southborough, Mass., April 2, 1888.

REV. EBENEZER CHASE.

Ebenezer Chase came to Andover about 1808 and was the moving factor in forming the first Free Will Baptist Church in town, at the Centre, on May 30, 1810. He preached in town for several years, but the church at the Centre was soon scattered. He became interested in the art of printing. He used some old type and a press of his own construction and learned to print without assistance; a good example of a self-trained printer, equal to any task from that of editor to that of printer's "devil." A master of the art wrote: "His was a remarkable sample and no one would expect such neatness but from a regular printer." In 1819 he began the publication of the Religious Informer. In the same year he published a book with the following title:

A collection of Mourners in Zion.

In 1820 Mr. Chase wrote and printed a poem concerning “Universal Salvation,” in which the following stanzas occur:

“Huzza, brave boys,—loud be your joys,

Your sins shall be forgiven:

Oh! skip and sing! our God and King

Will bring us all to Heaven.

Oh! charming news, to live in sin

And die to reign with Paul;

’Tis so indeed, for Jesus bled,

To save the devil and all.”

Mr. Chase moved to Enfield about 1823 and continued his printing business there. From Enfield he moved to Taunton, Mass., and there became a Congregational minister.

The climate proved unfavorable, and after a few months he returned East. In September he accepted a call to the Free Baptist Church in Boston. After nearly three years in Boston, he accepted another call to East Andover, hoping that a change of climate might restore his health. He was able to preach only two sermons after his return, the last one on July 4, 1875, and he died August 7, 1875, bringing sadness to the whole community. REV. ABNER JONES.

In 1818 there was no settled minister and no regularly organized church. In that year Elder Abner Jones came here and by his unusual eloquence and personal influence brought about a most remarkable revival of religious interest. It resulted in the formation of a church which, for want of a better name, was called the Christian Baptist Church. One hundred and seven persons were on the church rolls. Mr. Jones was here less than a year, and after his departure the organization lost its membership quite rapidly. He had a great reputation as an evangelist, but did not remain long in any locality. He died in Exeter May 29, 1841.

Y., Andover, N. H., Jamaica, Vt., Warwick, Mass., Worcester, Middlesex and Underhill, Vt., Thornton and Tamworth, N. H. After the dismissal of Rev. Mr. Badcock in 1809 the interest in the Congregational Church in Andover was at a very low ebb for at least fifteen years. Several attempts were made to organize a new society and in the latter part of 1828 Mr. Kingsbury assisted in the formation of an organization known as the "First Congregational Society in Andover," and early in 1829 became its pastor. He was an active, zealous minister, but dissensions arose, religious interest in the new Baptist and Christian churches discouraged the increase of membership in his church and in 1831 he severed his connection with the Andover Church and went to a church in Vermont. (See family.)

Mr. Morrison was born in 1795, in that part of Sanbornton afterward a part of Franklin. For several years he lived in Boscawen with his brother-in-law, Mr. Gage. There he became active in religious matters and began to hold meetings in the neighboring towns. He came to Andover and spent several months during the religious revivals in 1819 and 1820. In this work he became acquainted with such young enthusiastic evangelists as Elders Shaw, True, Taylor, Blackman, Sleeper and others. In company with Elder Elijah Shaw he soon went to western New York and Canada. He was ordained as an evangelist and preached for several years in that region. He returned to Andover in 1827 and remained a few months. After a few months' work in Mattapoisett, Mass., he returned to Andover in 1830 and was prominent in the extensive revivals which took place here soon after that time. He married Nancy, daughter of Elijah Hilton, and resided at Mr. Hilton's for several years. On leaving Andover he preached in Franklin, Lowell, Mass., and Ogden, N. Y. In the latter place his wife died in 1842. He moved to Palmer, N. Y., married again and resided there till his death in 1847 or 1848. He was buried at Ogden, N. Y. He was an effective speaker as an evangelist, meeting with a large measure of success in his work and he was easily a leader in popular assemblies. He had three children.

He remained there until 1866, when he went to Mt. Holly, Vt., remaining as pastor there until 1869. He was a student at the Newton Theological Institute 1869 to 1871 and pastor at Lee, Mass., 1871-74. His health failing, he moved to California, where he died at Fresno April 28, 1892.

SAMUEL HOLDEN ROBBINS was born in Thomaston, now Rutland, Me. (see family), about 1799. He was a young soldier in the war of 1812-15 and later became a Free Will Baptist minister. He came to Andover during the great revival period, 1818-25, and was instrumental in forming and maintaining the Free Will Baptist Church. He preached in this town, more or less, for many years and was a temporary minister on many occasions in the neighboring towns. In his later years he lived on a small farm on the Fourth N. H. Turnpike, at the junction with the road from East Andover to West Salisbury. He died September 11, 1876, aged 77.

REV. EDWARD B. ROLLINS.

Edward B., son of Eliphalet Rollins, was born in 1793. He was a soldier in the War of 1812 and became an active preacher of the Christian denomination soon after his return from the army. He was a strong, healthy, resolute man and possessed a powerful voice, which, in his early work as an evangelist, could be heard easily at the distance of a mile. His career as a minister is perhaps best presented in the following statement over his signature:

"I entered the ministry of the Gospel in 1815, since which time I have traveled and preached in twenty-three of the states of the American Union and four of the British Provinces, and have delivered over 14,000 public discourses. And at the age of nearly four score years I find myself able to preach every day, and feel the delight in proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ that I have for more than half a century past."

He was the editor of several newspapers in Vermont and Massachusetts. Soon after he returned from his service in the army he assisted in the building of the house of Richard Potter at the Potter Place.

REV. HARVEY CALVIN SAWYER.

Mr. Sawyer was born in Andover, attended Proctor Academy a few terms and completed a four years' course of study at the New Hampshire Conference Seminary at Tilton in June, 1894; preached at the Congregational Church at Andover Center 1892-

94. He was a local preacher for six years. In April, 1894, he entered the N. H. M. E. Conference on trial and was stationed at North Salem, N. H., for one year and then transferred to Munsonville.

REV. ELIJAH SHAW.

Elijah, son of Elijah and Deborah (Nudd) Shaw, was born in Kensington December 19, 1793; married, June 16, 1818, Lydia, daughter of Dea. William True of Andover. Mr. Shaw became a minister of the Christian Church March 31, 1814. He came to Andover and held his first meeting in a barn June 24, 1814. He came to Andover again October 31 and on November 1, 1814, baptized four persons, one of whom afterwards became his wife. In 1815 he made an extensive preaching tour in New Hampshire. In 1816 he made the first of several preaching tours to New York. From these tours he frequently returned to Andover but made no prolonged stay. After about eleven years' absence, preaching in many places in New York, Ohio and Canada, he returned to New Hampshire and for some time held meetings in Andover, Boscawen, Deerfield and Sanbornton. He was for a short time in charge of the Christian Church in Salisbury, Mass., and in April, 1830, took charge of the church at Portland, Me. He subsequently was in charge of churches in Durham, N. H., Fall River, Mass., and Franklin, N. H. In 1835 moved to Exeter, N. H., and became editor of the Christian Journal. In 1840 he resumed his former life of traveling and preaching in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Canada. On August 29, 1843, in conjunction with four other ministers, he held a notable service on the summit of Kearsarge. In 1846 he became the agent of the N. E. Missionary Society, but in little more than a year his health failed under the strain of extra work and was never restored. He died May 5, 1851, leaving a widow and four children.

REV. NEHEMIAH DODGE SLEEPER.

Mr. Sleeper was born in Andover and his educational advantages were limited to the district school. He became "converted" at the age of seventeen and began to expound his religious convictions. In 1815, at the age of twenty-two, he adopted the life of an evangelist, which he continued for two years. On June 19, 1817, he was ordained into the ministry of the Christian denomination in Andover, at which service more than two thousand people were present. He preached in Andover for fifteen years; in Boscawen, now Webster, seven years; one year in Concord and resided in the village of Contoocook the last twenty-five years of his life, preaching almost every Sunday in some of the neighboring towns. In his early manhood he preached in various places in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Vermont. He was an active, earnest preacher all of his life. On the 3d of July, 1881, he walked from his home to Davisville, Warner, a distance of two miles, and preached in the schoolhouse, on the eighty-eighth anniversary of his birth. His last visit to his native town was on June 25, 1879, to attend the Centennial celebration. He was then eighty-six years of age and he walked to Andover and back to Contoocook. He was a good minister, a lovable man, a kind neighbor and a good citizen. He died October 8, 1881.

REV. JESSE THOMPSON, son of Benjamin and Miriam (Brown) Thompson, born in Andover December 25, 1795; licensed to preach in Andover June 12, 1820, as a member of the Christian Church; ordained as an evangelist at Andover June 7, 1821. He preached in Andover, Cooperstown, N. Y., and Burnt Hill, Saratoga County, N. Y. He soon retired to a farm near Ballston Spa, N. Y. At one time he was interested with his brother, Benjamin, in the management of an infirmary in Boston and a similar establishment in Concord, N. H. He married, December 22, 1822, Maria, daughter of Samuel A. Gilbert, of Mayfield, Fulton County, N. Y. He died at Ballston Spa, N. Y., July 6, 1858.

REV. WILLIAM TRUE,

son of Deacon William and Betsey (Tucker) True, born Andover March 12, 1795 (see family); educated in the common schools; ordained as a preacher in the Christian Church at Andover June 19, 1817; went to Brutus, N. Y., and preached there and in that vicinity till his health failed. He returned to Andover, where he died October 11, 1818.

REV. ELIJAH WATSON.

Rev. Elijah Watson was the son of Nathan and Ruth (Hinkson) Watson and was born in Nottingham, N. H. Elijah Watson "experienced religion" at the age of fourteen, was baptized as one of the early converts in the Free Will Baptist Church at the age of twenty-three and he came to Andover in 1803, soon after he began to preach. He was ordained at East Andover in 1803. He was a kind, sympathetic and genial man and an active, energetic preacher. With a meager equipment in education from the study of books, his zeal, honesty and simple faith made him an influence for good not only in his own denomination but in every community in which he lived. He spent most of his life as a minister in Andover, but he lived two years in Newport; two years in Croyden; ten years in Sutton and eleven years in Springfield. He was a representative in the legislature in 1816 from Springfield. It was said, at the time of his death in 1857, that he had preached more than 7,000 sermons, attended 2,000 funerals, baptized 2,100 converts and solemnized 1,500 marriages; but, so far as now known, he kept no complete records of deaths or marriages. Soon after he came to Andover he lived in a house standing east from the Jacob Weare house; afterward in the first house from the corner of Lakeside cemetery, on the road leading to Salisbury North road. Elder Watson preached a sermon on the summit of Kearsarge Mountain on the 4th of July and a very large number of people gathered to hear him. His subject was "The Goodness of God as Shown in Nature." He was a very large, heavy man, and in ascending the mountain he was assisted, most of the way, by a stalwart man at each arm. Afterwards Rev. Elijah Shaw preached at the same elevated point. Elder Watson died in Andover November 4, 1857.

REV. JOSIAH P. WATSON, D. D.

Mr. Watson, son of Elijah Watson, Jr., was born in Andover and was educated principally at the district schools at East Andover and at the academy at the Center. He was ordained as a minister of the Christian Church at East Wilmot in 1856 by Revs. P. M. Hersey, John Burden and W. H. Nason and for some time preached intermittently for the churches in Andover and Wilmot. He soon went West and had the pastoral charge of several churches in Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and Ohio. He was chaplain of one of the Indiana regiments; the first president of La Grange Christian College; for several years editor of the Herald of Gospel Liberty and afterwards editor of the Sunday School Literature for the Christian denomination. He received the degree of D. D. in 1892.

REV. PETER YOUNG.

Elder Peter Young was ordained in York, Me., September 9, 1808. He began preaching in Deerfield, N. H., in 1812, where he continued until 1819, when he moved to Andover. He was influential in several revivals in Andover, where he remained as a preacher for the Christian denomination for several years.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

BRIEF BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

The First Five Settlers—JOSEPH FELLOWS, ELIAS RANO, WILLIAM MOREY, EDWARD LADD and SIMEON CONNOR.

JOSEPH FELLOWS.

The first settler in the territory then known first as New Breton, and afterwards as Andover, was Joseph Fellows. He was born in Newbury, Mass.; came to Kingston, N. H., thence to a point near Corser hill in Boscawen, now Webster, and from there, in the spring of 1761, to his log house, which he had just finished, on land now belonging to the William B. Emery farm at Flaghole. At that time he was thirty-two years old and had a wife and four children, one a baby, the two younger children accompanying the father and mother on the first trip to the new home. The first part of the journey proved so hard for the wife, who carried the baby in her arms, that she stopped at a settler's house in Salisbury, where she and the baby remained during the night, while Mr. Fellows, accompanied by his dog, carried the older child and his gun on to his new log house, where he spent the night. In the morning he fed the child, left it in the house with the faithful dog and went back for his wife and youngest child. Carrying the baby and his gun, his wife following, they completed the journey that day and established the first home in the wilderness of New Breton. His daughter, Margaret, was the first white child born in this town. Mr. Fellows was of that persistent, fearless stock that has made the frontier a constantly moving line since this country was first settled.

A good specimen of the best type of New England pioneer, he was a farmer, hunter, carpenter, and possessed a working knowledge of other trades. He could fell the trees of the original forest and raise corn; could trap or shoot the beaver and tan his skin; build a log cabin or a frame house; make a shoe, or build and run a sawmill. His height was about six feet and his weight about 160 pounds. Wiry strength and endurance rather than weight and volume of muscle were his physical peculiarities among his fellow pioneers. Rumors of the coming struggle at Lexington and Concord stirred the hearts of the men of New Breton and Mr. Fellows was among the first to hurry to the point of danger. They were too late for the opening fight, but they all did good service at Bunker Hill. He was in Capt. Ebenezer Webster's company with Stark at Bennington and Stillwater. After the war closed he devoted his energies to the improvement of his farm and its surroundings. He set out the first apple tree in town. It stood about thirty feet from the old well on the Royal Stone farm.

It is related that, after his sons were well grown men, he built a frame house, 30 x 40 feet, on the ground. The frame was very heavy and he was advised to collect all the neighbors and have a "raising." He felt, however, that he and his sons were equal to the task and it was all raised by himself and six of his sons.

Mr. Fellows was a hardy, resourceful pioneer, a brave soldier and a good, patriotic citizen. Fortunate the town whose first settlers were thus distinguished.

ELIAS RANO.

The second settler in New Breton was Elias Rano. He came from Kingston with his wife, Mary, and settled on the southern line of the town on Raccoon hill and east of the Ziba Severance farm. He built his log cabin on the southern end of lot 59 in the first range. On November 19, 1764, he sold his farm to his son, Samuel, and moved to the location now known as the Walker farm, in the first range, and east of the Joseph Ayres Rowe farm. He cleared nearly all of this farm from the original forest.

He was a rough frontiersman, not noted for a saintly temper or for conspicuous abstinence when the common "New England" beverage of that day was in question. Tradition relates that in a domestic crisis the old soldier thought his wife's hot temper would be improved by a cold bath in the well. In the attempt to carry out his scheme he found that the opening for the bucket in the heavy timbered platform was not suited to the generous figure of his spouse, and her temper raged anew, while he confessed defeat. Mr. Rano was a good soldier in the expedition against Crown Point in 1756. He was generous as well as fearless and, altogether, a good neighbor and a useful man in the early days of the township.

WILLIAM MOREY.

William Morey, with his wife and probably six children, came from Kingston and settled at Flaghole, near where the brick house now stands. He cleared a part of that farm and then moved his family to Boston hill and was the first settler in that locality. His log house was built near where Mrs. Jonathan Ciley's house now stands. During the contest over the location of the second meeting-house at East Andover, Mr. Morey hoped to see it located near his farm, with a village springing up around it, in accordance with the New England custom. In that he was disappointed. He cleared a large tract of land in that vicinity but finally moved to Wilmot, then Kearsarge Gore, settling on what has since been known as Morey hill. His son, William, remained for several years on the paternal acres on Boston hill, but finally joined his father on Morey hill, where he raised a large family of children. Mr. Morey was an energetic, industrious man and a good citizen. He was a soldier in the famous campaign against Louisburg in 1745, and was in Capt. Ebenezer Webster's company with Stark at Bennington and Stillwater in 1777.

EDWARD LADD.

Edward Ladd came from Exeter to New Breton, the next settler after William Morey. He bought of Joseph Rawlins of Exeter, August 14, 1765, lot No. 33 in the third range, containing "100 acres more or less" for "twelve pounds ten shillings lawful money." He was a descendant of Daniel Ladd, a sturdy Scotchman, who came to New England in 1634. Mr. Ladd was the first settler in what is now the village of East Andover and built his house near the site of the house occupied by N. B. Bryant at the time of his death. He cleared the original forest from that farm and the adjoining land of W. D. Tuttle. There was born John Ladd, the first boy of white parentage born in this town. Mr. Ladd was a tanner, farmer and wheelwright—thrifty and industrious in all work that he undertook, and in later years built the house in the village afterwards owned by James Marston. He was a noted hunter and was a soldier in the “Old French War.”

SIMEON CONNOR.

Simeon Connor came to New Breton from Kensington in 1766, when he was twenty years old, and settled on the southerly slope of Boston hill, where his great-grandson, Otis R. Connor, now lives. The fine elms now on the Connor estate were set out by Simeon in 1782. Besides clearing and cultivating a good farm he opened, and maintained for many years, one of the first and certainly the most commodious tavern in town. At that period lodging and rum were the principal requirements of the traveler. He usually furnished his own food, generally bean porridge or hominy, which he warmed over the open fire on the hearth of the log tavern. Mr. Connor drew the first barrel of rum into town on what was known as a “culheag,” which was drawn by one horse and consisted of two long thills, generally made of hardwood saplings, the larger ends resting on the ground, strengthened by two cross bars, one not very far from the end. The load was placed near the cross bars and was not likely to be tipped over on the rough, rocky ground of the trail through the woods. Altogether it was a good vehicle for the days of no good roads. Mr. Connor was a popular landlord, of social temperament, and never watered his rum, which in those days was as freely drunk as we now drink tea and coffee. He was a good citizen and did much for the prosperity of the town in his time.

LATER RESIDENTS.

CAPT. JOSIAH BACHELDER.

Capt. Josiah Bachelder came from Hawke, now Danville, about 1782 and settled upon the farm now owned by his great-grandson, Ex-Gov. Nahum J. Bachelder. This is one of the very few farms in town cleared by the early settlers and now owned by lineal descendants. He was an industrious farmer and active in all the duties of good citizenship.

WILLIAM A. BACHELDER.

William Adams Bachelder was the grandson of Capt. Josiah, the first settler of his name in town, who built his house on what has since been the Bachelder homestead on Taunton hill. Mr. Bachelder was born on the ancestral farm, where he died in 1902. He was a good farmer and a good citizen. He was always interested in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the town, and while in politics and religion he had decided, conscientious opinions, he held his course in a quiet, unobtrusive way that never seemed to interfere with the belief or faith of others. In short, he was ever the gentlemanly gentleman of the old school.

Mr. Bachelder was deeply interested in the plan for a history of his native town and as long as his strength lasted he was active in collecting material and in suggesting fruitful sources of information.

NAHUM J. BACHELDER.

Mr. Bachelder is a descendant in the eighth generation of the Rev. Stephen Bachiler, who was born in England in 1561 and settled in Hampton, N. H., in 1632. Mr. Bachelder was born on Taunton hill in Andover September 3, 1854, upon the farm on which he now makes his home and which was cleared by his great-grandfather in 1782. He was educated at the district schools and at Franklin Academy and the New Hampton Institute. He taught school for a short time and then devoted himself to practical farming. In 1877 he joined Highland Grange at East Andover and soon became its master. He was elected secretary of the state grange in 1883, holding the position for eight years, when he was chosen master. He has been prominent in the national grange, where he has had marked influence. He has been a member of the executive committee for two terms; has served as national lecturer and was chosen master of the national grange in 1905. Mr. Bachelder was chosen secretary of the state board of agriculture in 1887 and has since held that office, to the satisfaction of all who have come in contact with that organization. In 1902 he was elected governor of New Hampshire, serving with credit to himself, the town and the state.

ROBERT BARBER.

Robert Barber was a dyer and cloth finisher by trade; a man of probity and sound judgment. In 1792 he went from Epping to Durham to learn his trade. He moved to Andover in 1799, thence to Wakefield in 1804. In 1806 he returned to Andover, where he became an influential citizen. He was made executor of the will of Joseph Noyes, the founder of the "Noyes School." He moved to the "River Road," in the vicinity of the school buildings, where he resided until the will was cancelled and the property reverted to the heirs. Mr. Barber then moved to Bridgewater, where he resided until his death.

At East Andover village, Mr. Barber lived where John Neal lived in 1904. His successors on that site were Capt. Willard Emery, Henry M. Bosworth, Hon. N. B. Bryant, Fred E. Putney and Hon. N. B. Bryant again. Edward Ladd built the first house on or near that site. Mr. Barber "purchased a right for a fulling mill in the year 1798" at East Andover, which he held for thirty-three years.

MAJOR JOHN WESLEY BEAN, U. S. A.

Mr. Bean was born in Vermont, but resided during most of his boyhood in Andover (see fam.). He received most of his education in the district schools and the academy in Andover. After leaving the academy he was employed in railroad work. He enlisted in 1861 and on October 15 was commissioned a second lieutenant in the 5th New Hampshire Regiment, where for three years his experience was an inseparable part of the life of that noted organization, whose reputation was second to that of no regiment in the service. He became a first lieutenant July 31, 1862; a captain January 1, 1863, and was honorably mustered out September 20, 1864. On January 20, 1867, he joined the regular army as a second lieutenant in the 35th Infantry. By the consolidation of the two regiments he was transferred to the 15th Infantry August 12, 1869. He was promoted to first lieutenant December 13, 1871, and to captain March 5, 1879. He was retired "for disability in line of duty" September 29, 1890, and now resides in Brockton, Mass. He was promoted to major U. S. A. April 23, 1904.

ELIZA JANE (PHILBRICK) BLACKMAR.

Eliza Jane, sixth child of Samuel and Mary Page (Gove) Philbrick, was born on Beech hill and obtained her educational training at the Beech hill schoolhouse. She taught school on Taunton hill, in Taunton, Mass., and for several years in Philadelphia. She was enthusiastic in establishing unions of the Daughters of Temperance and in organizing Sabbath schools. Later in life she was a city missionary in Boston and was noted in that city for her faithful labors in many branches of practical philanthropy. During her life as a teacher she became a successful elocutionist. On August 12, 1833, she married Rev. Joseph Blackmar. She died in Boston November 21, 1876.

Her son, Wilmon W., born in Bristol, Pa., July 25, 1841, was a student for some time at the academy at Andover Center, a soldier in 1861-65, a lawyer in Boston and an enthusiastic and popular member of the Grand Army of the Republic. While making an inspection tour as commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic he died at Boise, Idaho, July 16, 1905.

SAMUEL BLAKE.

Samuel Blake was the first man of that name in town, arriving here about 1768. He settled on and cleared the farm lately known as the William S. Marston place. He built the second two-story house in town. For many years he was one of the foremost men in the town.

WILLIAM BLAKE.

William Blake was born in Kensington. His father was Thomas Blake, who removed with his family to Exeter and thence to New Breton at an early date. Thomas settled where Mr. Friend Bailey formerly lived. His son, William, became owner of the land now the farm of Fred E. Putney, formerly the home of William S. Marston. He was deacon of Mr. Babcock's church for many years. Deacon William's son, Lieut. William Blake, built the house now owned by Mr. Charles Henry Hilton, at the corner of the road west of Mr. Hilton's residence. Deacon William Blake was said to possess an "acute understanding," and was considered a model of honor and all the virtues. He was witty without being frivolous, and pious without being dull or morose. His descendants have been noted for superior intellectual powers.

ABBA BROWN.

Lieut. Abba Brown was an early and active settler in town. He was a soldier from Kensington in the French and Indian War; was in the campaign against Crown Point; enlisted 1st, Oct. 12, 1756, in Capt. John Gilman's company; 2d, April 12, 1758, in Capt. Jonathan Sweatt's Company. He was, for that period, a large landowner in Andover. In a deed dated April 14, 1823, reference is made to his ownership at one time of lots 38, 40 and 42 in the second range, and lots 37 and 39 in the first range. His was one of the earliest two-story houses in town.

JEREMY YOUNG BRYANT.

Jeremy Y. Bryant was four years old at the death of his father, a merchant, in Newmarket. Mr. Bryant settled in Andover in 1818, where he remained during life. He continued his work as a clothier, dyer and finisher, until the foreign Kerseymeres and the American factory satinets superseded the home-woven and clothing mill finished goods of rural New England.

Mr. Bryant held several public offices and was a noted justice of the peace. Although he was without the knowledge acquired by legal studies, he possessed an unusual knowledge of the spirit of the law and he was often consulted by those who felt that something less than expert advice was sufficient for their needs.

He was not a member of any church but he was generally considered a Christian, in all essential points, by his neighbors and townsmen. His "heart was ever on the side of justice and freedom and against oppression and wrong."

ROBERT COCHRAN CARR.

Mr. Carr began his active life in Enfield and resided there till 1863. With Mr. Joseph Baker he founded the Concord hame business in 1860. In 1863 the business was moved to Andover and continued by Mr. Baker, Mr. Carr and J. P. Carr until 1877, when R. C. Carr retired. For several years after 1883 he held the contract for sawing all the wood used for engine fuel for the northern division of the Boston & Lowell R. R. and for the Boston & Maine, when in control of that division. In 1888 he purchased an interest in the firm of J. R. Hill & Co. of Concord in the harness business.

Mr. Carr was the representative from Andover in the legislature in 1883, and was the senator from the 4th district in 1887. In politics he was a Democrat and enjoyed the sympathy and confidence of his party associates and the personal regard of his political opponents. He was a good neighbor and a public-spirited citizen.

WALTER S. CARR.

Mr. Carr was born in Enfield Center and attended the district schools and for some time was a student at the academy at New London. He came to Andover with his father (see family) in 1863, and began his active business life as an employee in the Baker and Carr Hame Co. He became familiar with all the principal branches of the shop work and became an owner of a part of the business in 1869. In 1888 he became a joint owner of the business. In the many changes which have taken place in the methods and business of the Hame Company Mr. Carr has probably been the principal factor in the transactions. In addition to his responsibilities with this company, he has been interested in many other business enterprises, with almost unvarying success. He represented the town in the legislature in 1888-89 and he has been a leading citizen in all that pertains to the progress and welfare of the town.

CLARENCE EDGAR CARR.

Mr. Carr was born at Enfield Center January 31, 1855, and came with his father to Andover in 1863. He attended the district schools and later was a student at the academies at Andover, New London and Meriden. He graduated in the Scientific Department of Dartmouth College in 1875. He studied law in the office of John M. Shirley and became a partner of Mr. Shirley in 1877, the year before he was admitted to the bar. He represented Andover in the legislature in 1878 and 1879. Later he entered the office of his brother, George J., in Lynn, Mass., to study the course of practice in Massachusetts, with a view to establishing an attorney's office in Boston. The climate near the sea proving uncongenial he returned to Andover, and, on account of his health, abandoned the practice of his chosen profession. He entered the hame business with his brothers, and in 1883 became a member of the firm of Baker, Carr and Company. He has remained in that business and is now the manager of the Andover branch of the U. S. Hame Co. He has been actively interested in the politics of the town and the state; in the work of the Unitarian Society and Proctor Academy; and in all the matters that make for the betterment of the community. After Hon. Geo. H. Bingham had declined the unanimous Democratic nomination for governor in 1908, the executive committee, under their special authority to fill vacancies, unanimously nominated Mr. Carr. He accepted the nomination and made the most vigorous campaign that has been waged in this state for many years. His work and his influence was of so high a quality that thousands of the opposing party cast their votes for him, and his opponent won by only a small majority.

AARON CILLEY.

Aaron Cilley came from New Boston to East Andover about 1780, but he soon settled in the locality since known as Cilleyville, where he lived and died. He built the first sawmill at that place and for many years was the leading citizen in that end of the town. Mr. Cilley was a farmer as well as mill owner and his son and grandson of the same name continued the two occupations during their lives. Both descendants maintained the reputation of their ancestor in good citizenship, and the younger held many important offices in the service of the town.

JONATHAN CILLEY, SR.

Jonathan Cilley came from Nottingham to Andover about 1770. He lived, for most of the time, and died on the farm now occupied by the widow of his grandson, Jonathan Cilley, on Boston hill. For a long time he retained his citizenship in Nottingham. Mr. Cilley was a Revolutionary soldier; a private in Stark's Regiment in 1777 and a lieutenant in 1780. He was a cheerful, genial man, made many friends; and was an honest, good citizen and neighbor.

HORACE S. CLAY.

Mr. Clay was born in Salisbury and moved to Andover in the spring of 1843. He became the owner of the parsonage built by the town for the first minister, Mr. Badcock, and now occupied by F. H. Flanders, the son-in-law of Mr. Clay. Mr. Clay was an active, industrious farmer, and always interested in the social, political and military affairs of the town. He held at various times most of the town offices and was very active in 1863 in raising the number of soldiers to fill the quota of the town. He was a kind neighbor and a good, efficient citizen.

WATSON DICKERSON.

Mr. Dickerson was born in Hill, where he lived until about 1826, when he moved to Andover. He became the owner of a farm since known as the Dickerson farm on the Emery road, and he continued a farmer for most of his life. During the first years of his life in town he taught school in the winter and managed to care for his farm and stock at the same time. He also taught vocal music and was chorister in the Free Will Baptist Church. He was economical and very industrious and for an Andover farmer his financial success was very unusual. Among his final bequests were $1,000 to the Lakeside cemetery and $500 to the Proctor Academy. In all town affairs he was a man of considerable influence and he held most of the important town offices. He was a director of the savings bank in Franklin. In politics he was a life-long Democrat and a regular subscriber to the N. H. Patriot for more than forty years. During the later years of his life he resided in the village at East Andover, where he died in 1875.

GERSHOM DURGIN.

Gershom Durgin came from Hanover to Andover in 1790 and settled where Rev. Howard Moody afterwards lived. He was the first clockmaker in town and his mechanical skill and perception were remarkable at that period. He was a soldier at Bennington.

EPHRAIM EASTMAN.

Ephraim Eastman came to Andover from Deerfield soon after 1790 and began clearing the farm on Beech hill, a part of which, with the buildings, was afterwards owned by his son, Royal F., and later by a grandson, John R. He was a schoolmaster, a music teacher and a land surveyor. His teaching was confined to the period between 1792 and 1798, when he built his house, which is now standing. He continued the business of land surveyor until after seventy years of age, and most of the boundary lines in the western section of the town were surveyed by him. He cared little for public office and never was a candidate by any effort of his own. He often said, "I never vote for any man unless I believe him to be honest and fit for the place." His father, Jeremiah Eastman and his wife's grandfather, Henry Robie, were members and at various times officers of the board of proprietors who controlled the township of New Breton. He was highly respected by his townsmen and neighbors, by whom he was frequently consulted, but he was chiefly busy with his own affairs. He was not a member of any church but he knew the Bible as most men know the multiplication table.

ROYAL F. EASTMAN.

Royal F., son of Ephraim Eastman, was born and lived and died on the farm which his father cleared from the wilderness on Beech hill. He was a public-spirited citizen, hospitable, genial and generous, ever ready to aid as far as he was able all public utilities and he was always anxious to maintain the best class of schools throughout the town. He was interested in the military affairs of the state and was very influential in raising and drilling the noted company known as the Andover Light Infantry. He held many town offices; was once county commissioner and was nominated for county treasurer but declined the candidacy. He was never an active candidate for any office, but he had in a large degree the confidence and respect of his fellow townsmen.

JOHN ROBIE EASTMAN.

[The following is copied mainly from "Who's Who in America."]

Mr. Eastman was the son of Royal F. Eastman and was born July 29, 1836, on the farm now owned by him on Beech hill in Andover. He lived on the farm in boyhood and attended the district school on Beech hill and the academies at Andover and New London. Entered Dartmouth College in 1860 and graduated in 1862. On reaching the age of 17 he began teaching school and continued, when not attending school or college, until 1862; was appointed an assistant in the U. S. Naval Observatory at Washington November 7, 1862; and promoted to professor of mathematics in U. S. Navy, with the rank of lieutenant-commander, February 17, 1865; continued in the service as an astronomer, engaged as an observer and investigator, until October 12, 1898. Most of his observations and researches are published in the annual volumes of the government observatory, where he was in charge of the Meridian Circle work from 1874 to 1891. He observed total solar eclipses at Des Moines, Iowa, August 7, 1869; at Syracuse, Sicily, December 22, 1870; at West Las Animas, Colorado, July 29, 1878, and at Barnesville, Ga., May 28, 1900; was in charge of the government expedition to observe the transit of Venus at Cedar Keys, Fla., December 6, 1882; prepared and edited the "Second Washington Star Catalogue," which contains the results of nearly 80,000 observations made at the U. S. Naval Observatory from 1866 to 1891. Since retirement he has revised, recomputed and corrected the results of the observations of the sun, moon, planets and comets made at the Naval Observatory from 1866 to 1891 and the work has been published by the Naval Observatory. He is a member of several scientific organizations and was the first president of the Washington Academy of Sciences; has been the president and is now a member of the Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C. He was retired from active service in the navy July 29, 1898, with the rank of captain, but by special order continued on duty until October 12, 1898. On June 29, 1906, he was promoted to the rank of rear admiral U. S. navy. Before retirement he purchased the farm which his grandfather cleared out of the wilderness and where he was born, and most of his time in summer is spent on that farm.

SAMUEL ELKINS.

Capt. Samuel Elkins was a native of Epping. He came to Andover from West Salisbury, where he built the first gristmill and sawmill in that locality, about 1790. He set out his first apple trees in 1793, and built the first mill on the site where the hame factory now stands. He was an active business man and a noted mechanic. He settled on the place on Beech hill now owned by his great-grandson, Rev. Wendell P. Elkins.

WILLARD EMERY.

Mr. Emery, the son of Anthony, was born on the farm known as the Joseph B. Emery farm on the Emery road. With the exception of the year 1839, which he spent in Franklin, he remained in Andover till 1859, when he changed his residence to Lynn, Mass. For many years he lived in the village at East Andover and most of his time was absorbed in caring for his farming interests. He was interested in all things that pertained to the welfare of the church and schools in his village and was especially hospitable to ministers of the Christian denomination. Late in life, but before he moved to Lynn, he was afflicted with physical and mental derangements that in his unclouded intervals made his life a sad, unhappy existence. For some time he remained in an asylum until finally full relief came on July 21, 1871.

JOHN FELLOWS.

John Fellows was the grandson of Joseph Fellows, the first settler in New Breton, and, like most of the leading men of the town, was a farmer for most of his life. He lived first on the place where Henry W. Kilburn now lives and for several years was engaged in extensive lumbering among the big pines on the "Plains." He afterwards moved to the Bachelder place in the southwestern part of the town, now owned by Mr. Dawes, where for many years he was a successful farmer and raised many cattle for the markets. He then moved to the Center village, to the house now occupied by Miss M. A. Brown, where he died in 1868. Mr. Fellows was active in business, interested in all town affairs, zealous and well informed in the political policies and discussions of his period and an influential man in town and county. He held many town offices and was deputy sheriff from 1851 to 1855.

His wife, POLLY HILTON, was one of the most notable women in the town. With good judgment, quick perception, active sympathy and a lively interest in the political, moral and religious movements of her day she was generally the central figure in the social gatherings of her friends, and a source of inspiration to many young people who were striving to be and to do.

EPHRAIM GILE GRAVES.

Mr. Graves was born in Andover and passed his boyhood at his father's farm on Taunton hill. He was a good scholar and easily mastered the studies he found in the schools. He did most of the preparatory work at Tyler's school in Franklin and finished his studies in Captain Partridge's military school at Norwich, Vt., and at the military institute at Bristol, Pa. He was a popular and successful teacher in the schools of the neighboring towns. He was in business for a time in New Orleans, La., Boston, Mass., and for several years was employed in the store at Potter Place.

He was representative for two years and was elected to most of the town offices, all of which he filled with credit to himself and the town. He was an active, zealous member of the democratic party, always ready to work for its success.

For the last few years of his life he withdrew himself from society, except in the case of a very few near neighbors.

SAMUEL MCGOWAN.

Samuel McGowan, or "Gwin," as his Andover neighbors interpreted his pronunciation, was born in Wicke, Caithness County, in the north of Scotland. He was the son of James McGowan and Elizabeth Southerland. His father was a farmer and weaver.

In his fortieth year he was aboard a small fishing vessel off the Scottish coast. This vessel was overhauled by a British war vessel. He was impressed into the service, put aboard the Arabel of Greenock in Scotland, and, with several other victims of the "press gang," was shipped to America in 1775. The Arabel was captured by a "Yankee privateer" and taken to Boston. After several months McGowan enlisted and served for some time with the American army and against the government that had dragged him from his home. Under the provisions of the pension act of 1818, he received a pension of $8 per month. He married (1) the sister of the first Aaron Cilley in town; (2) Dolly Manuel, who, after McGowan's death, lived and died at the town farm.

The writer remembers seeing frequently, when about eight years old, this noted veteran, then commonly called "Old Gwin," walking around the center of the village with the help of a cane; once saw him in the meeting-house, seemingly an interested listener. After he had well passed his hundredth year, he held a "breaking up" plow for several turns about a fairly rough field. About that time he was asked about his religious belief, to which he replied, "I am not a Christian now but hope to be by and by."

He then lived with Stephen Cilley in the Jeremiah Roberts house, now owned by Everand C. Perkins.

At one time, when first married, he owned a place just west of the present Cilleyville schoolhouse, where he lived for several years. The town finally arranged to take this place with his annual pension and guarantee his support for the remainder of his life. He died in Andover February 1, 1845, aged 110 years, 2 months and 15 days. No stone marks the grave of the sturdy veteran.

PAUL SMITH MARSTON.

Paul Smith Marston was a notable man in the group of those Andover citizens who had served their country well in the war of the Revolution. He was energetic and persevering in his own business and in town affairs, and was a good example of the frontier citizen. After many years of fruitless controversy in the town over a site for the new church, he saw that the old church was the principal obstacle to a settlement of the vexed question and in the dim moonlight of an early spring evening the crude structure was torn down. He held many offices in the town and was one of the leading men in the town affairs. He settled in the Flaghole district on the farm afterwards occupied for many years by Stephen Fellows, Sr. In his declining years he lived with his son, Caleb, on Marston hill. He was buried in the cemetery at the North Church.

CALEB MARSTON.

Caleb Marston, Sr., was a farmer and had considerable mechanical skill. As a farmer he was noted for his industry and good management and his farm became one of the most profitable in town. He was noted for many years as a successful road builder. His integrity was incorruptible and when he had decided upon any line of action his opinions were as inflexible as the hills. During a great scarcity of hay in the spring the price rose quickly to $20 per ton, remarkable for that period. Mr. Marston had a large quantity on hand but he would not accept more than $15 per ton, saying "That is enough for it. I can't take advantage of the necessities of others." His last years were spent in East Andover village.

For Dr. JACOB BAILEY MOORE, see Physicians.

HENRY EATON, son of Dr. Jacob Bailey MOORE, was born in Andover July 21, 1803. He learned the printer's trade in Concord, N. H., under the direction of his brother, Jacob B., Jr., and at the age of twenty-two began the publication of the Grafton Journal at Plymouth, N. H. He became greatly interested in music and was a composer and teacher for several years. Much of his time was employed in editing various musical publications. (See authors and books.)

JACOB BAILEY, son of Dr. Jacob Bailey MOORE, was born in Andover October 1, 1797. He learned the printer's trade in the office of the N. H. Patriot, then controlled by Isaac Hill, and afterwards married the sister of Mr. Hill; published a topographical and historical sketch of Andover in his "Collections"; was editor of N. H. Journal 1826 to 1829, when the paper changed hands and united with the New Hampshire Statesman; member of the legislature in 1828; sheriff of Merrimack County in 1829; clerk in postoffice department in Washington, D. C. 1841-45; librarian N. Y. Historical Society 1845; postmaster San Francisco, Cal., 1849. (See authors and books.)

JOHN WEEKS, son of Dr. Jacob Bailey MOORE, was born in Andover April 11, 1807. He was trained as a printer by his brother, Jacob B., Jr., and became editor of the Bellows Falls Gazette. Mr. Moore was an indefatigable worker and devoted most of his life to editing and publishing works on music and on the history of printing and compiled and published the biographies of printers and publishers. (See authors and books.)

JOSEPH PHILBRICK.

Mr. Philbrick came from Hawke, now Danville, to Andover in 1777 and settled on the site of the present "Philbrick place" on Taunton hill. He built a log house and barn and stored all his personal effects, some provisions and nearly all of his money in the house. While he was away to Kingston to get his family the house with its contents was burned. The state paid him for the amount of the burned provincial "Bills of Credit," but the Continental Scrip and the coin tied up in a stout linen pillow case were a total loss. He was told that his neighbors would be glad to assist him in building another house if he would circulate a subscription paper, to which he replied, "Oh, no! I don't want it. I can dig but I cannot beg." And he did dig. He lived in one corner of his barn until he built another house. When his boys were married he furnished each with a well stocked farm.

He afterwards built the large and handsomely finished house now standing on the Philbrick homestead on Taunton hill. His house was always the center of hospitality and the ministers of at least two denominations were accustomed to call his house the "Pilgrim Tavern," as his bountiful board was always free. Mr. Philbrick held many town offices and offices of trust, and was the representative for eight successive years after the town was entitled to a separate representation.

RICHARD POTTER.

Richard Potter, the ventriloquist and sleight-of-hand performer, was perhaps one of the most noted men in town during his residence.

In his professional work on the platform, in most of the states of the Union, he had no superior in this country. To the people of the town his early life was a mystery. When definitely questioned he declined talking or tactfully changed the subject. When rumor decided that he was an East Indian, he took no pains to deny it and that finally became the popular belief.

His real history, as known in Massachusetts, is of romantic interest. His father was Sir Charles Henry Frankland, an English baronet, who, though of English parentage, was born in Bengal, India. He came to this country in the English consular service at Boston and finally settled in Hopkinton, Mass., where in a "magnificent country residence" which he had built, he lived a strange and somewhat dissolute life for a number of years. It is said that Frankland claimed descent from Oliver Cromwell. Potter's mother was "Dinah," a negress, probably a slave, attached to Frankland's household in Hopkinton.

Potter was well educated and by his father's provision was enabled to travel extensively in Europe. At the death of his father, who had lived with and finally married the beautiful and somewhat famous Agnes Serriage of Marblehead, young Potter was thrown upon his own resources. He returned to this country and became for a time a servant in the family of the father of Gen. Henry K. Oliver, when Henry K. was a child.

About the large fireplace in the kitchen of the Oliver home Potter first exhibited his skill as a ventriloquist and prestidigitator in this country. He probably had learned something of the art in his travels. He soon left the Oliver family and lived his own life, the details of which, beyond the few years spent in this town, are unknown. He came to Andover on one of his exhibition trips and gave his first performance in the tavern of Benjamin Thompson, where he made his home when in town. One of Thompson's sons accompanied Potter in one of his southern trips. Potter was pleased with the scenery and with the people of that section of the town, and bought the farm, where he built his house in 1814-15. Potter made the plans and "Esq. Graves" built the house, which was on the site now occupied by the house of Daniel Downes. Rev. E. B. Rollins, then a young man, just returned from the war of 1812-15, worked for Potter and carried the mortar for the house.

Potter was married but his wife's maiden name is not known. A son, Richard, grew to manhood and followed the profession of his father. (See family.) One child, Henry M., was killed October 5, 1816, by falling under the wheels of a cart loaded with corn. He was seven years old and was buried in the old cemetery at the Center. It is said that a daughter was born, but lived only a short time. Richard Potter and his wife, Sally, were buried in the grounds now owned by Daniel Downes and almost opposite the railroad station at Potter Place. The headstones have the following inscriptions:

Richard Potter died Sept. 20, 1835, aged 52.

Sally Potter died October 24, 1836, aged 49.

It is supposed that their ages were greater than given on the headstones.

Sir Charles Henry Frankland had another son, whose mother was a negress, another servant in Frankland's retinue, whom he named Richard Cromwell Potter. This man lived for many years in Hopkinton, Mass., and afterwards came to live in Andover, where he died early in 1861, aged 65. He was always known in Andover as Cromwell, or more familiarly as "Crum" Potter, and will be remembered as a man of various accomplishments as a farm laborer. His wife, Phebe, was an invaluable member of the community. Honest, industrious, an excellent cook and a competent nurse, her record was worthy of emulation in any walk in life. The colored blood in her veins, and it was very dark, was no bar at any table or fireside in the western end of the town. Twenty-five years ago there were many men and women living whose first toilets were made by the deft hands of Mrs. Potter. She died in the summer of 1860, aged 84. She had solved the race question.

WILLIAM PROCTOR.

Mr. Proctor came from Salisbury, Mass., to East Andover about 1796. In 1805 he moved to Andover Center. He was a blacksmith and was accounted a skillful and ingenious workman. Like most country mechanics of that day he was a farmer, an arrangement which, in the simple life of that period, added materially to the family income. He was a captain and major in the 21st Regiment of state militia; held many town offices and was a man of excellent judgment and high character. He was a staunch Democrat and an earnest Methodist, and his house was always a home for all Methodist ministers and also for most other clergymen. When the agitation for the abolition of negro slavery was receiving much attention, he did not sympathize with the abolitionists, and posted the following notice at his gate:

"This house is a home for all ministers of the gospel, but no home for an abolitionist." After moving to Andover Center Mr. Proctor became prominent in Masonic circles. Much of his mechanical skill was inherited, apparently, by his children and grandchildren.

JOHN PROCTOR.

Mr. Proctor was born at East Andover and passed his youthful days in the district schoolhouse, on the farm and in his father's blacksmith shop, where he learned the rudiments of the machinists' trade. At the age of eighteen he went to Seekonk,

R. I., where he found employment with a blacksmith at $18 per month, staying there until he reached his majority. While in Seekonk he faithfully sent a portion of his wages each year to his father. In 1826 he went to Providence, R. I., and found work at finishing machinery, at which he earned $1.33 per day. At the end of eleven years he had a capital of about $3,000. In 1840 he was associated with three other men in a company known as The Eagle Screw Company, for the manufacture of wood screws. A rival company was organized in 1845, but the Eagle Company continued its prosperity, and in 1851 produced 8,000 gross of screws per day. In 1858 the two companies were consolidated under the title of the American Screw Co., with a capital of one million dollars, and a daily production of 30,000 gross of screws. In these various companies Mr. Proctor had held the position of superintendent of machinery, and he owned a generous amount of the stock of the new company. By this time he had, by unusual industry, well regulated economy, exemplary habits and judicious investments, acquired a handsome fortune for those days, and he decided to return to Andover and enjoy once more the freedom of life in the country. From this time until his death his life was one of great activity and liberality, actuated by his desire for the improvement and development of his native town. Mr. Proctor expended large sums of money in improving farms and buildings in and around the center village and at Cilleyville. He contributed several thousand dollars towards extinguishing the war debt of the town, gave $5,000 for educational purposes in the town, was a generous supporter of the cause of liberal religion and contributed to the funds of the Chandler Scientific Department of Dartmouth College. He was interested in the establishment of manufacturing industries and was active in the development of the water power at the site of the present hame factory and at Cilleyville. The Proctor House, which he built, furnished and owned till it was destroyed by fire, was probably the most popular, complete and attractive hotel in this section of the state. It was crowded with guests during the summer and rooms were engaged nine months in advance.

In politics Mr. Proctor was an ardent Democrat. He was a representative in 1861 and 1862: a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1868 and a state senator in 1875.

EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

Miss Proctor was born in the Contoocook valley in Henniker, N. H. There she spent her childhood and there she became imbued with the love of forest and stream, valley and mountain that has been a quickening inspiration in many of her highest literary creations.

On the marriage of her mother to Joseph C. Thompson, she came with her to reside in Andover. On the completion of her education she made her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., where after a few years she published her first book, "Life Thoughts," a collection of extracts from the extemporaneous discourses of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. These were so well arranged and so generally recognized as presenting the best utterances of the great preacher that the volume became very popular both in England and the United States.

From her childhood she had shown unusual ability in poetical composition and her young womanhood had strongly accented her talent and her power. She soon published a volume of poems, which were favorably received and gave her high rank among the poets of the country. After an extensive foreign tour, embracing Egypt, Palestine and nearly all the European countries, she published an interesting book, "A Russian Journey," replete with information clothed in a charming style. Much of Miss Proctor's literary work has been done for magazines and newspapers and some of her best productions have been given to the public in this informal manner. Her patriotic love for her native state and for the greater nation are strongly manifest in some of her most graceful as well as in the strongest of her poems. She is still peerless among the literary singers of her own New Hampshire. In the soul of every one born within sight of "Our Kearsarge," the following poem will strike a responsive chord:

KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

By EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

Oh, lift thy head, thou mountain lone,
And mate thee with the sun!
Thy rosy clouds are valeward blown,
Thy stars, that near at midnight shone
Gone heavenward one by one,
And half of earth, and half of air,
Thou risest vast and gray and bare

And crowned with glory. Far southwest
Monadnock sinks to see,—
For all its trees and towering crest,
And clear Contoocook from its breast
Poured down for wood and lea,—
How statelier still, through frost and dew,
Thy granite cleaves the distant blue.

And high to north, from fainter sky,
Franconia's cliffs look down;
Home to their crags the eagles fly,
Deep in their caves the echoes die,
The sparkling waters frown,
And the great face that guards the glen Pales with the pride of mortal men.

Nay, from their silent, crystal seat
The White Hills scan the plain;
Nor Saco's leaping, lightsome feet,
Nor Ammonoosuc wild to greet
The meadows and the main,
Nor snows nor thunders can atone
For splendor thou hast made thine own.

For thou hast joined the immortal band
Of hills and streams and plains,
Shrined in the songs of native land,—
Linked with the deeds of valor grand
Told when the bright day wanes,—
Part of the nation's life art thou,
O mountain of the granite brow!

Not Pelion when the Argo rose,
Grace of its goodliest trees;
Nor Norway hills when woodman's blows
Their pines sent through the snows
That kings might rove the seas;
Nor heights that gave the Armada's line,
Thrilled with a joy as pure as thine.

Bold was the ship thy name that bore;
Strength of the hills was hers;
Heart of the oaks thy pastures store,
The pines that hear the north-wind roar,
The dark and tapering firs;
Nor Argonaut nor Viking knew
Sublimer daring than her crew.

And long as freedom fires the soul
Or mountains pierce the air,
Her fame shall shine on honor's scroll;
Thy brow shall be the pilgrim's goal
Uplifted broad and fair;
And, from thy skies, inspiring gales
O'er future seas shall sweep our sails.

Still summer keep thy pastures green,
And clothe thy oaks and pines;
Brooks laugh thy rifted rocks between;
Snows fall serenely o'er the scene
And veil thy lofty lines;
While crowned and peerless thou dost stand,
The monarch of our mountain land.

JOSEPH SEVERANCE.

Lieut. Joseph Severance, born in Kingston, came from Chester to Andover in 1869, and settled on the Andover side of Raccoon hill. He cleared and cultivated much of the farm afterwards owned by his son, Dea. James, and later by his grandson, Ziba. He was chosen one of the "Committee of Safety" and was active and zealous in all things tending to the welfare of the town during the Revolutionary struggle.

JAMES SEVERANCE.

Dea. James Severance was born in Andover and inherited the excellent farm which he and his son, Ziba, made one of the noted farms in town. The deacon was a conscientious and strictly honest man, a good citizen and a consistent church member, who took his religious spirit into his daily life.

Having erected a good house he arranged to have it dedicated on October 11, 1830. Elder Elijah Watson preached the dedicatory sermon from the text, "But as for me and my house we will serve the Lord." A large gathering of "brethren" and other citizens filled the handsome new house and the good old minister pronounced it a "powerful meeting." An evening meeting followed the extraordinary services of the day and continued until one o'clock on the following morning. At that hour the people returned to their homes after agreeing to meet at sunrise at the same place to continue the religious exercises. At sunrise a large company were found assembled at prayers, which continued until 9 a. m., when the dedication was completed. That house is still standing, but the spirit of the house has departed.

JOHN WESLEY SIMONDS.

Mr. Simonds was born on the "river road" in that portion of Andover included later in the town of Franklin, on May 10, 1829. He attended the district schools of the neighborhood, studied one term at the Instructor's School at Franklin and finished his preparatory course at Andover Academy; graduated at Bowdoin College in 1854 and received the degree of A. M. in course. He soon adopted teaching as a profession and continued in that work either as an active teacher, a superintendent or director throughout his after life.

He was principal of the Salisbury Academy; principal of the high school at Fisherville, now Penacook, for three years; principal of the academy at Andover most of the time from 1857 to 1871; state superintendent of schools for New Hampshire from 1871 to 1876; superintendent of schools in Milford, Mass.; and in 1882 was principal of the Burr and Benton Academy in Manchester, Vt. He was elected president of the University of Dakota, where he remained until his death at Vermillion, Dak., June 3, 1885.

COLONEL JOSEPH SWEATT.

Mr. Sweatt was born in Salisbury and came with his father to the Carlton J. White farm on the Blackwater river when a young man, where he remained until 1847. He was a prominent citizen of the town from early manhood throughout a long and honorable career. He was adjutant of the 21st Regiment as early as 1826, major in 1830, lieutenant colonel in 1831, and was at the head of the regiment as early as 1834. He was during this period honored with various offices in the town, being frequently elected moderator, and was one of the selectmen for several years. He was the representative of the town in the legislature in 1835. His farm was well cultivated and very productive and the buildings erected by him were very convenient. He was a prime mover in building the Union Church at Andover Center. He became deeply interested in the Orphans' Home in Franklin and left evidence of his appreciation in his last will. He left $1,000 to Proctor Academy. He was a man of stern integrity of character, exemplary in all the relations of life. Mr. Sweatt died in the fine old Haddock mansion near the Orphans' Home at Webster Place, Franklin, January 25, 1878.

BENJAMIN THOMPSON.

Benjamin Thompson was born in Woburn, Mass. He came to Andover from Hopkinton, N. H., soon after the close of the Revolutionary War and settled on the farm afterwards owned by his son, Herod, now owned by John Sanborn. For many years he kept the most famous tavern in this section of the state. He was an active farmer, successful in business and a man of unusual intellectual capacity. He was a Revolutionary soldier and an ardent patriot.

JOSEPH CALEF THOMPSON.

Mr. Thompson was born in Andover, where he resided all of his life. He had only the usual educational advantages, but he made the most of all available means for improvement. He was principally occupied as a farmer. He owned nearly two thousand acres of land, much of it pasturage on the southern slopes of Ragged Mountain, and he usually had from fifteen hundred to two thousand sheep. He was keenly interested in all the affairs of the town and held many places of trust and responsibility. He was an earnest temperance advocate and did much for the cause of sobriety in the town. Mr. Thompson was elected moderator many times and was chosen representative to the legislature in 1828 and 1839.

He was deputy sheriff for Merrimack County from 1839 to 1842, and did, to a large extent, the business of Parker Noyes at Franklin, Lower Village, Thomas Hale Pettingill and other Salisbury lawyers; Ezekiel Webster of Boscawen, Hamilton E. Perkins of Hopkinton and many other lawyers in the county. Prompt to resent any interference with his personal or property rights and with a keen interest in all legal matters, Mr. Thompson was almost constantly engaged in litigation. He frequently conducted his own case, even when the opponent was represented by some of the most prominent lawyers in Merrimack County, and the victory was not always with the trained advocate. He was a fluent speaker and an advocate of no ordinary ability. His perception was keen, his judgment prompt and greater opportunities would have without doubt given him greater influence and a broader reputation. He was for many years a member of the Congregational Church at the Center.

GEORGE W. THOMPSON.

Mr. Thompson was born and spent most of his life in Andover. (See family.) For many years he was associated with his father in the management of the extensive paternal estate. After his father retired from business Mr. Thompson conducted the affairs of the large farm until he became interested in the store at Potter Place. After a few years he moved to Lexington, Mass., where he resided until his death, January 5, 1890. Mr. Thompson was an active, enthusiastic farmer and business man and was interested in all that pertained to the welfare of the town. Politically he was a zealous Democrat and was chosen by his fellow townsmen to the most important offices in town.

MAJOR JOHN P. THOMPSON, U. S. A.

John Proctor Thompson was born in Andover and attended the district school and the academy at the Center Village. While still a schoolboy he enlisted October 28, 1861, and was mustered in as a private in Co. I, N. H. Battalion of the 1st Regt., Rhode Island Cavalry. He re-enlisted January 2, 1864. In February, 1864, the four companies, I, K, L and M of the N. H. battalion returned to New Hampshire to recruit the regiment afterwards known as the 1st N. H. Cavalry, of which they formed the nucleus.

Mr. Thompson was appointed second lieutenant Co. C, March 17, 1864, and was promoted to first lieutenant June 10, 1865, but was not mustered. He was mustered out July 15, 1865. On February 23, 1866, he again entered the service, receiving the appointment of second lieutenant in the 3d Infantry, U. S. army. He was promoted to first lieutenant July 24, 1867, and to captain April 20, 1886. He served at Fort Leavenworth, Fort Larned, Camp Supply, Ind. Ter'y, and at Holly Springs, Miss. He served two years on recruiting service and rejoined his regiment at New Orleans in 1876. He served at Huntsville, Ala.; in Pittsburg during the riots in 1877, eleven years at Ft. Missoula, Montana, and afterwards at Ft. Meade, Ft. Sully and Ft. Snelling. He was retired for disability on his own application, after thirty years' service, May 18, 1893. After retirement he was promoted to the rank of major, completing a long and active service in many branches, from private to the honorable rank of major U. S. army. He retains his official residence in Andover.

JONATHAN WEARE.

Dea. Jonathan Weare was born in Seabrook, N. H., and came to Andover about 1778. He was one of the most respected and useful citizens of the town. When the town was incorporated in 1779 Mr. Weare was unanimously recommended by the voters of the town for appointment as the first justice in the new organization. He was afterwards chosen town clerk eighteen times, selectman sixteen times and representative five times.

NATHAN WOODBURY

Descended from the men of the second wave of immigration into this town, when the skilled artisan and mechanic arrived to supplement the earlier work of the hunter and farmer; Mr. Nathan, son of Dea. Nathan, Woodbury, has spent his entire life in Andover and now resides in the home of his boyhood. He acquired his education at the district schools and at Andover Academy, after which he was a successful teacher for several winters. A dutiful student, a conscientious teacher and a good citizen are the distinguishing features of Mr. Woodbury's life. For many years he has steadily followed his business as a farmer and has been a noted member of the grange and a prominent member and officer of the Masonic fraternity. He has been actively interested in the progress of the town history, has furnished much important material for the work and has been ever helpful and zealous in all good works for the prosperity of the town.

AUTHORS AND BOOKS.

Andover has always been essentially a farming town and the busy life of those who wrest a living from the soil of New Hampshire is not favorable to the writing of many books or to most other forms of literary effort. In some cases, however, good original work has been accomplished, and many books have been written and compiled by natives and their descendants, as well as by residents.

A complete catalogue of those who have wielded the pen with success is, at short notice, practically impossible, but the following is a partial list:

Rev. OTIS R. BACHELDER, M. D., Missionary in India.

Hinduism and Christianity in Orissa, India.

Rev. EBENEZER CHASE.

Published the Religious Informer, a monthly paper, 16 p., octavo, from 1819 to 1823, and a Masonic paper, the Casket, doing all the work, from editor to pressman, himself. Most of his time was occupied in printing the work of others.

CENSUS OF 1850.

The name, age and birthplace, when not born in New Hampshire, of each person in Andover, as found in the rolls in the census office in Washington, D. C., is given in the following table. In general, the family names are arranged alphabetically, while the names of the children in each family are given in the order of birth. The spelling of the census record is generally followed.

The following list will furnish a valuable check on many later family records; and it also affords important data concerning many families of which no later record is known. Where no state is mentioned as the birthplace, New Hampshire is to be understood.

The above enumeration shows the number of inhabitants in 1850 to have been 1,218. The census office reported a population of 1,220, but the rolls now in the census office show two duplicate names in the returns. It is quite probable that several names were omitted by the enumerator, for no mention is made in the returns of the family, five in number, of David Merrill. Adding Merrill's family to the above list, we have for the population in 1850, 1,223.

LARGE STOCK FROM THE ANDOVER BARNs AND PASTURES.

1872 Ziba Severance sold a pair of grade Devon oxen, six years old, weighing 4,150 lbs.

1874 James Marston sold a yoke of oxen, in December, of 7 feet, 6 inches, girth for $240.

1875 This year the following oxen were weighed:

Jonathan Cilley, one yoke weighed 3,440 lbs.

James Marston, one yoke weighed 3,660 lbs.

O. E. Eastman, one yoke weighed 4,000 lbs.

Ziba Severance, one yoke weighed 4,000 lbs.

Many of the farmers took great interest in growing and fattening swine. The Farmer's Monthly Visitor of April, 1839, gives the following account of four hogs, from the same litter of pigs, raised and fattened as follows, each hog 18 months old when killed:

James Marston, Jr., one hog weighed dressed, 493 lbs.

Joseph E. Fellows, one hog weighed dressed, 565 lbs.

James Marston, one hog weighed dressed, 571 lbs.

William Graves, one hog weighed dressed, 717 lbs.

December 23, 1822, Col. Jonathan Weare dressed a hog 17 months old that weighed 678 lbs.

James Marston, Jr., dressed a hog April 12, 1841, weighing 740 lbs.

James Marston, Senior, dressed a hog, 1842, weighing 800 lbs.

Enoch Merrill dressed a hog, 1842, weighing 812 lbs.

In the eight years, 1900 to 1907, inclusive, the average annual number of sheep in town was 400. Between 1830 and 1865 the average number was over 3,200. In one year the number was above 4,400. In several years between 1848 and 1860 the price of wool was between 50 and 60 cents per pound.

FIRST STOCK IN TOWN.

Joseph Fellows brought the first yoke of oxen into town when he cleared the road from Salisbury line to Loon pond. Later he brought a cow from the town of Boscawen, paying for it in beaver skins, which he obtained at the "Great Meadows," now "Danbury Bog." The wild grass of the beaver meadow, then designated "Call's Meadow," since then as "Rollins" or "Flag-hole" meadow, yielded sufficient hay to keep his yoke of small oxen and his cow. He was soon able to get additional hay from various spots in his clearing, all being eked out by birch twigs.

William Morey owned the second cow in town. When he moved to Andover he drove a cow and calf up through the woods of Stevenstown, now Salisbury, to his log cabin, near that of Mr. Fellows. The path was covered with ice and both cow and calf were "half shod," forward, for the journey. Iron shoes were nailed to the inside claw of the fore foot. Mr. Frank W. Proctor has one of the calf shoes. It is a good, hand-made shoe, in a good state of preservation. The dimensions are: Length, 2 1-8 inches; greatest width, 15-16 inches; 1-16 in thickness and the calks are 1-4 inch high.

The grass on the natural or so-called "wild" meadows was considered common property until the owners of those tracts arrived to claim their rights.

All team work on farms was done with oxen until about 1840, when Willard Emery is supposed to have been the first to use a pair of horses to do heavy farm work in town. He had bought the Barber place at East Andover village and there he used horses for all the work, even "breaking up" greensward with four horses, a noted innovation in those days.

FIRST CARRIAGES AND CARPETS.

The first one-horse wagon in Andover was made in Hampstead, N. H., and was owned by Joseph Brown. The vehicle was clumsy and heavy, without springs of any kind, and was painted with "spruce yellow."

The second similar wagon was owned by Anthony Emery.

The first four-wheeled chaise or covered carriage was owned by Samuel Butterfield and the second by Deacon Josiah Bachelder.

Joseph Philbrick, Senior, was the first or second owner of a two-wheeled chaise.

It is supposed that Samuel Butterfield was the first possessor of an imported woolen carpet in town. He had one floor covered with this fabric in 1840.

Soon after that period several families used carpets woven in town. These home-made floor coverings were woven in colored stripes, of which the warp was of tow, linen or cotton yarn, and the filling of homespun and home-dyed woolen yarn. It became the fashion about 1835 to paint the floor of the "best room" or parlor with "spruce yellow," but when carpets came into use that color became the proper finish for the kitchen floors. Before that epoch the kitchen floor was "sanded," that is, sprinkled with sand, which the skillful housewife brushed into graceful figures with her hemlock broom.

TASKS IN SPINNING AND WEAVING.

About 1800 the ordinary stint for girls employed in spinning woolen yarn among the farmers was five skeins per day. A smart, active girl could easily spin her allotted amount in about six hours, leaving her plenty of time for rest and recreation. The usual price paid for wool spinning was fifty cents per week, including board. It is related at the eastern part of the town that Mrs. Moses Rowell once wove fifteen yards of flannel in the old-fashioned hand-loom in one day; and Miss Ruth Robie, a neighbor, spun fifteen skeins of woolen yarn in the same time.

A FEAT IN TREE FELLING.

Daniel Cilley, born in 1762 and father of Josiah Cilley of East Andover, was a noted wood-chopper. While working for Jonathan Cilley, Sr., it was reported that he felled two acres of old growth trees in one day. He notched the trees so that each should fall against one or more notched trees beyond and then set them falling like a row of bricks by felling a "driver" against the first notched tree.

PEW OWNERS IN NORTH CHURCH.

After the North Church at East Andover was repaired in 1840, the pews were sold. The following list of purchasers and the prices paid was found on a single sheet of paper late in 1906, after the church annals were printed. Neither the date of sale nor the numbers of the pews were given.

ANDOVER MEMBERS OF A BAPTIST SOCIETY IN SALISBURY.

On May 25, 1789, a meeting was held in Salisbury, in the schoolhouse near the residence of Abel Elkins, in the Centre Village, for the purpose of forming a Baptist Society. Seventy-four persons signed a "Covenant" containing, as the principal idea, the following:

"We, therefore, in the view of these things, as men, amidst all the controversy of religionists and the errors of the times, would assume our natural rights in the choice of a religious sentiment for ourselves, and do accordingly, having had the opportunity to peruse, examine and determine upon several religious schemes or sentiments, presume voluntarily to choose and prefer what is called the strict Anti-Pedobaptists sentiments of religion and do hereby make said sentiments of religion our own.

taking it upon candid examination, according to our best light in the Holy Scriptures, to be the most agreeable thereto.”

Of the seventy-four signers of the above covenant, the following were residents of Andover:

Bartlett, Nathan	Hoyt, Reuben
Brown, Joseph, Jr.	Ladd, Edward
Cilley, Benjamin	Ladd, Joseph
Cilley, Benjamin, Jr.	Morey, William, Jr.
Cilley, Elisha	Morrill, Jabez
Connor, Simeon	Sleeper, Jedediah
Corliss, Pelatiah	Sleeper, Thomas
Haines, Josiah	Sweatt, John D.
Hobbs, John	Sweatt, Timothy
Hoyt, Abraham

At a later date the following Andover men became members of the society: Aaron Cilley, Moses Clough, Samuel Elkins and Josiah Scribner.

ANECDOTES.

HOEING FOR PREACHING.

Joe Page worked for "Elder" Badeock hoeing corn to pay his "minister tax." According to the parson's notion, the work was not well done and Joe was rebuked.

"Not hoed well," replied Joe, "not hoed well. Humph! I guess it's as good as the preachin.' "

BLAKE'S BULLETIN.

"Sam" Blake lived on the Benjamin Tucker place. When a certain woman fell down the cellar stairs, "Sam" posted the following announcement on the door of the old North Church:

“Mollie Blaisdell desires prayers
For falling down the cellar stairs.
She broke no bones, but bruised her meat
And, thanks to God, she’s living yet.”

A NEW REMEDY.

While at supper with his family, in the house now owned by George F. Woodward in the Swett neighborhood, Mr. John Hobbs was startled by loud knocks and shouts at his door. Before he could reach the door he was accosted by an ancient maiden neighbor, exclaiming, “O Mr. Harbs, Mr. Harbs, our Biah’s fell down suller and wants a little honey to put on’t.”

TIT FOR TAT.

One of the early residents on Andover Plain had some corn planted near his barn. One of his hens persisted in pulling the corn as soon as the young shoots appeared. Thinking to check the mischief, he killed the hen. This so enraged his wife that she went out and pulled up all the corn in sight.

“NAMING THE BUILDING.”

It was an early custom, when the frame of a building of more than ordinary importance was raised, to “name” or “toast” it. This was done after the ridge-pole, the last piece of timber, was put in place, by a man standing on the ridge-pole and breaking a bottle of rum (probably without spilling much rum), afterwards repeating some lines, generally complimentary to the owner’s enterprise and character. Sometimes the occasion was seized to emphasize a local grudge or to point a joke.

About 1820 Jonathan Roberts erected a grist-mill on the inlet of Elbow Pond, just above the sawmill afterwards owned by Samuel Morrill. When the frame of Roberts’ mill was raised, it was “named” by Samuel Keniston in the following lines:

“Here’s a fine frame put up for a mill
By the owner’s industry, and the neighbors’ good will.
He grinds for his meal, and mows for his grass;
Here’s hoping he’ll get the toll all away from old Cass.”

The "Old Cass" referred to was the miller at the East Andover Village.

When the frame for the large blacksmith shop of Col. Jonathan Weare was raised on Taunton Hill, the following lines were repeated by Samuel Keniston, who seems to have been in demand for such occasions:

"Here's a fine frame raised upon a hill;
The owner is rich, and growing richer still,
He makes very good shoes, ploughshares and axes,
And steals enough out of his hoes to pay all his taxes."

When Keniston came down from the frame Colonel Weare took him by the collar, saying, "Sam, you dog, what did you tell that lie for?"

"Oh," said Keniston, "I was obliged to for the rhyme. I knew it was a lie when I said that you made very good shoes, ploughshares and axes."

Dr. Silas Merrill built the house now occupied by William L. Bennett on Taunton Hill. When the frame was raised, in 1818, a bottle of rum was broken on the ridge-pole and from the same elevation the following lines were delivered:

"Here is a fine frame raised on Taunton Hill,
The owner is rich and growing richer still;
May health come upon us like showers of grace,
And the owner get rich by the sweat of his face."

The good will in the above sentiment has been the heritage of all the doctors who have since occupied the house.

DRINKS ON TOWN-MEETING DAY.

From the establishment of the first stores in town down to at least 1830, most, if not all, traders in this and adjoining towns sold all kinds of spirituous liquors, but New England rum was the favorite drink. Early in the nineteenth century all stores were licensed to sell liquors in any quantities. Special licenses were issued to accommodate the thirsty voters on "town meeting day." The following are specimens of such licenses. It should be noted that the barnyard of Benjamin Cass was near the voting place. In March, 1821, the selectmen licensed Joseph Tilton

“to sell and retail spirituous liquors by small quantities in Mr. Benjamin Cass’ shed by his barn.”

The next year the annual, periodic thirst was recognized in the following document:

“This may certify that we, the subscribers, the Selectmen of Andover, do hereby approbate Jacob M. Brown and Jonah Goodwill to sell, and mix and sell, all kinds of spirituous liquors within the limits of Mr. Benjamin Cass’ cow yard and at no other place, for the term of one month.

BLAKE’S MASONIC HALL.

Hezekiah Blake erected the first Masonic hall in Andover. It was connected with his dwelling-house, was well finished and ornamented with Masonic emblems. About that time Mr. Blake, who was somewhat eccentric, purchased of the Lord Timothy Dexter estate in Massachusetts a number of life-sized busts, representing such historical characters as Washington, Bonaparte, etc., and placed one on each post of the fence that enclosed his front yard and the entrance to the hall.

On the first of January, after the hall was completed, Mr. Blake gave a New Year’s party and ball to his friends in town and to some guests from adjoining towns. Dr. Jacob Bailey Moore was asked to make some remarks, and at the close of a brief speech he recited the following impromptu lines:

“We’ve gathered in Masonic Hall
To welcome and shake hands with all;
To give our friends right hearty cheer,
To hail another happy year.

This hall adorned, red, blue and white,
These hearts all beating with delight,
A hundred brilliant, sparkling eyes,
All tell how much these joys we prize.

Our aged friends have come along
To join the young and happy throng;
See every age and class advance,
Ready to join the merry dance.

So let sweet music stir the air,
And banish every gloomy care.
A time there is to dance and play;
That time should be on New Year's Day."

A BIT OF ROMANCE.

About 1810 there lived in the state of New York a young couple, who had been married about a year, and had a young daughter. The age of the father was about twenty; of the mother, about sixteen years. The young husband left home and joined the army. The mother and child were received by her friends, who were so incensed by the conduct of the young soldier that they prevented any communication between husband and wife until it was reported that death had given the soldier his long furlough.

In the meantime a rumor had reached the husband that his wife was dead and his daughter was well cared for by her mother's friends. Within a few years both father and mother married again. After many years they were widowed again and were growing old. As a result of a long investigation the father learned that his daughter was alive and was the wife of a botanic physician living at East Andover. He started on his long journey to find his daughter, and a short time before reaching his destination he was accosted by an elderly woman in the next seat, who inquired if the next station was East Andover, and she was told that it was. As the train stopped, the elderly people alighted and walked along the village street together, until the woman inquired of a villager where Doctor Durkee lived, saying to her fellow traveler, who was standing by, about to make the same inquiry: "Mrs. Durkee is my daughter."

He exclaimed: "Who are you? Tell me, for God's sake!"

Explanations; tableau; and a happy procession to the doctor's house.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1853, Rev. Oliver Butler re-married the long separated husband and wife; and it is supposed that they "lived happy," if not long, "ever afterwards."

A CHARACTERISTIC DUN.

A ladies' society connected with a church in the village at "Centre Road" in Salisbury had an account against one of the villagers, which he did not pay. The society sent the bill for collection to John M. Shirley, attorney in Andover. Mr. Shirley sent the delinquent the following note:

"Mr. ———:"

"DEAR SIR: A small account is left at my office for collection. The cause of Christ languishes because of the coldness of your faith and backsliding from the tenets of grace. The cause of the great Nazarene must be maintained at all hazards. Please walk up and settle."

A SEARCH FOR A WIFE.

Mark Bachelder, son of Reuben of Hampton Falls, mounted his horse and started out to search for a wife. His first visit was paid to the daughter of Samuel Rano, an early settler in Andover. Finding her in the barnyard, milking her father's cows, he rode up to the fence and promptly made known the object of his visit. Startled by the abrupt proposal of marriage under such circumstances, she hesitated, and was not inclined to give, then and there, a favorable answer, when Mark, tightening the bridle reins as if to ride off, called out impetuously: "Come now, off or on, what do you say?" Nabby's exact reply is unknown, but it is likely that Mark received some encouragement, for not long after, in 1788, the maid became Bachelder's wife and in due time the mother of twelve children.

PENALTY FOR NON-PAYMENT.

Conditions of a "vendue" of land owned by non-residents for unpaid taxes in 1806.

"1st. The whole Lot or piece of land as advertised in my list to be set up and struck off to him who will pay the taxes and cost for the least number of Acres,

"2^d. The pay to be made in current money in ten minutes, or the person who bids it off to pay a Pint of Spirits and the land to be set up again.

“3^d. If two persons bid so near together as to cause dispute the land to be set up again at the former bid.

“Deeds given according to law.

“(Signed) SAMUEL KIMBALL, JR.”

The above conditions were advertised by collectors as late as January 7, 1812.

HUNTERS' TALES.

As the number of sheep in town increased, the number of bears seemed to increase in greater proportion, until their ravages among the flocks became a serious matter. These animals were frequently seen about the houses and barns of the farmers and manifested but little fear of the people.

A bear came to the house of Mr. True on Tucker Mountain, and, standing on its hind legs at the kitchen window, coolly watched the women of the family at their work for a few minutes, and then sauntered off to look for a better prospect for his dinner.

Mr. True lost many sheep; and in one year, about 1834, Meseck Weare lost twenty sheep by bears. The flocks of most of the farmers in the northern section of the town suffered from these depredations. Mr. True was noted as a bear-hunter and many of these animals were killed by individual hunters; but as these creatures lived among the rocks and ravines of the long range of Ragged Mountain, whence they descended to raid the flocks of the farmers, it seemed desirable to organize an effort to kill as many as possible and frighten the rest away.

In 1833 an organized hunt was arranged and an attempt was made to approach the mountain on all sides by as many men as could be induced to join in the battue. The number of men was altogether too small to cover the ground. Many bears were seen but only one was killed. In 1834 another hunt was organized, with results similar to those of the preceding year. One cub was killed and William Morey killed a bear weighing 355 pounds. This animal was dressed and a few days afterwards served to the hunters and their friends at a grand dinner at the tavern at West Andover. During this final hunt, so much noise was made by shouting and the firing of guns that the surviving animals, of which several were seen, were probably frightened away, for no serious damage has been done by bears since that period.

MOREY AND THE CATAMOUNT.

When John Morey and a companion were hunting foxes around the northern base of Kearsarge Mountain, they were astonished to see their dogs running towards them at full speed, closely followed by a large animal, evidently bent on making a meal of fox-hound. His companion fled and Morey was afraid to shoot lest he might kill one of his dogs. The animal was soon upon him. With one hand he grasped the creature's throat and with the other hand he seized a hind leg. The fight, which at first seemed unequal and in favor of the beast, was to a finish. The grip on the animal's throat was not relaxed and Morey strove to prevent fatal wounds from the free hind foot. At the end of the struggle the animal was dead and the hunter was exhausted, his clothes in rags and his body covered with blood. On partially recovering his strength, he swung the catamount by the hind legs over his shoulder and started for home, the nose of the dead beast touching the ground as his captor trudged slowly and painfully on.

THE BEAR NEAR BRADLEY POND.

While clearing his farm on Beech Hill, about 1793, Ephraim Eastman found fresh traces of a bear among some blackberry bushes in a "windfall," at the foot of a precipitous ledge, situated just north of the road now leading from the Eastman farmhouse to the Fitzgerald farm. The next morning he set a "log trap," or "deadfall," using for bait the offal from a pig, which Jedediah Sleeper, with whom he boarded, had killed the previous day. When he quit work for the day he went around to his trap and found a large bear that had been caught and killed by the fall of the heavy log. He lifted the log from the bear's neck, put him on his shoulder and started for Mr. Sleeper's. On reaching the top of the hill, where Henry M. Thompson now lives, he dropped the bear in order to rest. After his excitement had somewhat abated and he was ready to resume his way, he found, to his amazement, that he could not lift the bear to his shoulder again. Hearing the sound of chopping at the house of Mr. Sleeper, who lived near the present house of Orrin Stetson, Mr. Eastman shouted for assistance. Mr. Sleeper came. They tied the bear's legs together, slung him on a pole, which they put on their shoulders, and proudly carried the body of Bruin home.

BEAR AT EAST ANDOVER.

Early in the history of the town Edward Ladd treed a bear and shot it in a big pine that stood in the corner of what is now the garden of Weare D. Tuttle, in the village of East Andover.

WOLVES.

About 1790, in the winter, three gray wolves came into the barnyard of Joseph Fellows, Jr., and killed three sheep, one of which was dragged several rods from the barn.

In the winter, about 1805, Nathaniel, son of Joseph Fellows, Jr., found the trail of some gray wolves, who crossed the highway near the line between the farms of Capt. Lawrence Ellis and Richard Sanborn. These wolves were followed around the Emery neighborhood, south of Captain Marston's, down to the lower pond, now Webster Lake, which they crossed, leaving it near the brickyard, thence northerly to the Call road and up a valley to the mountain. The hunters followed them into Hill, but abandoned the chase at nightfall, though at that time it was found that the animals were lying down to rest every few minutes.

SHARES, LOTS AND RANGES.

THE DIVISION OF THE TOWN INTO SHARES AND LOTS.

By the terms of the Grant the tract was to be "divided into Eightyone Shares or Rights & each Share to be laid out into three Distinct Lots the two first to Contain each an hundred acres & the other all the rest of the land belonging to each Respective Share. That the whole be laid out as Equitably as Possible that the three lots belongs to one share be Numbered with the same Number so as to make but one Draught for the three lots belonging to each share That the said land be so laid out within nine Months from the Granting thereof & then the lots Drawn for in the Usual Manner of Drawing for lots of land in such Cases and that this be done at Portsmouth aforesaid under the Care and Direction of the Grantors and a true plan thereof Returned at the same time to the Grantors."

It was provided that eighteen of the eighty-one shares should be reserved for the use of the grantors; one for the use of the first minister settled in the grant; one for the support of the gospel ministry and one share for the support of schools. The remaining sixty shares were for the use of the sixty grantees.

On May 28, 1753, the proprietors appointed a committee to procure a plan of the tract, to lay this plan before the grantors and arrange a time and place for drawing the lots. This committee consisted of James Carriek, Amos Dwinell and Richard Smith.

According to this plan the grant was divided into four sets or ranges of lots; each range beginning at the Pemigewasset River and running westerly to the western boundary. Each range was approximately ten miles long and one mile wide. The range adjoining the Salisbury line was known as the first range and the others were numbered consecutively towards the southern boundary of New Chester. These ranges were divided into lots running north and south according to the terms of the original grant: each lot in the western section of the grant west of lot one in the first range, being approximately one mile long and forty rods wide, the lots east of lot one were approximately one mile long and fifty rods wide.

Between the consecutive ranges were rangeways three in number and four rods wide, intended for highways. (See Map.) There were also other rangeways shown on the original map of the same width, running parallel to the sides of the lots, and intended for highways.

One of these between lots 61 and 63 in the first range ran from Salisbury line through the center square to the New Chester line. Three other rangeways west of center square ran from Salisbury line to New Chester line: The first between lots 75 and 77; the second between lots 1 and 3; and the third between lots 21 and 23. East of the center square were five other rangeways running in the same direction: The first running between lots 35 and 37 in third range, north to New Chester line; the second running between lots 35 and 37 in first range, north to center rangeway; the third running between lots 53 and 55 in third range, north to New Chester line; the fourth running between lots 17 and 19 in first range, north to center rangeway; the fifth running between lots 65 and 67 in third range, north to New Chester line.

The "center square" shown on Clough's map was about half a mile west of Loon Pond and was on land owned in 1900 by N. J. Bachelder, Joseph D. Philbrick and F. H. Flanders, and is not near any highway. It was designed as the business center of the town; it is now in the woods.

In May, 1763, another committee was appointed to run out said township anew and bound and number every lot agreeable to the plan formerly exhibited and accepted by the grantors. This committee, David Norton, Richard Smith, Benjamin Eaton, Benjamin Tilton and Jeremiah Lane spent six days at their task and claimed to have made a thorough survey and division according to the original plan. It was probably the most accurate work done up to that time on the grant; but the surveying and marking even the corner bounds of 243 lots, on 40 square miles in the dense wilderness and among the hills of this town, in six days, could scarcely be called accurate in any degree.

As the settlement of the town progressed it became evident that the rangeways as originally planned were generally impracticable for highways. For several years much time was spent at town meetings in disposing of various portions of these four-rod strips of land. In many cases sections of these reserved ranges were transferred by vote of the town to citizens whose lands were contiguous, as compensation for land taken for highways that ran in irregular courses across their farms.

The names of the original owners of the lots are shown and numbered on the accompanying plan. In nearly every case the spelling is the same as that on the copy of the plan now in the possession of the town. The six lots named on the plan "Law Lotts" were transferred to William Parker and Samuel Livermore, lawyers, who were to defend the proprietors in all suits of law concerning the new township.

The following is an alphabetical list of the original owners of lots shown on the accompanying plan of the township by William Brown Clough, together with the numbers of the ranges and of the lots. The ranges of lots are numbered I, II, III and IV, northward from the south line of the town. In some instances there are two lots with the same number in a range. In such cases the number in the following list is followed by an E or a W as the lot is east or west of the central line of the original township. The original spelling has been followed, generally, save when the correct spelling was necessary for the identification of the names.

per Geo: Jaffrey Prop^{rs} Cl."

It is perhaps unnecessary to say, to any one acquainted with the topography of this town, that the copy of the original map printed in this volume is not a good example of accurate map making. Mr. Clough's representations of the sizes, forms and locations of the ponds, rivers and smaller streams are, at best, only crude specimens of free hand sketches. This reproduction is presented: first, because it was the most accurate map available of that epoch; second, it serves to fix the location of the lots which were distributed, by "drawing," to the original owners.

GENEALOGIES

GENEALOGY.

The following pages present what was contained in the notes of Mr. George E. Emery; and very much more that has been gathered from personal knowledge, from the state and town records, from church and family records, from hundreds of personal interviews and from an extensive correspondence, concerning most of the families that have found homes in this town. The greatest amount of labor has been devoted to the search for records of the earlier settlers. Some of this work is fairly complete, but much of it, after a period of more than a century, is still fragmentary.

A brief explanation will enable the reader to follow readily the arrangement of the different families and the order of the names in each family.

1. The several families are arranged alphabetically.
2. The surname of the family is printed in large capitals.
3. The christian and the surname of the head of each sub-family, with the maiden name of the wife, is printed in small capitals.
4. The full maiden name of the wife is given if known, with the surname in parenthesis.
5. When the name of a town is given it is assumed to be in New Hampshire, unless otherwise noted.
6. Residence, when not otherwise noted, is assumed to be in Andover.
7. In giving the age of an individual, the years, months and days are separated by a dash.
8. The usual abbreviations, a. for aged, b. for born, d. for died, dau. for daughter, m. for married, rem. for removed, res. for resided or resides, and t. r. for town records, have been used.
9. In the printing of surnames, the spelling usually employed by each family has been followed. In the case of one large family whose different branches, at various periods, have written the name "Sillea," "Silly," "Selley," "Selly," "Celley" and "Cilley," the modern spelling "Cilley" has been used.

10. The genealogical data for each family is so arranged as to follow out the descendants of each, in order of birth, in the male lines, to the latest generation in town. When children of the older families have removed from town, the names and dates are continued generally, if known, for one generation.

It is practically impossible to avoid errors in names and dates, though great care has been observed in this respect. Frequently the different members of the same family do not agree concerning dates of births, marriages and deaths, and in most of such cases the data cannot be verified now by trustworthy records.

BROWN.

A large majority of the people who have borne the name of BROWN in Andover were descended from two men who came from England to America, one in 1634, the other in 1635, and settled in Massachusetts. The larger number of Browns in town were descended from RICHARD, who was of Southampton, England. The members of the other branch of the family were descended from JOHN, who was of Scottish descent, but born in London.

For many years the members of the later generations have encountered difficulties in tracing their direct descent from their respective ancestors in this country. The principal confusion arose from a marriage in 1758. On Feb. 17, 1726, JONATHAN, a direct descendant of JOHN Brown, m. in the 2d church in Salisbury, Mass., JOANNA ABBA, who d. Sept. 7, 1757, in Kensington, N. H. On Dec. 8, 1726, in the same church, JOSHUA, a direct descendant of RICHARD BROWN, m. JOANNA MORRILL. JOSHUA d. April 23, 1756. JONATHAN had ten children, and JOSHUA had, at least, eight. On Nov. 30, 1758, JONATHAN m. JOANNA, the widow of JOSHUA. Most of the confusion in tracing the ancestry centered about these marriages, mainly because the two wives bore the same Christian name. But no children were born after the second marriage, and the two lines of descent still remained distinct. The pages immediately following contain such data as could be found concerning the descendants of both RICHARD and JOHN.

HILTON.

It is claimed that William the Conqueror gave a large tract of land in England to Henry de Hylton as a reward for his own and his father's valor at the battle of Hastings in 1066. On this land was built, in 1072, Hilton castle, which is still standing and occupied as a residence. As a further reward the Hyltons were created one of the large baronial families. The family later had large tracts with no less than fifteen manors, with the accompanying estates, scattered through the counties of Durham, York, Cumberland and Northumberland.

About 1623 EDWARD HILTON came from England and formed the first settlement in New Hampshire, at a place later called Hilton's Point in Dover. In 1621 he became a member of the Ancient and Honorable Guild of Fishmongers. In 1629 the English crown bestowed upon him the Hilton or Squamscot patent, a grant of land including the present towns of Dover, Durham, Stratham and part of Newington and Greenland. In 1639 he received a grant of land in Exeter and became a resident of the new town before 1645. In 1641 he was named first in the list of magistrates for the province. He held many important town offices and in 1661 he was appointed a judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He held the latter office for several years. He died in Exeter early in 1671. The name of his first wife, the mother of all his children, is now unknown. He m. (2) Mrs. Catherine (Shapleigh) Treworgie, dau. of Hon. OSGOOD-ROWELL.

There is a tradition in the OSGOOD family that HANNAH ROWELL, who m. BENJAMIN OSGOOD March 7, 1754, was the dau. of MARY BARKER. The tradition runs that Mary Barker and her brother were born in Ireland. Her brother decided to come to America but Mary would not consent to leave her friends and country to come with him. She did, however, decide to stay on the ship with her brother the last night before sailing. In the morning the vessel was well out to sea and there was no money to pay her fare. On reaching Massachusetts she was sold to raise money to pay her passage. A young man named Rowell, whom she met on the ship, became interested in her, and, after several years' labor to get money to satisfy the claim, he married her.

So far no verification of this story has been found.

It has been very difficult to trace the connections in the Page family of which there have been several representatives in the town. From town records it is known that PHINEAS Page lived, in 1800, in the vicinity of the Dea. Sam Cilley hill.

It is highly probable, but not absolutely certain, that these last two records refer to JOSHUA Page and his wife and that they were the parents of the following seven children.

RUTH BEAN, b. in Wales 1726; m. in Wales; came to N. H. in 1752.

Nathan Watson d. in 1821.

Ruth (Bean) Watson d. in 1819.

NATHAN WATSON m. RUTH HINKSON, and was a farmer in Nottingham, N. H. Rev. Elijah Watson made the following entry in his family Bible: "My honored father died Dec. 7, 1825, in the 78th year of his age." In a deed of land made May 28, 1772, Nathan Watson, his wife, Ruth, Samuel Hinkson and Abigail Hinkson, the last three children of Robert Hinkson, disposed of all their title and rights to Ezekiel Clough.

In the above it is plain that Nathan, Elijah's father, could not have been the Nathan b. in Wales in 1729. It is also known that Nathan Watson's wife, Ruth (Hinkson) Watson, d. at the home of her son, Josiah, in Berwick, Me., Dec. 12, 1831.

It is therefore probable, but not proved, that NATHAN, the father of Rev. Elijah, was the son of NATHAN WATSON and RUTH BEAN who were born and married in Wales.

According to the above theory, the early genealogy of the Watson family would be as follows, down as far as Rev. Elijah Watson. Since the date of his birth the line is easily followed.

NATHAN, son of Nathan and Ruth (Bean) WATSON, was b. ———; d. Dec. 7, 1825, a. 77; m. RUTH HINKSON, b. Epping, N. H., Jan. 2, 1748; d. at home of her son, Josiah, in Berwick, Me., Dec. 12, 1831.

Phebe,	b. ———; d. Dec. 30, 1825, in 54th year of her age.

NANCY AND DOLLY BLAKE.

Mrs. Nancy Scott of Derby Line, Vt., writes, Dec. 28, 1908, that her grandmother, the wife of Ezekiel Fellows, was Nancy Blake of Andover, N. H., and a sister of Samuel Blake, who res. and d. in Georgia, Vt. This Samuel was the son of Dea. Samuel Blake, who settled in New Breton about 1767 (see p. 25). The names of four sons are given but no daughters are mentioned. In Mr. Emery's notes the wife of Ezekiel Fellows is called Dolly, the dau. of Lt. William Blake, and it is so printed on p. 26. This is probably wrong. Since pp. 25 and 26 were printed it has been found that Dolly Blake was b. Jan., 1777, and m. Joseph Emery (see p. 140).

FELLOWS.

EZEKIEL, son of Joseph and Margaret (Webster) FELLOWS, b. Kingstons Aug. 25, 1754; res. in Andover and in Bridgewater; d. in Bridgewater Oct. 10, 1843. His wife was NANCY BLAKE. One account, the only one known till 1909, and printed on p. 148, gives her name as Dolly, the dau. of Dea. William Blake. Dolly would have been 20 or 30 years younger than Ezekiel. Some of his descendants say that his wife was NANCY Blake, which is probably true. Nancy Blake's brother, Samuel, res. and d. in Georgia, Vt.

Joseph,	b. ———; "went west and died there; two sons, Joseph and Ezekiel, settled in or near Bridgewater."

Abigail,	b. ———; m. Jacob Graves.
Nancy,	b. ———; m. Richard Gove; res. Sanborn-ton; afterwards in Dover, where he died. Two ch. d. young and Benjamin, Eliza, Hannah, Nancy and Richard survived.

From the records in the U. S. Pension Office it is found that Ezekiel Fellows, b. Aug. 25, 1754, of (New Breton) N. H., enlisted "Jan. or Feb., 1776, and served till Dec., 1776, or Jan., 1777"; was a sergeant in Capt. James Osgood's Co. in Col. Timothy Bedel's Regt.; applied for pension Dec. 6, 1819; claim allowed; res. Bridgewater, Grafton Co., N. H.; m., Salisbury, N. H., in Oct., 1780, Ann Blake, b. Jan. 8, 1763. He d. at Bridgewater Oct. 10, 1843. His widow was allowed a pension on an application executed Dec. 22, 1843, at Bridgewater.

FELLOWS.

JOSEPH, son of Joseph and Margaret (Webster) FELLOWS (see p. 149), enlisted in February or March, 1776, to serve until May, 1776, as private in Capt. James Osgood's company, Colonel Bedel's regiment. He was captured by the British and Indians at Cedar Fort, Canada. He was paroled, joined his regiment again and was discharged January

1, 1777. He enlisted again June 1, 1780, for three months, in the company of Capt. Ebenezer Webster, Colonel Nichol's regiment. He again enlisted, September, 1780, and served until November, 1780, in Capt. Ebenezer Deering's company. He applied for a pension May 8, 1818, and his claim was allowed. He resided and died in Andover. His widow applied for a pension April 24, 1840. Her residence then was Franklin and her age seventy-eight. Most of the above data are from the records of the war department in Washington, D. C. Another record (see p. 149) gives the date of Mrs. Fellows' death as March 29, 1805. This record as printed must be an error.

FLANDERS.

JAMES FLANDERS m. MARY MORRILL DALTON; res. at Wilmot Flat until Sept., 1865, when he removed to East Andover. Mr. Flanders d. Aug. 13, 1870.

HAINES.

JOSIAH HAINES' name appears on a receipt roll dated Hampton, June 13, 1778, which shows that he had enlisted to serve as a soldier until the first day of January, 1779. He was a member of Capt. Ezekiel Worthen's Co.; enlisted from Kensington and was discharged Jan. 4, 1779. He enlisted from Andover July 5, 1779, and was discharged Jan. 15, 1780. He enlisted July 23, 1782, as a private in Capt. Ebenezer Webster's Co. of Rangers; was discharged Nov. 7, 1782. Josiah Haines enlisted in Col. Hercules Mooney's Regt. July 5, 1779, for the town of Andover; discharged Jan. 15, 1780. He was also in Colonel Stickney's Regt., raised for the defense of Rhode Island.

Josiah Haines continued his residence in Andover after the close of the war. He was the first blacksmith in town and worked at his trade for many years on Connor's Hill. It is supposed that David Haines, also a blacksmith, who lived near the Robbins house in the first house east of the turnpike, and on the road towards Shaw's mill, was a descendant of Josiah Haines. David Haines had a dau. Ruhannah, who was once a prominent student at Andover Academy. No later records of Josiah or David have been found.

RANDALL.

EDWARD RANDLE OR RANDALL,¹ the immigrant, was of Strawberry Bank (Portsmouth) in 1667; owned land there. Among his children was:

JAMES², b. about 1670; name of wife unknown. By his will, now on file in Concord, N. H., he mentions his only son and two daughters:

JAMES, ³	b. about 1696; m. Deborah Jordan.
Catherine,	b. ———; m. Jeremiah, son of Jeremiah and grandson of Rev. Robert Jordan, the "immigrant."
Mary,	b. ———; m. Elias Talton.

JAMES,³ son of James RANDALL,² b. about 1696; m., about 1719, DEBORAH, dau. of Jeremiah and grand-dau. of Rev. Robert JORDAN. Had five sons; no record of any daughters.

The five eldest sons were in the Revolutionary Army; perhaps Samuel also.

A JAMES MARSTON RANDALL m., in Berwick, Me., Oct. 8, 1771, DEBORAH HAMILTON of Berwick or Kittery. It is likely that this JAMES MARSTON RANDALL is identical with James M. Randall, son of William and Hannah Marston Randall, and bapt. March 17, 1746; for after JAMES m. MARGARET FELLOWS in Andover, his first ch., b. July 6, 1783, was named "DEBORAH HAMILTON." James Randall was 17 years older than Margaret Fellows; and Deborah Hamilton of Berwick, or Kittery, Me., may have been his first wife. A Deborah Hamilton, dau. of Joseph and Elizabeth Hamilton, was bapt. at South Berwick, Me., July 13, 1744.

On p. 283 of Part II in list of children of James Randall should be inserted: JAMES, b. Feb. 16, 1793; m. Polly Moxley. On same page, in account of James Randall's family, 5th line, for Corinth, Vt., read Andover, N. H., and omit "and had several children that lived."

Mrs. Margaret (Fellows) Randall Woodbury d. Hartland, Vt., and was buried in the family lot of Samuel Trask.

JAMES, son of James and Margaret (Fellows) RANDALL, b. in Andover Feb. 16, 1793; d. in Hyde Park, Vt., March 13, 1855; m., in Hartford, Vt., Nov. 13, 1816, POLLY MOXLEY, b. in Tunbridge, Vt., Aug. 3, 1796; d. Hyde Park, Vt., July 20, 1876. Mr. Randall res. first in Hartland, then in Hartford and moved to Hyde Park, Vt., in 1844. The first six ch. b. in Hartland; the others in Hartford, Vt.

RANO.

RAINO.

This name appears in wills and other records variously as Raynes, Raines, Rayneau, Raino and Rano.

Mr. Orra E. Monnette, Los Angeles, Cal., traces the family in this country as follows, mostly from wills. (See Maine Wills, Vol. 1, p. 145.)

RAYNES, CAPT. FRANCIS, b. in England or France about 1625. He was a Huguenot refugee and came to the island of Barbadoes in 1635, in the ship True Love; later came to Massachusetts. He is recorded as at Dover, N. H., in 1652, where he served in military companies as ensign in 1652, lieutenant in 1654 and captain in 1659. He was also of Portsmouth and later of Dover, where he died, 1693.

NATHANIEL RAYNES, son of Capt. Francis RAYNES, b. about 1650.

JOHN RAYNES, son of NATHANIEL RAYNES, d. before 1722. John's wife, ELIZABETH, dau. of Thomas PAINE, d. after 1720. John was of York, Me.

ELIAS RANO, son of John and Elizabeth (Paine) RAYNES, 2d, settled in Andover or New Breton (see p. 284.)

When the news of the engagements at Concord and Lexington reached New Breton on April 21, 1775, JOHN RANO, or RAINO, with other settlers in this town, started immediately for the scene of action and participated in the struggle at Bunker Hill, where Rano was wounded in the ankle. His name appears in Massachusetts records as attached to a Massachusetts regiment. At that period and for four years later enlistments were sometimes in the state militia and sometimes in the Continental army. In the militia the enlistments were for short periods and privates seem to have been frequently transferred from one regiment to another. In many cases the only records of individual service are derived from the various pay rolls.

Rano appears in 1777 as a corporal in Captain Scott's Company, First New Hampshire Regiment, commanded by Col. Joseph Cilley. He also appears in 1777 as a member of Colonel Stickney's Regiment. He may have been paid with Stickney's men. He enlisted in Scott's Company April 26, 1777. His name appears on a return dated March 19, 1779, as a soldier in the Continental army, enlisted from the Fifth Regiment, New Hampshire state militia; abode given as New Breton, enlistment credited to Amherst, N. H. He was reported as a deserter from First New Hampshire Regiment Nov. 6, 1778. The following certificate indicates his position at two epochs:

"Exeter, May 6, 1782. This certifies that John Raino a soldier who deserted from the 1st N. H. Regt. in the year 1778, joined the army sometime in Feb'y last, has been sent out by Major Scott and has taken up one or more deserters, and that he was lately at camp.

"JONA. WILLARD, Lt."

There is in the family a tradition that Rano was taken prisoner, confined in a prison ship near New York, escaped, but did not return to his regiment. Soon after, in 1778, he appeared in Poultney, Vt., as Joseph Rann. After residing in Poultney for some time he returned to the army, probably in 1782, and served till end of war. In Poultney he
